Columbo says her U.S. rights denied

by DAVE IBATA

Patricia Columbo took the witness stand Friday and said police bullied her, neglected to advise her of her constitutional rights and used her concern for Frank DeLuca to extract incriminating statements from her.

Miss Columbo, 20, testified in Cook County Circuit Court, Chicago, and gave her version of her arrest and how police treated her.

Miss Columbo and DeLuca, 39, are charged with the May 4, 1976, slayings of Miss Columbo's parents, Frank, 43, Mary, 40, and brother Michael, 13, at their home at 55 E. Brantwood Dr., Elk Grove Village.

POLICE ARRESTED Miss Columbo and DeLuca May 15, 1976, at the apartment they shared in Lombard.

Miss Columbo, dressed in a blue vest, blue slacks, a patterned blouse and high-heeled shoes and with a yellow ribbon in her hair, spoke in a calm voice as she described her arrest.

She said that after she unlocked her apartment door for police, they charged in with their guns drawn. She said they pushed her into her kitchen and against a refrigerator and handcuffed her.

She said police refused to let her put on her shoes before they led her from the apartment building into the rain. She said police deliberately walked her through several puddles and pushed her into an unmarked police car, banging her head against a door frame.

Miss Columbo said at no time before or during questioning did police inform her of her rights to silence and an attorney. She said she was not told of her rights until police checked her into Cook County Jail in Chicago.

AT THE ELK GROVE Village police station, she said Det. Raymond Rose questioned her about Lanyon Mitchell, 25, of Lake Villa. Miss Columbo allegedly gave Mitchell a dossier on her family to be used in planning their slayings.

Miss Columbo said she denied knowing anyone named Lanyon Mitchell, who she later learned also was at the police station.

Miss Columbo said she then heard a scraping noise on the door of the room in which she was being questioned. She said she looked up, and saw Mitchell peering through the window in the door.

"He was laughing, and he ran his hand across his throat" in a slashing motion, Miss Columbo said.

Miss Columbo said she told police she recognized the man as "Lanny," whose last name she did not know.

Later in the questioning, she said Deputy Police Chief William Kohnke asked her "(whether) I had a preference of who went to the electric chair

Fishing trawler master charged

BOSTON (UPI) — The United States government Friday filed criminal charges against the master of the Soviet fishing trawler Taras Shevchenko for alleged violations of the 200-mile fishing limit law.

Alexander Gupalov, master of the fishing trawler seized off the Massachusetts' coast Saturday charged with violating the new law, appeared before U.S. Magistrate Lawrence Cohen for a preliminary hearing.

Cohen read charges accusing the master with violating the fisheries law on or about March 5 and April 9 of this year. "If you are convicted, you can be imprisoned for a time not to exceed one year and/or fined $100,000," Cohen told the Gupalov through an interpreter.

GUPALOV WAS released on personal recognizance and was ordered confined to the vessel.

U.S. Atty. James Gabriel also announced the filing of a civil complaint against the trawler, seeking forfeiture of the 257-foot long vessel, including all of its gear, furniture and cargo.

According to Gabriel, the ship's logs "revealed that it had on board a quantity of short, fin squid and that it had taken an amount of river herring in excess of 1 per cent of all other fish on board."

HE SAID WHEN the vessel was boarded by the Coast Guard on April 9, it had about 397 tons of processed fish aboard.

"Certainly we will discuss" any out-of-court settlement if the master pleads guilty, Gabriel said. "In all honesty, we were in contact with the State Dept. during the time the ship was in port, "but there was no pressure to drop this at all."

The U.S. attorney's office charged the master with "general violations" of the fisheries law, which went into effect March 1. The law bans taking certain species of fish within the 200-mile limit without a special permit.

THE TRAWLER has been tied at the Coast Guard dock at Boston Harbor since April 9 under custody of the U.S. Attorney.

Wearing a brown, ill-fitting suit, Gupalov told the magistrate through an interpreter that he was married and had two children and that he lived in Kaliningrad, in the Soviet Union.

Cohen said a preliminary hearing on the case will be May 5, at which time Gupalov will have to appear.

Carter to meet Brezhnev here

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter disclosed Friday he plans to meet Leonid Brezhnev in the United States "probably later this year" — but under no pressure to reach a strategic arms agreement.

"I think I'd be inclined to trade away something I might not otherwise do just to reach an agreement," Carter told reporters after concluding a televised press conference.

"And in the past, I think, sometimes, we've done that. But I don't want to meet with him . . . (just) to reach some kind of agreement. Because if they do stand pat and won't even negotiate, then the only option we have is to adopt their position."

DURING THE PRESS conference — called to announce an anti-inflation program geared to voluntary wage-

"RIGHT NOW I'm against it, but I will work if it becomes necessary," said Palatine A & P butcher Bill Link of the night meat sales vote. Other area butchers said they never received ballots on the meat sales issue and questioned the low vote turnout.

Butchers question meat vote

Herald staff report

Area butchers say they are unhappy with the results of a meat cutters union vote lifting the ban on night meat sales in the Chicago area, and some union members say they never received ballots.

"I don't think the membership wants it," said Jim Rechsteiner, delicatessen manager at the AP Food Store, Baldwin and Hicks roads, Palatine.

"I think the union was pressured into it by the stores," said Rechsteiner, who voted against the after 6 p.m. meat sales.

"Right now I'm against it, but I will work if it becomes necessary," said Bill Link, a meat cutter at the AP store.

BUT LINK AND other area meat cutters questioned the low turnout of less than 3,000 votes. About 9,000 members of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen union were eligible to vote on the contract ratification.

But at least one union member at both the IGA Foodliner Store, Park and Shop Shopping Center, Elk Grove Village, and at the Des Plaines Packing Co., 1843 Oakton St., Des Plaines, reported receiving no ballots.

One local butcher said all eight union members in his shop voted against the proposal.

MEANWHILE, SHOPPERS Monday in Northeastern Illinois will be able to purchase meat after 6 p.m. for the first time in 25 years. A&P, Jewel, Dominicks, Kohl's and Hillman's food stores in the Chicago area will be selling meat in the evening.

Independent food stores and butcher shops, however, greeted the ratification of evening sales with mixed reaction.

The IGA Foodliner store in Elk Grove Village will start selling meat Monday after 6 p.m., Axel Brix, meat department manager, said.

Ed Schleiter, owner of the Des Plaines Packing Co., said, however, he will continue to close at 6 p.m. but may change store hours at a later date.

JIM HALL, MANAGER of J&C Finer Meats, 28 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling, said his store will continue to close at 6 p.m. despite chain store competition for evening sales. "This won't affect our business," he said.

$319,000 in U.S. funds hinges on plan revisions

by BILL HILL

Arlington Heights must revise its housing-assistance plan if its application for $319,000 in U.S. Housing and Community Development funds is to be approved by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development.

HUD officials have informed the village administration that the high rents and low vacancy rates at most Arlington Heights apartment projects make unrealistic the village's plan to put all subsidized housing in existing buildings.

"Due to current rents in excess of those established (by HUD) for this program, the village can no longer demonstrate a capacity to implement the housing-assistance plan in its present form," Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said.

THE CURRENT plan, which must be submitted to HUD for the village to be eligible for the community development funds, calls for the development of 125 units of subsidized housing in each of the next three years in scattered, existing apartment developments.

HUD officials have advised the village that they will accept a revised housing-assistance plan calling for the development of 90 units of subsidized

Late night tax filing rite draws last-minute crowd

by NANCY GOTLER

One young Arlington Heights man still was asking questions about his form as he licked the stamps to mail it.

A Rolling Meadows man said he deliberately waits until the last minute every year.

And a Hawthorn Woods couple drove more than 35 miles to make the deadline.

What brought these people together late on a Friday night? The annual ritual of filing income tax returns of course.

"I INTENDED TO do it two weeks ago but didn't get around ot it," said Chuck Cooper of Arlington Heights. "However, I didn't intend for it to take me this long. And I didn't plan on having to run across the street at the last minute to get change for a dollar so I could buy stamps to mail my returns."

Cooper wasn't alone. Between 9 and 9:15 p.m. 42 persons were counted mailing returns inside the lobby of the Arlington Heights Post Office and others were lined-up at the income tax mailbox outside.

Most people running into the lobby of the post office, which also serves Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove Village, said they deliberately had waited until April 15 to mail their returns.

I WAIT THIS long every year," said Reinhold Krembler of Rolling Meadows. "I want to hang on to my money as long as I can."

Vic Zieker of Arlington Heights agreed.

Reporter barred from election story

Daniel J. Trapani, sales manager and reporter for WWMM-FM radio, Arlington Heights, won't be reporting on the Mount Prospect village election Tuesday following a political advertisement in which his name appeared as one of those who is backing Michael H. Minton, a candidate for mayor. John Lyday, WWMM news director, said he decided to take Trapani off the political beat after the advertisement appeared. "I felt it could leave an aura of bias in some people's minds," he said. Trapani, 23, said he contributed $50 to Minton's campaign but said he never authorized the use of his name in a published endorsement. The ad appeared Thursday in The Herald.

Kohnke may accept Beloit top post

William Kohnke, deputy police chief of the Elk Grove Village Police Dept., has tentatively accepted the police chief's job in Beloit, Wis., a town of about 36,000 persons on the Illinois-Wisconsin border north of Rockford. Kohnke joined the department in 1964. In June 1975 he was promoted as an administrative aide to the police chief and in May 1976 he was promoted to deputy chief.

2 face cycle theft, drug charges

Two persons were charged Friday with possession of heroin and the theft of a motorcycle after being arrested by police near Dundee and Arlington Heights roads in Buffalo Grove. Arrested were Ellyn Schloer, 18, of 100 S. Buffalo Grove Rd., Buffalo Grove, and Robert Kamins, 22, Long Grove. Police, acting on an anonymous tip, said the motorcycle was stolen Wednesday from Brian Campbell, Rolling Meadows. Police said they found 10 grams of heroin in the pair's possession. Bond for each was set at $10,000 for both charges. Both remained in Cook County Jail, Chicago, Friday night.

Polanski pleads innocent to drug, rape charges

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Movie director Roman Polanski, declaring he "cannot wait to be vindicated," pleaded innocent Friday to rape, drug and sex perversion charges involving a 13-year-old girl that could send him to prison for 50 years.

Polanski, 43, entered his plea before Superior Court Judge E. Talbot Callister and was allowed to remain free on $2,500.

He was ordered to face a pre-trial hearing April 20.

POLANSKI IS THE former husband of actress Sharon Tate, slain by the Manson Family.

Polanski who directed "Chinatown" and "Rosemary's Baby," said "The only comment I could do is to repeat what I said before — that I am innocent and cannot wait to be vindicated."

Polanski was indicted by a county grand jury last March 24 on six felony charges — furnishing a drug to a minor, rape by use of drugs, sex perversion and sodomy, unlawful sexual intercourse with a minor, and commiting a lewd or lacivious act upon a child under the age of 14.

THE 13-YEAR-OLD victim, who was not identified, had been granted permission by her mother, a friend of Polanski's, to model for photographs for the French Edition of Vogue Magazine.

Polanski, also a still photographer, was given permission by the mother to take pictures of the girl in two private photo sessions with the understanding that there would be no nude photographs.

During the first photo session, Polanski allegedly coaxed the girl into removing her blouse, but the girl did not report the incident to her mother.

ON THE SECOND occasion, Polanski picked the girl up at her home in suburban Woodland Hills and drove her to the Bel Air home of actor Jack Nicholson. Although the actor was not present, other adults were at the house at the time and Polanski, telling the girl it was too crowded to take pictures, drove the girl to another location.

He allegedly made sexual advances toward the girl, which at first were rejected, but then gave her champagne and the ' sex drug" methaqualone. He then raped the girl and forced her to perform various other sex acts, police said.

Polanski was arrested at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel the next night after the mother of the girl reported the alleged rape.

Thompson raps Carter energy proposal

by TONI GINNETTI

President Carter's proposed energy conservation plan will have a disasterous impact on state-generated gasoline revenue vital to the maintenance of roads and bridges, Gov. James R. Thompson predicted Friday.

Thompson, who was part of a select group of governors invited to Washington Thursday to preview Carter's plan, warned the proposals have far-reaching impact.

He said the plan poses the potential of creating a "two-class society" of those who can afford to operate cars and those who cannot.

AT THE SAME time, the plan would hurt state governments that rely on motor fuel tax funds to maintain state roads and bridges, systems which Thompson said are essential to business and industry as well as private motorists.

"If the federal government succeeds in driving down the consumption of gasoline, state revenues which now come in to finance highway and bridge maintenance will decline dramatically," Thompson said.

He said "significant revenue" already has been lost because of fuel-conserving practices, the reduced 55 m.p.h. speed limit and more energy-efficient cars.

IF GAS CONSUMPTION further declines because of a stiff federal tax and some of that tax revenue is not rebated to states, "all states, including Illinois, will be without the ability to maintain highways and bridges which are already deteriorating at a rate 50 per cent faster than we can replace them," Thompson said.

"I need not cite to you the extraordinary impact that would have on our economy in business, industry and agriculture," Thompson said. "We must maintain the road system in which we have invested billions of dollars, and any energy proposal must take that into account."

The governor's comments came as he addressed members of the Chicago Bar Assn. at the organization's annual spring luncheon in Chicago.

THOMPSON SAID he favors a national energy plan, saying the public is not aware of the dire energy situation facing the nation. He lauded Carter for addressing the problem, but he cautioned that any energy plan must deal with compensation to states and consideration of the impact on the nonwealthy.

In remarks to reporters before his speech, Thompson echoed a fear voiced by State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, who heads the state House revenue committee, that passage of the federal plan virtually would kill any chances for a state gas tax increase.

"A whopping federal gas tax would just wipe out states insofar as highway maintenance is concerned," Thompson said. "But let me assure you that this energy program is so far reaching and bound to be so controversial that it will be in Congress for quite a while.

"THE ILLINOIS General Assembly will have, in my view, all the opportunity they need to act on any gas tax increase between now and July 1," he said.

Thompson said while Carter's energy proposal is inflationary, it will not necessarily be bad economically if the newly generated federal tax is distributed properly.

"The proposals would generate an enormous amount of tax revenue for the federal government and they've got to dispose of that in some fashion without fueling the fires of inflation," he said. "That's a problem still to be solved."

Thompson said he would be "more comfortable" with Carter's plan if it provided for revenue rebates to states, "but I'd still want to reserve judgment on whether or not the tax was the proper mechanism for enforcing conservation."

The governors Thursday were given no opportunity to discuss the plan directly with the President, who attended the meeting only briefly, Thompson said. He said the issue of rebates to the states was directed to presidential energy adviser James R. Schlesinger, who "promised to consider it."

Gas tax alternatives better: Mikva

by KURT BAER

Suburbanites by and large are opposed to higher federal gasoline taxes, but probably are ready to accept some other energy saving steps, U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, said Friday.

The public is not convinced that a 10-, 20-or 30-cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline will help solve the nation's energy problems, Mikva said.

Gasoline also is regarded as a necessity by many people who cannot rely on mass transportation, he said.

"IF PEOPLE in this district, who are generally sophisticated, forward-looking and willing to make sacrifices, are opposed to a gas tax, I wonder how it will be received in other parts of the country," said Mikva, who is a member of the House Ways and Means Committee that is expected to deal with two-thirds of the energy package President Carter will present next week.

"I haven't committed myself to any particular gas tax," Mikva said. "If I'm convinced the President is right in what he proposes, and that it is absolutely essential for the country, I hope I would have the political courage to vote for it."

If there is such widespread opposition that Congress cannot pass the tax, "a good legislator goes back to the drawing board rather than push a dead horse," he said.

GASOLINE PRICES have doubled since 1973, and yet there is no evidence that people are using any less gas today, Mikva said.

Mikva said he thought the public would accept a premium tax on "gas guzzling" cars. "We pay a high energy price for driving super-powered cars," he said.

Incentives for recycling, a ban on throwaway bottles and cans, and the conservation of home heating fuels also "would go down well with the public," he predicted.

"One of the biggest criticisms leveled at Congress is its failure to enact a comprehensive energy policy. But part of the reason is that the American people haven't gotten together yet as to what the energy policy should be," he said.

Mikva also said at the press conference he thought President Carter's decision to withdraw the $50 tax rebate was an admission by the President that he "had made a mistake" in proposing the measure.

Mikva also said that public financing of U.S. Senate and Congressional campaigns probably will become law before the next general election.

Family welfare rolls show 50% are white: HEW

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the first time in a decade, more than half of the Americans on family welfare rolls are white, the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare said Friday.

Welfare famlies also are moving from bigger cities to smaller ones, according to an HEW study. And they have fewer children, spend more time on the rolls and live more often in homes headed by women.

These characteristics of women and children — and unemployed fathers in 28 states and jurisdictions — receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children were reported in a biennial study conducted among 31,000 families in 1975.

WHILE THE GREATEST number of persons on welfare has almost always been white, this was the first time since 1967 that the majority of those receiving family welfare aid were white.

Whites comprised 50.2 per cent of AFDC recipients, up from 46.9 per cent in 1973; blacks were down from 45.8 to 44.3 per cent; American Indians were unchanged at 1.1 per cent, and other minorities and unknown down from 6.2 to 4.3 per cent. AFDC is the government's major welfare program, dwarfing all others in the number of recipients.

When the study was conducted, AFDC spending totaled $8.6 billion a year for 11.4 million persons. Current annual spending is estimated at $10.3 billion for 11.1 million individuals.

The study also found that:

- One of every seven welfare families lives in Chicago, Detroit, Houston, Los Angeles, New York or Philadelphia, while one in five welfare families lived in these cities in 1973. The shift is to cities with 250,000 or less population.
- Welfare families spend an average 31 months on the rolls as opposed to 24 months in 1973.
- The average number of children in an AFDC family is down from 2.6 to 2.4.
- The percentage of welfare families headed by women has increased from 75.8 to 81. About the same proportion of women were working both years.
- Absence of a father from the home was the basis for eligibility of 83 per cent of AFDC children, up from 80 per cent.

LESLIE J. LICTENBERGER, 32, of 1358 Cumberland Circle, Elk Grove Village, is helped by authorities after she was injured Friday in a two-car accident on Il. Rte. 72 near Ned Brown Forest Preserve, Elk Grove Township. Nancy Fric, 14, of 710 Love St., Elk Grove Village, a passenger in the other car, also was hurt. Both were treated at Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

Hayworth guardian hearing delayed

A hearing on a petition to assign a guardian to Rita Hayworth on grounds the flame-haired movie queen of the 1940s is a mentally disabled alcoholic was postponed Friday until April 29. Santa Ana, Calif. Superior Court Judge Bruce Sumner put over the decision at a brief hearing which Miss Hayworth did not attend. She has been confined to a hospital for more than a month. Sumner said the 58-year-old Miss Hayworth might leave California in search of treatment for her ailment but no one connected with her case would say where she plans to go, if anywhere. The judge directed the public guardian to assist Miss Hayworth and her attorney "in facilitating (her) contemplated departure from California" but held that she must remain under medical care.

- Kensington Palace announced Friday that the Duchess of Gloucester is expecting a baby in November, the same month that Princess Anne, daughter of Queen Elizabeth, expects her first child. The Duke of Gloucester is the Queen's first cousin and the child will be their second.
- Actor Charlie Chaplin and his wife, Dona, will spend today, his 88th birthday, quietly at their Vevey, Switzerland, home. Chaplin, who was a silent screen star and comic, is confined to a wheelchair and is expected to celebrate the passing of another birthday with his favorite, a roast beef dinner.
- President Carter Friday presented the $150,000 tax-free John and Alice Tyler Ecology Award to Dr. Eugene P. Odum, a scientist at the University of Georgia. The ceremony was held in the White House cabinet room. Odum began studying ecology and its implications long before most people knew what the word meant.
- The New York Times has modified its display ads for the film "Nasty Habits," but other newspapers around the country continue depicting a Roman Catholic nun with her skirt hiked above her knees. Sister Ann Gillen, executive board member of the National Coalition of American Nuns, has been urging Roman Catholic nuns and other women to protest the promotion of the film and the movie itself for making nuns the "butt of ridicule in a particularly vicious way."
- Prime Minister Eric Gairy of Grenada, an ardent believer in UFOs, says he has the support of the Soviet Union for a United Nations investigation into the Bermuda Triangle. The triangle is off the Florida coast where many ships and planes have disappeared mysteriously. The official of Granada, a tiny independent Caribbean island nation, last year urged the United Nations to establish a psychic research institute.

price restraints — Carter said he does not intend to change his controversial SALT proposals despite renewed Soviet attacks upon them.

During the 35-minute press conference, his fifth as President, Carter defended the largely voluntary anti-inflation proposals he issued earlier Friday morning.

He called them "comprehensive and complete," and said the goal is to slash the inflation rate by 2 per cent by the end of 1979 — a one-third reduction in the current annual rate of about 6 per cent.

CARTER ALSO CONCEDED the mandatory energy conservation plan he will unveil next week will add to inflationary pressures, but denied that the higher fuel prices envisaged would add 2 or 3 per cent to the cost-of-living spiral.

The President also commented on these other issues:

- Energy: He said a new CIA study provides "disturbing" evidence that international reserves of oil and natural gas are smaller than experts thought. "I'm going to do all I can . . . to convince the American people of the truth" that a worldwide energy shortage exists and drastic conservation measures are needed, he said.
- Tax Cuts: He said he would veto any bill creating permanent, across the board income tax cuts. The Republicans plan to introduce such legislation as an alternative to the $50 rebate plan Carter scrapped Thursday.

The President spent much of the press conference — and an informal chat with reporters afterward — fielding questions on the troubled U.S.-Soviet SALT negotiations and Soviet relations in general.

"I don't consider that the SALT talks at this point have reached an impasse," Carter said. He said Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin and United States officials are conferring on preparations for resumption of formal SALT talks in Geneva in May.

The Russians rejected both his SALT proposals at last month's Moscow negotiations and said Thursday, in the Communist party newspaper Pravda, "they cannot be subject of serious discussion."

"I think the Soviet response has been predictable," Carter said. "I've been somewhat concerned lately that they've decided to go public as much as they have."

Key anti-inflation goals announced

Key features of President Carter's anti-inflation program announced Friday include:

- Voluntary wage and price restraints by labor and industry;
- A government crackdown on price fixing and monopolies;
- A reduction of federal regulation that contributes to inefficient business operations and drives up prices;
- Reform of rate-setting regulations to encourage competition within regulated industries such as airlines;
- International agreements to make commodities available at lower prices;
- No protective action by the United States government to restrain cheaper imports;
- Attempts to stabilize fluctuating food prices by setting up farmer-held food reserves.

money any sooner than you have to," he said. "I filed my federal return early because I'm getting money back from them but waited until the last minute to mail my state return because I have to pay them."

Others had personal reasons for waiting, like the Arlington Heights man who until Thursday was separated from his wife and didn't know if he should file a separate or joint return.

Some, like John Dullnigg of Arlington Heights, said, "I was just lazy."

THE HAWTHORN Woods couple, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Thil!, said they recently returned from vacation and journeyed to the Arlington Heights Post Office because it was the closest one open.

Some residents blamed their filing delay on slow accountants.

"I just got mine back from the accountant today," Maryellen Price, Arlington Heights, said.

Demetre Staiger of Arlington Heights said next year she will go back to filling out the forms herself.

"I DIDN'T GET it back from the tax man until today and found out I owed a lot of money and was charged $40 by him. Next time I'll do it myself."

Less than three hours from the filing deadline young Ed Marinier of Arlington Heights still was asking for advice about his state return.

"Last year I filed at 11:30 p.m. and this year I couldn't figure out the form. Do you know why I don't owe any federal taxes but do owe state?"

Then, sighing as he pounded the stamps in place, he said. 'I don't think anybody can figure out this mess. I'll just send it in and hope it's right."

'Blacks prime target in riot'

A race relations expert said Friday middle-class blacks as well as whites will be targets of violence unless poverty in city ghettos is eased. James W. Compton, executive director of the Chicago Urban League, told a group of young black executives that they would be prime targets in a racial clash. Compton told a luncheon audience that suburbanites too must confront the problems of the ghettos, because the sprawling suburbs would be unable to survive without healthy cities at their core. Compton said a recent Chicago Urban League report indicates the median annual income of black families rose from $5,999 in 1970 to $8,799 in 1975. In contrast income of white families increased from $9,794 to $14,268, he said.

Bilandic should win: poll

Acting Chicago Mayor Michael A. Bilandic should coast to victory in Tuesday's Democratic mayoral primary with 59 per cent of the vote, a poll conducted by a research firm showed Friday. The poll was conducted by Mid America Research for the Chicago Sun-Times and WBBM-TV from April 1 to April 8. Some 1,990 persons were contacted by telephone and 766 said they planned to vote in the Democratic primary. The raw results showed Bilandic's major rival, Alderman Roman Pucinski, with 24 per cent of the vote, state Sen. Harold Washington with 11 per cent, Edward Hanrahan with 5 per cent and the others with 1 per cent.

8,000 wait to see King Tut

More than 8,000 persons patiently waited from two to eight hours to see the King Tutankhamun exhibit at the Field Museum of Natural History Friday, the exhibit's first day in Chicago. They began converging on the museum as early as 5 a.m., gathering on steps in the early morning chill to watch the sunrise and wait for the opening 5½ hours later. There were about 25 at first, but within three hours the crowd had grown to more than 1,000 and an hour later it had nearly doubled. Officials gave out 8,174 free admission tickets by the time they decided to stop for the day at 1:20 p.m. so everyone could file through by the 9 p.m. closing time.

Police may lose $398,000

A federally funded program designed to link the Chicago police Dept. and the neighborhoods may lose $398,000 because staff members have not been hired, it was announced Friday. James O'Donnell, director of the "Beat Representative" program, said unused funds must be returned to the government June 30, and nearly half the original $800,000 grant was allocated for salaries. He said, "It takes a long time to review applications, to process them and interview applicants." O'Donnell asked for an extention on the grant, which was obtained July 1, 1976.

$7 million released to repair bridges

Gov. James R. Thompson Friday announced he is releasing more than $7 million in bond money to repair and rehabilitate 71 county and township bridges across the state. The release of bond money allows the Illinois Dept. of Transportation to begin accepting bids on the bridge improvements during its April 26 bid letting. If favorable bids are received, the work may begin this spring and summer. Emphasis has been placed on those bridges which carry school buses, emergency vehicles and agricultural equipment.

Fraternity works 'penance'

Members of Phi Gamma Delta at the University of Illinois in Champaign are trying to appease animal lovers offended by the fraternity's pig slaying ritual last month. The group plans to spruce up the Champaign County Humane Society facilities. In the two-day project April 30 and May 1, fraternity members will paint the facility, clean the pens and do yardwork. The fraternity received "quite a bit" of criticism from outraged animal lovers because of the pig, used as a display piece in a fraternity initiation dinner, was badly treated and drowned.

Ruling on use of census for tax outlay criticized

by LYNN ASINOF

More than 40 municipal attorneys Friday called for attacks on a recent court ruling prohibiting the use of special census figures for distribution of state income tax funds.

Attending a special meeting of the Illinois Municipal League, the attorneys said if the ruling is upheld their communities will lose hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Rapidly growing suburban communities would be most hurt by the ruling, which calls for the use of 1970 census figures. For example, Schaumburg, which has more than doubled its population since 1970, would lose an estimated $273,350 a year. All communities in the Northwest suburbs would lose large sums of money.

The attorneys said they are fearful that their towns also will be forced to pay back funds received because of population increases recorded in the special censuses. "We really have a very serious situation right now," said Frank Pfeifer, general counsel for the league.

JACK SIEGEL village attorney for Arlington Heights and Schaumburg, called on the league to "pursue it on three or four different fronts." Action endorsed by the attorneys includes efforts to change the legislative formula for distribution of income tax funds, the filing of suits in other counties to establish different court rulings, municipal league involvement in the case now before the Supreme Court and creation of a steering committee to develop a detailed program.

The ruling states the Illinois Dept. of Local Government Affairs had been arbitrary in setting population figures used for distribution of state income tax funds.

Two ethics orders issued by Thompson

Two executive orders aimed at strengthening state ethics disclosure requirements and prohibiting gubernatorial appointees from soliciting campaign funds were issued Friday by Gov. James R. Thompson.

The orders were issued to provide an immediate administration ethics policy, Thompson said.

Last week, Thompson proposed ethics legislation that must be passed by the General Assembly to provide permanent ethics-related law. But he said Friday the executive orders "can raise our ethical standards today . . . and show by example that we do not only support these proposals with words, but live by them."

Thompson detailed the new orders in an address to members of the Chicago Bar Assn. Friday.

A third order outlining a "code of conduct" for gubernatorial appointees will be issued shortly, Thompson said.

THE ORDERS released Friday will:

- Provide for a three-member board of ethics appointed by the governor, with the chairman to be Cordell J. Overgaard, a lawyer and member of the state board of ethics.
- Require economic disclosure from those with the authority to approve state purchases and who deal with issuing or complying with state contracts.
- Expand disclosure requirements to include investment interests, sources of income, business positions, professional or occupational licenses held and the source and value of all gifts of $50 or more.
- Prohibit all state officers and employes under the governor's jurisdiction from promising jobs, promotions or preferred treatment in exchange for political contributions.

Thompson's order on personal economic disclosure rescinds a similar 1973 order issued by former Gov. Daniel Walker that was more limited in scope.

Lack of Harper quorum cancels second meeting

The Harper College Board of Trustees meeting was canceled Friday night, the second meeting in two days that has been canceled for lack of a quorum.

Board Chairwoman Shirley Munson scheduled a meeting for 8 p.m. today to reorganize the board and seat three board members elected in last Saturday's school board election

Mrs. Munson charged Thursday that two board members, defeated last week, and another trustee are boycotting meetings to delay election of a new board chairman.

Another trustee, William Kelly, is hospitalized and trustee Natalie Weber is out of town. Defeated trustees Robert Rausch and Judith Troehler and continuing trustee Jessalyn Nicklas have failed to attend the meetings.

Mrs. Munson said Friday Rausch said he would not be available to meet until Tuesday and Mrs. Nicklas said she would not be available until Monday.

Mrs. Munson said the board members were delaying until Mrs. Weber can attend so a board chairman can be elected with more of the old board members voting.

The board chairman is traditionally the seat of power at the college. There has been speculation that the defeat of Rausch, Kelly and Mrs. Troehler would result in a realignment of power on the board.

She said Rose told her he had talked to DeLuca about the pornographic photographs of her, DeLuca and their dog that police had confiscated at their apartment.

"He told me what a perverted ----- he (DeLuca) was," Miss Columbo said. "He threw the pictures at me and went on to call me perverted, and that my lifestyle was not up to his."

She said Rose then pushed a chair into her thigh and left the room while the other policemen laughed.

SHE SAID Det. John Landers of the Elk Grove Village police entered the room and assured her that "he and Gene (Gargano, of the Cook County Sheriff's police) were going to take care of this problem . . .that if anyone could help me, and Gene could."

Gargano and Landers offered her help in drafting a statement to give police, she said. Gargano later said it she gave the statement, he would do his best to have DeLuca released, she said.

After she gave the statement, police charged her with the slayings and released DeLuca, she said. DeLuca was arrested again and charged with the murders July 17, 1976.

Vote results show teacher union clout

by HOLLY HANSON
and DIANE GRANAT

Teachers are emerging as a strong policital force in the Northwest suburbs as an increasing number of union-backed candidates have been elected to boards of education.

A week ago, union-supported candidates made clean sweeps in board elections in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, High School Dist. 21 and Wheeling Township Dist. 21 and Harper College.

Many school board candidates and union officials agree that the teachers' union endorsement is the one that counts because it is the one that delivers the votes.

DENNIS WATTS, a Dist. 54 board member who was elected a year ago with teacher support, said he would actively seek union backing if he decided to run for the board again.

"I'd like union support because I think it's necessary to win," he said. "If the teachers didn't support me, I'd re-examine my candidacy to see what was wrong with my stands on some issues."

Unions don't make campaign contributions but they may have coffees, hand out leaflets, mail fliers to union members and other teachers living in a district or have poll watchers call teachers on election day to make sure they vote.

"I don't know the exact figure (spent by the Dist. 54 union), but it's probably in the neighborhood of $300," said Bill Eliasek, chairman of the union's political action committee.

Observers said the unions gain strength for many reasons.

"Teachers are effective because they have a delivery system (for informing union members) and an identifiable constituency," said David Tomchek, bargaining agent for the Illinois Education Assn., a statewide teachers' union. He was elected to the Harper Board last week.

He said unions can rely on the same participants from year to year.

"You need continuity," he said. "Without it, you are buffeted by the winds of chance."

STUART WEINSTEIN, a union-backed candidate in Dist. 21 who won a board seat, said, "The strength of the teachers' organization is in part measured by the weakness of other organizations like caucuses which have reached a downward trend."

Weinstein said the union's advantage is that it has "greater control over its membership," whereas other groups do not have "the same inner support and commitment."

In the Harper Board race, however, board candidates and union officials said the union support was less important than the issues of a second campus, board openness and the past performance of the incumbent candidates.

"Naturally some things were done by the faculty," Faculty Senate Pres. William Miller said. "But the incumbents also did some things against themselves."

Some citizens active in school caucuses say they resent the growing influence of teachers in school board elections.

"THE TEACHERS' unions have the ability to sway the election," said Erica Cohen, chairwoman of Dist. 21's caucus campaign committee. "It should be the taxpayers' decision."

But supporters of the right of unions to endorse candidates contend that union members are taxpayers in these communities.

"Teachers are township citizens," Eliasek said, estimating that about half of Dist. 54's 900 teachers live in Schaumburg Township. "They want to exercise their right to get good candidates on the school board."

Does the union's backing in an election mean that winning candidates have to answer to the union?

Absolutely not, said several union-supported winners in last week's election.

"I made no deals, no promises," said Janet Bone, who received union support in the Harper race.

Weinstein, in Dist. 21, said, "The teachers' union in their endorsing me neither demanded nor expected me to fulfill anything more than my duties as a school board member."

"We seek nothing back for our endorcement," said Bob Mudd, president of Dist. 21's union. Mudd himself was elected to the Libertyville board last week. "If we're going to work to get them elected we just ask that they be open to teacher input."

But former Dist. 54 board member Esther Karras charged before Saturday's election that a majority of union-supported board members "can swing any decison the way (the union) wants it to go."

MRS. KARRAS, WHO was defeated in her reelection bid Saturday and was not union-supported, said a teacher-backed board "threatens to end the quality of the schools." She was endorsed by the union three years ago.

Tomchek said he doesn't agree that union-endorsed candidates are a threat to a district's budget or educational program.

"I can't think of a single candidate the union endorsed who's behaved miserably," he said. "They've ranged from honorable to outstandingly honorable."

There is a possibility the union could back candidates who are "nothing but the most stupid of union pawns, but we're wise enough to realize we'd only be hurting ourselves," Tomchek said. "You won't find the unions supporting people whose only issue is siding with the union."

Some observers say the changes made in boards because of the success of union-backed candidates has resulted in more questioning of issues and better community relations.

"I don't know if I'd correlate the change with union backing of candidates, but I see board members working together now, discussing issues rationally," Eliasek, of Dist. 54's union, said. "There's a better cohesiveness on the board and things are getting done more effectively."

Citizens caucus no longer calls all the campaign shots

and HOLLY HANSON

Is the citizens school caucus in its dying days as a major influence in school board elections?

The results of Saturday's and last year's school board races show the caucus, once the unquestioned kingmaker, may be losing its grip on determining who is elected to school boards.

More and more candidates are refusing to drop out of a race simply because they didn't receive caucus endorsement. Some of them are giving caucus candidates a real run for their money — and some of them are winning.

CANDIDATES and caucus members alike are beginning to question the role of a caucus — whether it merely should find lots of qualified candidates to run or whether it should pick a slate and then work to get the slate elected.

In Arlington Heights Dist. 25, Marlene Kraybill, an independent candidate, was elected last Saturday, marking the second consecutive year a noncaucus candidate has won.

For more than 20 years before that only caucus-backed candidates were elected in Dist. 25.

In Wheeling Township Dist. 21, Daniel Kafcas, a caucus candidate, was elected as was Stuart Weinstein, who did not seek the group's endorsement, but caucus-backed Herb Stein was defeated. Lat year only two out of three caucus candidates won.

AND IN RIVER Trails Dist. 26, where the caucus often endorses as many candidates as it believes are qualified, the only candidate who did not get caucus support this year, Richard Carter, was elected.

In Des Plaines Dist. 62 and East Maine Dist. 63, the caucuses still are getting their candidates elected, but independent candidates are making real races of the elections. Candidates who didn't get caucus endorsement used to drop out automatically.

The idea behind the caucus is that a group of concerned citizens representing civic and school organizations find board candidates, screen them, and endorse those who are qualified.

ONE OF THE PROBLEMS caucuses like Dist. 21 and Dist. 25 are facing is that after the endorsements, members are not always following the party line.

After the Dist. 21 caucus voted in early February to support Kafcas and Stein, half the members split away to campaign for Weinstein, a late entrant, said caucus chairwoman Joann Rosenbaum.

In Dist. 25 the decision on who to endorse was very close, said caucus vice chairman Richard Connel. Mrs. Kraybill was a top contender and when she didn't get enough votes for the endorsement her supporters campaigned for her anyway, he said.

IN CONTRAST to teachers' unions, most caucuses do not have much money to spend on school board campaigns, which some observers say is a reason caucus candidates are losing.

Compared with the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 union, whch spent $300 on Saturday's election, caucus funds were as low as $33 in Dist. 63 and $120 in Dist. 21. Connel said no money is spent to campaign in Dist. 25.

The problem of representation and support is a key issue in Dist. 21's caucus troubles. While Dist. 25's caucus had about 60 delegates tnd Dist. 62's had 25, only 17 persons made up the caucus in Dist. 21, comparable in size to Dist. 25.

With only seven of the 17 district schools represented "it's pathetic. It's an absolute sham," said Adrienne Rotfeld, secretary of the caucus screening committee.

Mrs. Rotfeld said she also believes that the "caucus has overstepped its bounds.

"It just has to tell you if the candidates are qualifed. I don't think it has to run a campaign."

BUT DIST. 25's Connel said not campaigning for candidates is "wishy-washy." It appears that "we don't want to take a stand. That is not really giving a true evalution of the right person for the right position."

Although how many candidates to endorse is often debated, caucus supporters say finding and screening candidates is their most important function.

"We beat the bushes to find candidates for the schol board," said Erica Cohen, chairman of the Dist. 21 caucus campaign committee. "Caucus is the only thing that does that."

Mrs. Coheen said caucus interviewing procedure also is critical. "We can't take a chance with someone getting on the board who has an axe to grind," she said.

WITH THE EXCEPTION of High School Dist. 207, races in all of the school districts that have caucuses were contested this year. Unendorsed candidates stayed with it, running independent campaigns.

Sandy Searfoss, chairwoman of the Dist. 62 caucus, said she believes other candidates should drop out after the caucus makes its endorcements.

"When you have many candidates it becomes political," she said. "Schools should be nonpolitical."

Joyce Herter, a defeated candidate for the Dist. 62 board who never sought caucus endorsement, disagrees.

"In a town this size if there are thrte positions on the board open, there should be at least six candidates," she said. "That is the democratic way."

Principals picked for Dist. 21 schools

New principals have been appointed for Poe and Sandburg schools in Wheeling Township Dist. 21 for the 1977-78 school year.

Donald Ghrist, principal of Poe School, 2800 N. Highland Ave., Arlington Heights, has been transferred to Sandburg School, 3316 N. Schoenbeck rd., Wheeling. Ghrist will replace Carl Ripley, who resigned his position as principal at Sandburg to return to teaching in Dist. 21.

Ghrist has worked in Dist. 21 since 1965 and he has been a principal since 1968. Ripley began in the district in 1969 and became a principal in 1973.

Larry Baskin, currently assistant principal at Holmes Junior High School, 221 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling, will become principal at Poe.

Baskin has worked in Dist. 21 since 1973. In 1975 he became assistant principal at Holmes.

IN OTHER BUSINESS, Dist. 21 has been selected as one of two school districts in Illinois to participate in a pilot program for the creation of an Illinois Problems Index.

Supt. Kenneth Gill, who is working with the Illinois Office of Education on the project, said the index will be used by school districts to help identify their needs and problems.

Gill said the index is being developed to help school systems examine their educational system and revitalize programs and services. The index will include a survey which districts can use to determine what residents believe are the district's problems.

Areas covered in the evaluations will include a district's curriculum, program planning and development, special education services, research and evaluation and school-community relations.

DIST 21'S PARTICIPATION in the project will include a survey of about 500 residents on their opinions of the school district, Gill said. He said the poll will probably be taken before the end of the school year.

Gill said Dist. 21 was selected to participate in the project because it has been involved in other experimental programs in the state and because Gill does consulting work for the state education office.

The project will be paid for by the state education office, Gill said. He said the only cost to Dist. 21 may be the cost of mailing questionnaires to residents.

Villages to share paramedic staffs starting July 1

A target date of July 1 has been set for the start of a new cooperative paramedic program between the Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove fire departments.

The arrangement, which is expected to save each fire department more than $75,000 annually, will place three Arlington Heights paramedics in the Buffalo Grove Fire Station at 505 W. Dundee Rd. to help staff the ambulances.

This will be the first time Buffalo Grove has paid paramedics on duty 24 hours a day. Currently the Buffalo Grove department is staffed at night by volunteers.

THE TWO AMBULANCES stationed in Buffalo Grove will respond to calls between Checker Road in Buffalo Grove and the Commonwealth Edison Co. right-of-way in Arlington Heights, about two miles south of Dundee Road.

The agreement will allow Arlington Heights to hire only three additional paramedics this year, rather than six as Fire Chief John Hayden originally requested.

THE BUFFALO GROVE Fire Dept. Inc. also will hire three more paramedics, Fire Chief Wayne Winter said.

Winter said the Buffalo Grove department will save about $75,000 through the arrangement. The additional cost of hiring three more paramedics is about $60,000, he said.

Hayden hailed the cooperative ambulance arrangement as an excellent example of intergovernmental cooperation. He predicted Arlington Heights will save about $100,000 per year.

housing in each of the next three years with 50 in existing units and 40 in newly constructed buildings, James Holzwart, administrative assistant for the village, said.

A HUD regulation permitting only 20 per cent of any building to be used for subsidized housing would still apply, he said.

THE PROPOSED changes in the housing assistanct plan will be discussed at the village board meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

The housing plan must be resubmitted to HUD officials by Friday, Holzwart said.

The village's participation in the federal program has always been controversial because of the requirement that a housing-assistance plan accompany the village's application for funds.

In 1975 the village board voted 6 to 3 not to apply for the funds and the past two years the board voted 5 to 3 to participate.

THE VILLAGE'S involvement in the federal program also was the main campaign issue in the recent municipal election with the Village Independent Coalition opposing applying for the funds.

Holzwart said the first indication that the village's current plan would be rejected came in a letter from HUD on April 5 which revealed that Arlington Heights apartment owners had been surveyed and a rental vacancy rate of 3 per cent was found. In 1976 the vacancy rate was 8.25 per cent, which allowed the village to specify that all subsidized housing should be in existing apartments with no new construction necessary. Federal regulations require a 6 per cent vacancy rate for a municipality to require all rent subsidies to be used in existing buildings.

Holzwart said a survey conducted by the village this week showed a 4.7 per cent vacancy rate.

VILLAGE PRES. James T. Ryan said the revised housing-assistance plan, as recommended by the village administration, "still represents a most modest kind of approach."

"It's still a protection from someone coming in from the outside and dictating how something is going to be done like in Elk Grove Village," Ryan said.

Plans for 62 rent-subsidized apartments in Elk Grove Village as part of a 312-unit Rohlwing Grove apartment complex have been approved by HUD despite objections from Elk Grove Village officials. The apartments, to be built by an Itasca developer, will be located at the northwest corner of Devon Avenue and Ill. Rte. 53.

Lenzis Celebrate 25th Anniversary

Albert and Helen Lenzi, of Arlington Heights, will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary on Tuesday, May 4.

Helen Katsuleas Lenzi and Albert Lenzi were both originally from the near west side of Chicago. They were married at Assumption Greek Orthodox Church in Chicago twenty-five years ago today.

The couple will be celebrating their happy occasion together with a small gathering at their home, given by their two children, Albert, Jr. and Cindy.

To Mom and Dad, from all of us,
we wish you a very Happy Anniversary

and many more happy years to come.
Love,
Albert, Cindy and James (son-in-law to be)

The way we see it

Rules needed for auto repair

A motorist whose car suddenly starts making strange sounds needs help. He doesn't need to be ripped off.

Too often, however, a trip to the car repair shop leaves the hapless automobile owner feeling that he has somehow been taken.

This suspicion is one reason why complaints of auto repair fraud are the most commonly filed complaint at the consumer fraud division of the Illinois Attorney General's office.

Measures have been introduced in the Illinois General Assembly to regulate auto repairers. These measures, which have wide bipartisan support, can help restore public faith in repairmen. It will help the public without injuring the legitimate businessman.

Good provisions of the bill include measures to guarantee consumers the right to keep or examine parts removed during repairs and to provide triple damages for actual economic damage suffered by a consumer because of fraudulant auto repair work.

There is one provision of the bill that should be changed, however. Under the proposal, auto repairers would be able to raise an estimate by up to 20 per cent without written permission from the customer. The bill would prohibit any increase above 20 per cent.

The problem with allowing such an increase is obvious. A motorist expecting to pay $600 for repairs could suddenly find himself facing a $720 bill when he picks up his car. It will be small comfort that legislation "protecting" him has limited the unpredicted increase to 20 per cent.

If a provision on estimates is to be included in a bill, the consumer should have the right to advance notice so he can decide whether he still wants the repairs done at the increased cost.

These consumer protection proposals, on the whole, will provide genuine help for the consumer facing the confusing world of auto repair. Further study is needed to refine some proposals, but the direction is correct.

A vivid example of the confusing situation that a motorist can face in the auto repair market was provided by a recent Herald survey of 13 area body shops and dealerships. Price estimates on the same car varied by as much as $200, with no two estimates the same. The figures varied despite the fact dealers used the same parts and labor price estimating books to compute costs.

Such wide variation will not be prevented by the consumer protection legislation. All that will be done will be to ensure the consumer a fair deal once he has an estimate that satisfied him.

Some good laryngitis?

Secretary of State Alan Dixon was speechless this week as citizens gathered to air their complaints.

Speechless not from amazement, but under strict doctor's orders. Dixon has laryngitis and was ordered by the doctor to keep his mouth shut.

A true politician, Dixon wasn't about to let any opportunity to make headlines pass him by so he scheduled a "listen-in."

It was one of those rare chances for Illinois residents to voice their concerns and get concise answers back via the blackboard instead of the usual bewildering political rhetoric.

Unfortunately, not many persons showed up. What surfaced were mostly words of praise from a string of supporters instead of questions from angry citizens.

We hope the outcome of Dixon's first listen-in will prompt him to schedule a few more where other citizens can get a shot at him, even after his voice returns.

And if a few other office holders were silenced by the virus that took Dixon's voice, maybe we would really get a chance to clear the air.

Improve siren system

The five Northwest suburban communities which have been trying to coordinate their tornado siren systems are studying another step in that direction — having all the sirens set off from a central location.

Cost studies are under way on the project, which involves Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village and Buffalo Grove. We hope the studies show the project is feasible.

At present, the five communities have set up a system to coordinate their warning sirens. When one community sets off its siren, others are supposed to follow suit.

The problem which remains is that the sirens don't go off at one time, but instead go off one at a time for several minutes.

That confuses people who live between communities or any other place where they can hear more than one siren.

The proposed plan would set off the sirens in all five communities simultaneously from the Central Dispatch Center in Arlington Heights. Delays would be eliminated.

That would help to clear up the confusion many residents feel during tornado season.

For starters I recommend laryngitis once a month.

Your editorial of April 13 in The Herald which states, "We strongly endorse Trustee Otis Hedlund, for village president" leaves me close to speechless. I am very angry because of your endorsement.

You state that "Otis Hedlund, has a proven record of honesty and excellence in government." Where?

He has clouded more issues concerning village appointments and overspending. He refused to resign from an appointed office when he campaigned for village trustee. This was a violation of the ethics law. He had abused his position as village trustee in regard to the Bicentennial Commission. In my humble opinion, this kind of behavior does not show his honesty or excellence in government work.

There are four candidates running for the office of village president.

The Herald would do the village a greater service if they only stated the facts and refrained from endorsement of candidates for local office.

WE DO NOT agree with The Herald statement that Palatine Trustee James L. Shaw always considers the human side of issues first when rendering a decision.

As Palatine animal safety commissioner, James Shaw directed the removal on Feb. 24, 1976, of our Alsatian Shepherd dog, Kasey. A veterinarian, a kennel owner, a dog trainer, and nearly 100 other persons who had had contact with the dog testified in writing that in no way was the dog vicious. Since Feb. 1976 Kasey has lived with a non-Palatine family of two adults and two little children heretofore strangers to Kasey. After 14 months the family states, "We love Kasey; she is very well behaved. She runs freely without incident. Our neighbors care for her when we are away. She is a real joy to us."

We believe Mr. Shaw should have deeply questioned the genuineness and validity of the complaint against the dog. The hearing seemed pre-organized by others than those delegated the task of rendering final decision. We do not feel that Mr. Shaw exercised sincere humane judgement in this case.

Laseke's service draws negative comment

One Saturday this past January Laseke, the garbage contractor in Arlington Heights, failed to collect my garbage. Since this had occurred before, I decided to complain. When I did so, that morning, the woman who answered checked with the driver by radio. He insisted that I must have taken out my garbage after the pick up. I explained that the garbage had been out the night before, but this did not satisfy Laseke. They refused to return, stating that if I wished to register a further complaint or to refuse to pay for that day's service I should write to their general manager. I deducted 73 cents from my next payment and sent my check with an explanatory letter to the general manager.

He returned my check with a letter which stated that the driver must have been right and insisted that I pay the full amount. I wrote back reaffirming my position, but sent the full amount, noting that 73 cents was too little to fight over.

Recently my garbage was again left at my house. This time I had placed it at the curb, rather than in front of my garage as I had the previous time. I again phoned to complain. I was told that when the company could talk to the driver they would phone back. Two hours later, having received no call, I phoned again. Miraculously, they had just then spoken to the driver who indicated that he had no notation in his log book, and must simply have missed my house. I was told they would make the pick up on Monday. I indicated this would not be satisfactory and was told nothing else could be done. I plan to again deduct 73 cents from my next bill as a protest, but expect a reaction comparable to the last time.

Surely these are not unique incidents. The problem is that Laseke has no competition. Their attitude is disgusting. We are not getting the service we are paying for. It's time for a change.

'Middle class could wield power'

The return of John Coughlin to Channel 2 News as weatherman should be a good lesson to the middle class American taxpayer.

Channel 2 replaced Coughlin with a man who just did not fit in. So many of their viewers wrote letters complaining about his replacement, that the studio had to hire a full-time employe just to answer the mail. The station did not want to return Coughlin to his rightful place and admit their mistake, but the pressure was so great that the viewers finally won out.

The point I am trying to make is, that if the middle class taxpayers, who bear the biggest burden of income taxes and receive the least amount of benefits, would all stick together, form groups and write letters, the politicians would soon see "the writing on the wall" and change some of the unjust laws about income tax. If it meant their jobs, they would do something pronto. The middle class is the largest group and pays the most money, yet we just sit back and let the politicians tax us and spend our money, any way they wish. How about the rest of us learning a lesson from Channel 2?

Words of praise

I want to send you "thanks" from the Extension Service councils and staff for the fine editorial Paddock Publications carried on June 30, 1976.

It set forth in a very explicit manner the types of programs we are doing and your recommendation that the Cook County Board of Commissioners give serious thought to funding our budget at the requested $150,000 level.

The County Board budget passed in February. The Extension Service was funded for $140,000 or an increase of $100,000. I am sure the excellent editorial support we received from your paper helped greatly in getting this increase in funds.

Do only 58 U.S. Senators favor rights?

In a divided government, it's a pretty good idea to let the world know from time to time that there are some things America is not divided on.

To avoid any misunderstanding on the eve of the new secretary of state's flight to Moscow, a majority of the Senate joined in a letter of support for Jimmy Carter's "strong commitment to human rights and individual freedom." It was not only a welcome show of support for the President on an all-important issue but a happy sign that American foreign policy has moved into the post-Kissinger phase. It is no longer forbidden to mention American ideals on the eve of important meetings with powerful foreigners.

The letter was signed by 58 senators. It was no surprise to find that it carried the names of longtime supporters of human rights like Hubert Humphrey and Scoop Jackson. The letter even attracted some signatories whose historic connection with issues of human rights in their own states might give rise to a piquant smile — like Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Herman Talmadge of Georgia.

ONE CAN HOPE this Message-to-Brezhnev might signal something to them about matters closer to home. The letter even collected the signature of Chuck Percy, who is usually lukewarm — about almost everything.

The only disappointing aspect of the letter was that it carried the names of only 58 senators. One wonders why. And hopes that it was only an oversight that will be corrected. After all, it's not as though the modern-day prose of the letter said anything really lasting, radical and transforming — like the Declaration of Independence. One wonders sometimes if that document's uncompromising text — about all men being created equal, and the just powers of government being derived from the consent of the governed — could draw 58 signatures in today's Senate.

THE DECISION no longer to serve hard liquor at the White House must have cheered the shade of William Jennings Bryan and certainly seems to have entertained Rosalynn Carter, who reports that it's funny to watch those of her guests who want a cocktail before dinner "squirm." It seems to have added a whole new dimension to entertainment at the White House, at least for the First Lady.

Mrs. Carter's next step in White House banquets, banning food, is sure to be equally amusing. If she thought it fun to watch guests squirm at the news that there would be no toddies before dinner, imagine the gyrations when they hear there's no dinner. (Although that might not have pleased Mr. Bryan, whose picture would seem to indicate some talent as a trencherman.)

May I suggest that the first delegation treated to the new policy be a French one. It would be a fitting riposte to Concorde, the Abu Daoud affair and a few of the things Chuck de Gaulle used to say. Just don't mention Lafayette.

THE AMERICAN AMBASSADOR to the United Nations now has apologized for his latest Andy Youngism — an offhand remark (almost all of Young's sound that way) to the effect that Britain "almost invented racism." Ambassador Young revealed that he had apologized to the British ambassador, Ivor Richard, and asked the Briton to reprimand him "whenever I over-extend myself."

But with an assignment like that, when will the British ambassador have time to get any other work done?

When Fannie Lou Hamer was buried at Ruleville, Mississippi, the clearest sign of how much she and others like her had accomplished was a message from the Mississippi legislature praising her stand for human rights. Such praise would have been unimaginable in the bad old days when Mrs. Hamer used the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party and any other vehicle she could find to fight racial injustice.

THAT MISSISSIPPI'S legislature, and the mayor of Ruleville, can now recognize Mrs. Hamer as the force for peace she was indicates how far the revolution in attitudes has come and how quickly.

The whole South has gone through such a change, peaceably by and large. The career of Fannie Lou Hamer is only one example among millions of what a revolutionary, progressive society America still is. Terms like Revolutionary and Progressive may have been captured by the tyrannies of the world for the moment, but it is America where the reality seems always to be coming into being.

Holding 'just a moment'

Dorothy Meyer

Before I learned to drive a few years ago, I used to say that if I could retreive all the time I spent waiting for one of the family to pick me up I'd be only 16 years old.

Since then I've decided I'd rather have back all the time I've spent with a telephone in my hand after someone on the other end has said, "Just a moment, pleeyuzz."

Waiting for a ride home was but a blink of the eye compared to that.

AT HOME I HAVE put up my hair, repreatedly cleaned the cabinet nearest the phone and washed the two left windows over the sink at least twice a week — all while holding a comatose phone for "just a moment."

At the office I have filed everything within reach including my fingernails, conducted a seminar on telephone courtesy for my coworkers and suggested to the local paramedics that the person on the other end of the line might be having an attack of terminal lethargy.

One day this week I fell asleep with the phone in my hand and almost got fired. What saved my skin was a boss who had just called a government office.

ALTHOUGH LARGE department stores run a close second, government offices are 'way up there in their talent for driving you nuts.

Last year I had occasion to call a regional office of the state and although I didn't get "just a moment, pleeyuzz" I did get a lot of "Will you hold?"

After the fifth time I said, "Will I hold what," but it was too late because I already had that dead sound that makes you wonder if it's possible to be rendered invisible over the phone. Occasionally there'd be a clock or a buzz or the sound of far-away voices, but mostly there was silence. Except when I got the dial tone that meant I had been disconnected.

Finally I got so disconnected that when somebody said, "May I help you," I was momentarily struck dumb. Of course, momentarily is much too long when the waiting is on the other end, so I was disconnected again.

THE SIXTH TIME I got through the will-you-holds, clicks, deadnesses and hums, somebody suddenly said, "Are you waiting," and I said, "Yeah, I couldn't think of anything else to do." Disconnect.

Actually, I shouldn't have been so persistent about getting through to the department I wanted. I had previously obtained some financial aid for a person in need who didn't need as much as he got. All we wanted to do was ask if there was some way to REDUCE the amount of state aid to this person.

When I finally had the opportunity to state the case, all I got was a lot of hysterical laughter until a supervisor came on the line and said, "What are you, some kind of subversive? I ought to report you, what's your social security number?"

And I said, "Just a moment, pleeyuzz."

As far as I know, they're still waiting.

Litton cited for false defense contract claims

Rickover pushed fraud indictment

Watch on Washington

WASHINGTON, D.C. — It was the tenacity of Admiral Hyman G. Rickover more than anything else that resulted in the recent indictment of Litton Industries on charges of filing a fraudulent claim for $37 million on a contract to build three nuclear submarines.

There are those who believe that the indictment on April 6 was in some manner linked to Admiral Rickover's visit with President Carter in the White House a few weeks earlier and extended conversations with Attorney General Griffin Bell at the Justice Department.

Regardless of the relationship of those Rickover talks and the specific indictment of Litton Industries, the filing of criminal charges against a major national defense contractor is what Admiral Rickover has been prescribing for years to put a stop to the waste of billions of dollars.

AS EARLY AS DECEMBER, 1973, Admiral Rickover was urging a Justice Department investigation of what he then called the "false and fraudulent" claims filed by Litton's subsidiary, Ingalls Nuclear Shipbuilding of Pascagoula, Miss.

In testimony before the Joint Economic Subcommittee, Rickover criticized Ingalls and Litton for the false and fraudulent representations they had given the Navy to support a claim for $37 million in additional money.

The subcommittee chairman, Senator William Proxmire (Dem., Wis.) and his investigators already had come up with sufficient information to conclude that the 42-page support document was as "false, ficticious and fraudulent" as a federal grand jury in Alexandria, Va., decided in the recent indictment.

That was more than three years ago, and many Attorneys General and Defense Secretaries have come and gone since them with varying degrees of interest in aggressive prosecution and only a limited interest in cracking down on the multi-billion-dollar frauds of the big defense industries.

THE UNIQUE MILITARY position of Admiral Rickover as the long-time director of the nuclear submarine fleet gave him the technical knowledge and the long tenure in his job to outlast the defense industry lobbyists.

The Justice Department finally took the case to the federal grand jury. Several grand juries heard witnesses on the fraudulent Litton documents, but nothing happened and Chairman Proxmire and Admiral Rickover were frustrated but not silent.

The fact that Rickover was Jimmy Carter's mentor in the nuclear Navy, and a man Carter admired, brought a much publicized invitation for a visit to the White House for lunch on Saturday, Feb. 5.

While there has been no report on their discussions, it is almost certain that the talks turned to the nuclear submarine program. And it is doubtful if President Carter or anyone else could have kept the outspoken submarine expert from saying what has been on the top of his mind about the need to bring a criminal case against a major defense industry to demonstrate that frauds would not continue to pay.

ON MARCH 24, Admiral Rickover appeared before the House Appropriations subcommittee with a repetition of his public plea for stern action in dealing with "unfounded and inflated" claims by shipbuilding companies.

The 76-year-old admiral declared that some firms still are exploiting the claim process to assure a fat profit and that the Navy has been virtually powerless to act.

Rickover at that time suggested that companies be required to certify that claims are current, complete and accurate, and that they not be permitted to change claims once filed. He also recommended that there be aggressive action to pinpoint the identity of false claimants, and that they be subjected to criminal prosecution and legal disbarment.

WHILE NEITHER President Carter nor Admiral Rickover is talking about their conversations, it is interesting to speculate that in another meeting on April 8 they were discussing the possibility of more effective actions to discourage the frauds and misrepresentations that have been a drain of billions from the defense budget.

If that is what President Carter is up to, he couldn't have found a better guide to corruption and waste.

Admiral Rickover, who has been frustrated about the lack of a follow-through on his complaints, now is in a position to influence action against the massive defense frauds.

A hospital's money-back guarantee

by TOM TIEDE

FINDLAY, Ohio — Three years ago Blanchard Valley Hospital was in deep distress. It had been sued for negligence thrice in 24 months, once for a stinging $150,000, and there was administrative worry that the worst was yet to come. Something had to be done. Something was: the hospital began to guarantee its services.

Guaranteed medical care? Blanchard Valley physicians scoffed at the notion, the hospital board trembled with apprehension, but the idea took root. Proponents argued that if services were guaranteed staff efficiency would naturally increase; besides, patients receiving in-house rebates for complaints would be less likely to run to court.

Thus late in 1974 the deed was done. Hospital customers began receiving a printed promise that most hospital services were henceforth on a money back guarantee. Though the institution could not assure "the results of your medical care . . . we do guarantee that the services you receive will be performed to your satisfaction."

AND SO THEY ARE. Today Blanchard Valley's nursing, food, maid and ancillary services must meet standards established by patients. If not, and if the consumer notifies the hospital within 24 hours of service execution, accounts are credited with "an appropriate amount which represents the cost of the service in question."

It's not only revolutionaly, it's working. Hospital administrator William Ruse, who initiated the first-in-the-nation procedure, says that early fears of "hordes of complaining patients" were fortunately exaggerated. Ruse says Blanchard has had three dozen complaints in two and a half years, and less than $400 has been rebated.

Many complainants have not even bothered asking for compensation. A patient who said her medication did not work, and that she was not allowed enough sleep, was satisfied just to be able to formalize her gripes. She also said her doctor was curt, and she was not getting any better, but she felt no need to invoke the guarantee.

EVEN WHEN PATIENTS have asked for money back, the amounts have been small. The largest rebate to date was $70 for a patient who said she was medicated for surgery before the consent papers were completed. Otherwise there has been a $2 rebate to cover a hair found in a food tray; and $5.49 was given a patient who had an inoperable TV.

A few of the complaints have been questionable. A man with a sunburn said it was a drug reaction, and had to be given $20. Another patient got $1.60 for a meal that was a few minutes late. Generally, however, the grumps have been legitimate; only one request for rebate has been turned dowa, that one filed a month after the violation.

Ruse says the moderate reaction of patients is no surprise to him. "People aren't as bad as we may fear. I think they know we've opened up communications with them, and that we are trying to do everything we can to satisfy them." A mutual trust has therefore been created, Ruse adds; each side agrees not to gouge the other.

THE TRUST HAS not been developed solely because of the guaranteed service program. In the name of better communications Ruse has also instituted a plan to humanize patients. The appendectomy in room 335 is now Mr. Smith, and the coronary in the emergency ward has become Mrs. Jones. Isolated numbers sue, Ruse believes, people don't.

What's more, Blanchard Valley's patient communications are kept open around the clock. Each customer has a phone, called the "Aspirin Line," and is invited to call any staff member or administrator for any reason at any time. Ruse once got a 3 a.m. buzz from a patient who wanted to dictate a church bulletin; a stenographer was dispatched.

Ruse admits that some hospital employes are less than delighted with the early morning calls. He says the doctors especially have been slow to accept the new order of things — "They still think it's a gimmick." Some nurses also grumble, arguing that they can't be all things to all patients and shouldn't be expected to be.

YET RUSE HAS kept the lid on staff rebellion by insuring that employes will profit from greater efficiency. Twelve thousand dollars is budgeted each year for complaint rebates, and the unused portion is then divided equally for staff bonuses. So far the staff has shared $24,000; not riches, but formerly there were no bonuses at all.

This is not to say that all is completely smooth at Blanchard Valley. X-rays of left femurs can still be mistaken for right. Then there is the 67-year-old woman who is said to have been mistakenly wheeled into pediatrics. But in 29 months of guaranteed service Ruse says he's been free of malpractice suits; who could sue a nice place like this?

Consistent zoning needed

As an interested homeowner in Arlington Heights, I'm wondering what's going on within the Arlington Heights planning mechanism. How can the village consider approving the Luther Village project when it knows full well it parallels the Lincoln Green project for low-income housing.

Is Arlington Heights saying it will break its apartment policy for one group but not for another? Is the village ready to sacrifice its victory with Lincoln Green by approving an ill-conceived project such as Luther Village?

I certainly hope the village trustees will give this matter serious thoughts as it affects all residents in Arlington Heights.

Waterway project partially revived

President Carter has removed a $1.8 billion southern waterway project from his stop-work list and granted partial reprieve to a massive southwestern dam project, legislators said Friday. Carter told a news conference he would start informing governors and members of Congress this weekend of his waterway decisions. Soon after that, Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., said the White House had notified him Carter would spare the $1.8 billion Tennessee-Tombigbee waterway — a 235-mile canal and river-lock project backed by the governors of Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi and Kentucky, and opposed by environmentalists. Carter's decision means federal funding will continue for the so-called Tenn-Tom project. Mississippi environmentalist Randall Grace, a longtime opponent of Tenn-Tom, said he believed Carter had buckled to "the obvious political clout that envelops the waterway."

FAA orders jet inspections

The Federal Aviation Administration said Friday it has ordered U.S. airlines to inspect flight controls on all Lockheed L1011 jumbo jets because of a control failure Tuesday that forced one of them to make an emergency landing. An FAA spokesman said the incident that touched off the inspection order — a broken control cable and a jammed bearing — occurred aboard a Delta Airlines jet flying from San Diego to Los Angeles. There are 79 L1011s registered to U.S. airlines. After the Delta jet took off from San Diego, the spokesman said, the pilot found he could not use the control to push down the plane's nose and fly level. "The pilot declared an emergency when he landed at Los Angeles," the spokesman said. That procedure, normal in the case of control difficulties, gave the Delta jet priority for a landing with minimum maneuvering and alerted airport fire and rescue crews to stand by. The landing went smoothly.

Emmy telecast canceled

The annual Emmy telecast for achievements in TV was canceled Friday by NBC as the result of a feud within the television academy that caused top West Coast members to refuse to participate in the program. The decision meant there would be no Emmy broadcast in 1977. Officials of NBC notified the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences that their plans for an Emmy show did not measure up to contractual arrangements.

Vietnam-U.S. talks May 3

The State Dept. confirmed Friday that the United States and Vietnam will begin high level talks in Paris on May 3. Agreement was reached late Thursday on the start of talks, a department spokesman said. "The United States will be represented by assistant Sec. of State (for East Asia and Pacific affairs) Richard Holbrooke. The Vietnamese negotiator has not yet been named." The spokesman said the subject of the talks would be normalization of U.S.-Vietnamese relations. Hanoi paved the way for the diplomatic talks by cordially receiving a presidential delegation last month and promising to pass along all the information it could find on U.S. servicemen still listed as Missing in Action in Southeast Asia.

Japanese railway workers on strike

Workers for 10 leading private railways struck at dawn today in Japan's three largest cities in a walkout expected to be joined Sunday by workers of Japan's government-operated railway system. Labor union leaders ordered the workers in Tokyo, Osaka and Kyushu to walk off their jobs for 48 hours following the collapse of unofficial talks with management. Strikes by four million public and private workers had already paralyzed long-distance and local trains on the Japanese National Railways for 24 hours on Friday, stranding millions. Private railway officials said an estimated 16 million persons are expected to be inconvenienced by today's strike alone and millions more on Sunday.

Spain schedules free election

The government of Premier Adolfo Suarez Friday set the date of Spain's first free elections in 41 years for June 15. The date was announced at the end of a cabinet meeting in which the government also dealt with the political crisis sparked by the legalization of the Communist Party six days ago. The elections will be for a Western-style parliament consisting of a 350-seat congress of deputies and a 247-member senate. All major political parties, including the Communists and groups representing the ideology of the late dictator Francisco Franco, will field candidates. The elections were made possible by the approval, with a 92 per cent majority, of democratic reforms in a referendum last Dec. 15. The balloting will be exactly six months after the referendum, and 19 months after Franco's death.The government met against a background of new political violence and strikes. Labor sources said more than 200,000 workers staged strikes throughout the nation to protest the government's economic policies, an 8 per cent unemploymeent rate and more than 20 per cent inflation.

Newspaper seized by army

The army in Buenos Aires, Argentina late Friday announced the arrest of Jacobo Timerman, the publisher of La Opinion newspaper, who was seized at his home by plainclothes agents investigating the Graiver financial scandal. In a terse military communique, the Buenos Aires area military command said "The publisher of La Opinion, Mr. Jacobo Timerman, has been at the disposition of military authorities in relation to the investigation of the Graiver case." The scandal involves the international financial manipulations of Argentine banker David Graiver whose reported death in a private plane crash in Mexico on Aug. 7, 1976, led to the collapse of American Bank & Trust Co. in New York. Rumors persist that Graiver still is alive, and authorities in the United States and Europe reporedly are looking for him. The one-sentence communique, the only official word on the fate of Timerman, 54, made no mention of Enrique Jara, 36, the newspaper's assistant publisher who also was seized according to Timerman family sources.

Japanese blamed for impasse

Soviet Fishery Minister Alexander Ishkov Friday blamed the deadlock in fishing negotiations with Japan on the Japanese refusal to accept "rules and conditions" already in operation. Talks between Ishkov and Japanese Agriculture-Forestry Minister Zenko Suzuki recessed Thursday. Japanese sources said they are deadlocked over conflicting claims to the Kurile Islands.

6-month probation given networks to cut violence

by DIANE MERMIGAS

The National Parent-Teachers Assn. Friday put television networks on a six-month probation to reduce the amount of "gratuitous television violence" it contends makes children more aggressive, prone to commit violent acts, desensitized and paranoid.

Organization officials said Friday during a press conference at Chicago's Bismarck Hotel that their charges can be substantiated by testimony given earlier this year during eight nationwide public hearings conducted by the PTA on objectionable television.

The group has threatened to boycott programs, pressure television sponsors and executives, and possibly take legal action if its First Action Plan to reduce television violence is ignored.

CAROL KIMMEL, National PTA president, said parents and the networks must share the responsibility of improving the quality of television programming. "The burden of proof that program content is not injurious lies with the broadcaster and not the public," she said.

The PTA plan calls for a massive letter-writing campaign during the next six months to television sponsors and executives whose names and addresses the organization will distribute to members.

The PTA will train its members in ways of monitoring the programs that they and their children watch. PTA members will work to develop an identification code for television shows much like the feature film rating systems.

THE ORGANIZATION also plans to conduct nationwide workshops to teach its members how to petition the Federal Communications Commission for the denial of broadcast license renewals to local stations that do not attempt to decrease television violence.

Sooner or later that new yard must be landscaped

by MARY B. GOOD
(First of two parts)

Most homeowners put every dollar they can into the purchase of a new home to keep down mortgage payments, and rightly so. But it leaves them strapped, with little money left for much else, least of all landscaping.

But unless the new homeowner plans to live in isolation or doesn't care if he is the neighborhood eyesore king, sooner or later he's going to have to consider fixing up the mess outside.

While recovering from the shock of putting up the house, decide what you expect from your home grounds.

Do you want a patio flower area in which to sit and relax, a nice lawn, an orchard? Need a vegetable garden — how large?

HAVE CHILDREN? How much yard will they need for a play area? Do you have a view that needs screening of a service area, dog house, trash disposal? Do you need a privacy shield from the street?

All these questions bring you to the ultimate decision: should you pay to have someone landscape your home or do it yourself?

Some persons figure that they are already in debt up to their eyeballs so what's the difference? A complete, professional landscape job is expensive-- can run into the thousands of dollars — but the homeowner can stagger the work over two or three years to save money.

If your place is large, consult a good landscape architect. (You can certainly afford him if you could afford the large home.) Hiring the pro will avoid making serious mistakes — mistakes that could cost you more than the landscaper's fee. After the landscape architect designs your plan, be sure to get three estimates from landscape firms who will bid to put in the plants.

If you opt for do-it-yourself, a definite long-range master landscape plan on paper is a must. An important factor in the decision to do-it-yourself is whether you have any gardening experience.

JOIN A LOCAL garden club, where you have access to periodic landscape design study courses through the Garden Club of Illinois (Next one is May 4 to 6 at Morton Arboretum, Lisle. Included among the topics is a session on elements of architectural design, site design and ground form, and tips from prominent landscape architect Ralph Synnestvedt Jr. of Glenview.)

Good landscape books are available on loan from the Garden Club of Illinois, 36 S. Wabash, Chicago.

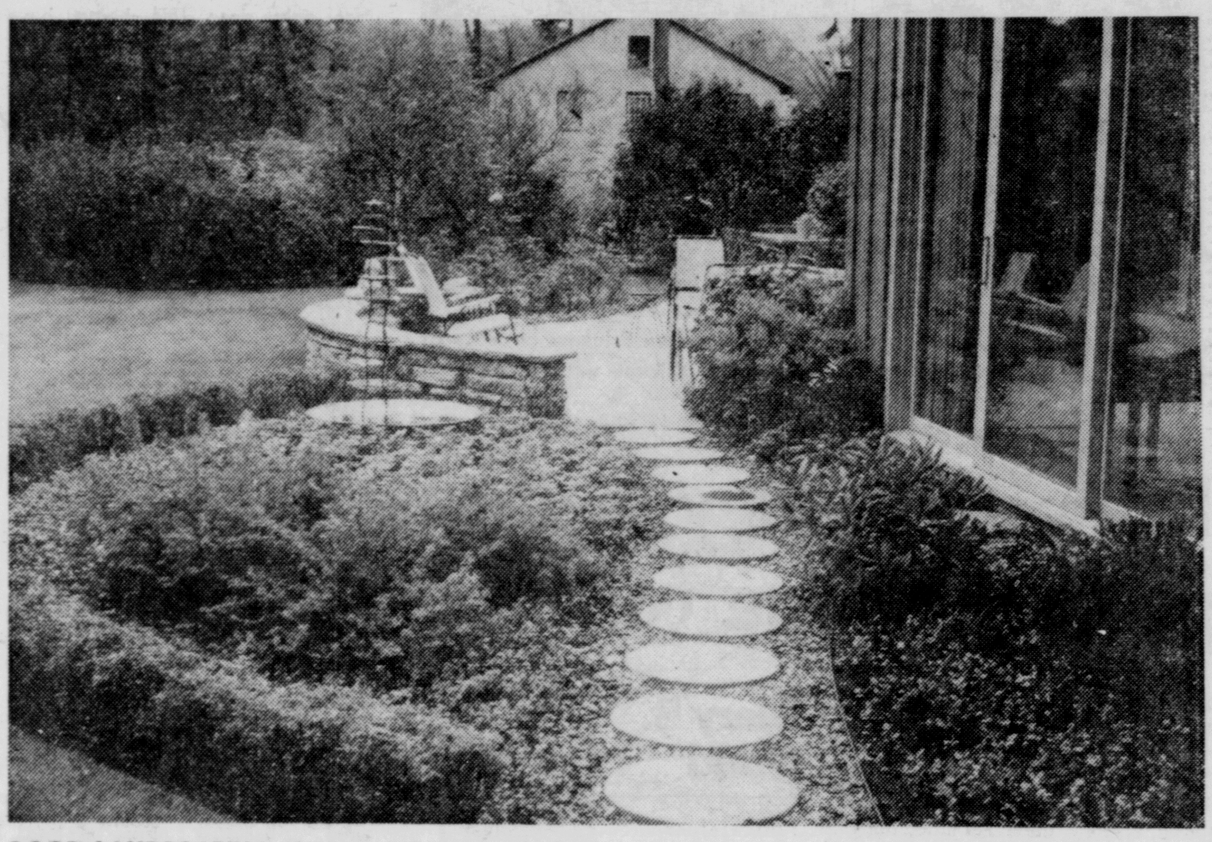
Read up on landscaping to save time, money and frazzled nerves. Some suggested reading includes: "Budget Landscaping" by Charlton B. Lees (Holt Publishing); "Landscaping Your Home" by William R. Nelson (University of Illinois Press); "Art of Home Landscaping" by Garrett Eckbo (McGraw-Hill).

LOCAL NURSERIES know which plants grow best in the Chicagoland area. They understand the cultural requirements of different species, if you don't, and they can determine whether your soil is suitable for the plants you find desirable. (Commercial nursery catalogs are a gold mine of information.) Tree nurseries, as well as garden centers and landscapers, are good sources to tap for free, professional advice.

Roy Klehm, president of Charles Klehm and Son Nursery, Arlington Heights, said that most good nurseries will prepare a professional landscape plan for the homeowner at no charge, if the homeowner buys the plants there.

Far too few persons take advantage of the free advice available from their state university landscape specialist. The Universty of Illinois horticultural Extension agent in this area, James Fizzell, is at 4200 W. Euclid, Rolling Meadows, (phone 991-1160) and gives advice to the homeowner who needs landscaping help.

Next week: Carrying out your plans.



GOOD LANDSCAPING may require years of planning for new home owners strapped with heavy mortgages. But with a little ingenuity and free advice from nurseries and area specialists, a house and yard can be enchanced with lots of do-it-yourself effort. Photo by Ralph Synnestvedt.

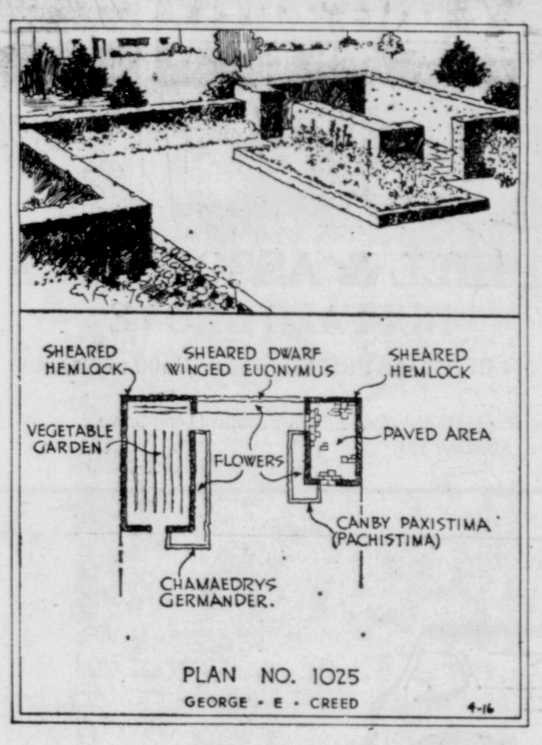
Hedges help define property lines

George Creed

It's your landscape

The first use of hedges by man probably occurred thousands of years ago when our ancestors settled down to agrarian forms of living. To protect their houses and gardens from the depredations of wild beasts, keep their domestic animals from wandering and mark the limits of their property, they surrounded themselves with thorny shrubs and trees. Sometimes these were planted, but often they were simply tree limbs and trunks thrust into the ground and interwoven with pliant vines. Crude barriers of thorns and cactus plans are still found in many lands today.

After all these centuries, we still use hedges for some of the same reasons our early forebearers did. We no longer plant them to keep out wild beasts, but we often place them on our property lines to define property limits. And we occasionally use them to discourage our neighbor's friendly dog from digging in our garden.



IN THE ACCOMPANYING plan, hedges are shown in different heights and composed of several species of plants.The very low hedges made of Chamaedrys Germander (Teucrium) and Canby Paxistima are used to define the outlines of the flower beds. (The old name of Paxistima was Pachistima and both names are shown on the plan.)

The taller hedges of hemlock and euonymus enclose a vegetable garden and paved area, mark the limits of property and serve as backgrounds for flowers. Though it isn't often done, you could use hedges to divide your backyard into a whole series of outdoor "living rooms."

All of the hedges in this plan are clipped and rigid in outline. Hedges treated in this way are acceptable in almost any situation, but they are especially suitable where a feeling of formality is desired, as in a development with a definite pattern such as a formal garden.

ANY OF THE shrubs (and trees, in the case of hemlock) shown here may be grown informally and left unpruned. There is a host of other plants, many flowering, that may be used as formal or informal hedges.

In modern practice, hedges often serve no real function and are planed for aesthetic appeal alone; a well kept hedge can be an attraction in itself.

BREWER'S BARLEY is available to Wisconsin coffee drinkers because of Ed Petrowski's efforts to provide his senior citizens with a low-cost version of the brew.

Brewer's barley makes palate-pleasing coffee

Mary B. Good

Potting shed

As coffee prices skyrocket to $3.69 a pound and up, consumers are considering all kinds of substitutes.

Celestial Seasonings of Boulder, Colo., offers Roastaroma Mocha Spice, made of dandelion root, carob, spices, chicory, malt and other things. Morning Thunder is a concoction of black tea and a South African herb, yerba mate.

In Orlando, Fla., a businessman is marketing an herbal mix, Bravo, said to taste like supermarket instant and made partly from common weeds.

But in Wisconsin there is a coffee substitute that tastes like coffee. Brewer's barley coffee is all the rage in the Northwoods since it costs just 49 cents a pound.

THE RAGE started a month ago when Ed Petrowski, a Woodruff, Wis., man who uses six pounds of coffee a week at the senior citizens center he operates, decided he had to find a substitute for his waning coffee reserves. Though some said it couldn't be done, Ed maintains separate quarters for eight tenants and feeds them three wholesome meals a day, charging only $225 a month, and still makes ends meet.

Ed's secret is that he is a very sharp comparison shopper, he buys in bulk, wholesale, gets his meat at a meat processing plant and uses his inherent ingenuity for everything he tackles.

When Ed Told his wife, Jeanne, that he was buying 100 pounds of coffee for the center, her brain computed the bill at current coffee prices. "Wow," she thought "that will put a dent in our cash reserve!"

BUT WHEN HE CAME home with the 100 pounds of "coffee" and a bill for only $29, Jeanne was miffed.

The always inventive Petrowski, 57, had remembered brewing barley coffee as a boy. A retired baker with 35 years in the business, Ed showed his wife how to toast the barley, put it in a blender and brew it just like regular coffee. "I'll go along with the gag" was her first reaction.

But the people at their senior citizens center loved it. I dropped in a few days ago, coffee cup in hand, to try Ed's brew. I've been drinking it every since. Ed convinced a grocery in Minocqua (where I live) to carry it, offering the market a 72-pound bag for starters. The grocery in turn packaged it and sold it for 49 cents a pound. Now the supermarket can't keep the coffee on the shelves, and the Petrowskis have been getting hundreds of calls about barley coffee.

NOW WHAT ED uses is brewer's barley. There is a big difference between brewer's barley and seed barley for planting, or barley used in soup. Brewer's barley is unfumigated, unrefined, unmilled. Fumigated seed barley is not fit for human consumption, but brewer's barley is.

The process for making brewer's barley coffee is like this: Spread the barley thinly on a cookie sheet and place in a 350-degree oven for 45 minutes to an hour until it turns dark brown. Turn the barley every 10 minutes or so to prevent burning. When it is a nice coffee color, remove and run through a coffee grinder or blender, one cup at a time. Then brew as you would regular coffee in whatever kind of coffeemaker you use.

Brewer's barley coffee may be used straight (one-third cup roasted, blended brewer's barley coffee for a 12-cup pot). Or it may be mixed, two or three measures of brewer's barley to one measure of coffee. Most experiment to see how they like it best.

ADVANTAGES OF straight brewer's barley are many: no caffeine, no grounds or stains in the cup, no strong bitter flavor. It's cheap, has food value, vitamins and protein, is non-addictive and, personally, I can't tell the difference between brewer's barley coffee and the kind Juan Valdez plucks from trees in Colombia.

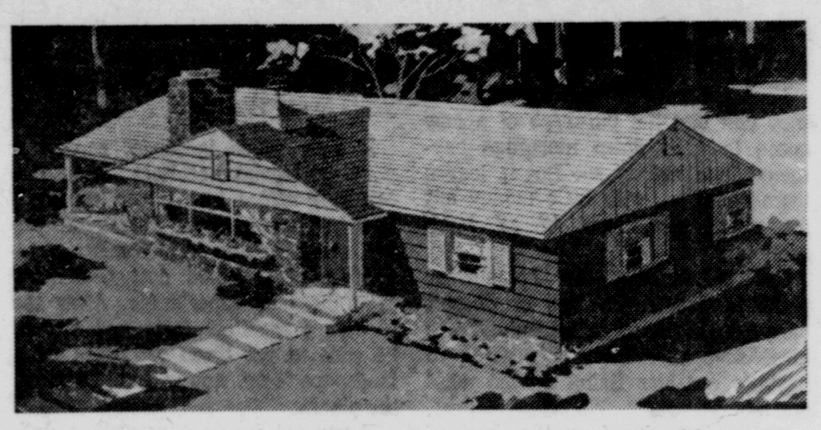
I have a feeling brewer's barley coffee is going to take off. If your local supermarket doesn't carry it, all you need is a source for the brewer's barley and then one inquiring consumer to tell his supermarket manager about it.

Six rooms at modest cost

Charming house also practical

Jean-Paul Saint-Michel

Home of your own



Not only does this house have charm, it has an exterior design that makes it the envy of the neighborhood and belies its size. The square footage of the plan is just about the minimum for a three-bedroom, six-room house which keeps its cost at a modest level. The room arrangement offers more than living practicability, for the space has been so arranged that its efficiency can challenge a home twice the floor area.

A small foyer is provided at the main front entrance with another front access from the dining room.

THE LIVING ROOM is not small, but its size is enhanced by the open flow into the dining room. The room has a log-burning fireplace, the end of which forms an interesting stone corner between the two rooms.

The modest-sized dining room boasts two exterior walls of windows which make it appear more spacious.

That ever-popular "U"-shaped kitchen has been used here with sufficient space for a built-in breakfast nook. There is a service door located alongside, allowing direct access to the basement stair from outdoors. The lavatory was positioned here for a close-by outdoor clean-up area and within reach of the kitchen and den.

IF THREE BEDROOMS are required, the den is eliminated. On the other hand, if a den is the family requirement, the room nearest the living room can be used for that purpose. All bedrooms have been provided with ample closet space. A bathroom is located off the short bedroom hall and within easy reach of all rooms.

Exterior materials used are asphalt roof shingles, wood double-hung windows, horizontal wood siding and some stone.

Bright bed linens mean good vibes at bedtime

Carolyn Murray

Your home

You think you've seen it all: designer bed linens abloom with color, initials embossed on quilts, restrained colorings like navy blue and chocolate brown. Hasn't the revolution in bedding and bath finally exploded?

The answer is no. Here comes a new generation of looks for bedmaking, and one big message comes from Fieldcrest. Along with its new designer groups — one by Geoffrey Beane, one by Gustav Zumsteg of Zurich — Fieldcrest offers an eye-popping concept called "Saturday's Flower."

That is actually an umbrella title for a group of four potent floral patterns: joyous rose, purple pansy, orange poppy and white daisy. Sometimes they are displayed alone on a dotted background; sometimes they appear in communion.

THE DUST RUFFLE, comforter and sheets in the setting shown today put the four stars into equal billing. For a change of pace the comforter may be flopped over to its dotted side, and the pillowcase may be flopped to reveal alternate blooms.

There is a definite appeal to a feminine audience with this sprightly pattern approach. But many of us are discovering that men find such designs rather sensuous to sleep in.

BED AND BATH bloom with color in Fieldcrest's "Saturday's Flower" collection of linens. Solids and dotted companions cool the vibrancy as moods change.

Too bad we put a sex-orientation on design, since what really matters is awakening each morning to a spirit of joy and good vibes. And the same feelings work at bedtime. So try to think free about where to use these perky concepts.

ANOTHER LIGHT touch in today's illustration is the use of rattan furnishings in the bedroom. The headboard is actually faux bamboo, and side tables and etagere are woven reed and rattan. A wicker chair upholstered in white, some framed flower drawings and a stash of solid-color co-ordinated sheets provide a complete palette for many seasons of bedmaking fun.

For a bit of do-it-yourself experimentation, one could lift a design idea out of the Fieldcrest line and paint a window shade or two. Or one sheet could be used for cutting into smaller segments, with the motifs pasted to unfinished furniture or lampshades.

Wreaths honor Lincoln

Mrs. Marie Titcomb of Palatine was in Springfield Friday to attend the memorial wreath-laying ceremony commemorating the 111th anniversary of the death of Abraham Lincoln.

As president of the Illinois Society, Dames of the Loyal Legion of the U.S., Mrs. Titcomb was among 75 Dames officials laying wreaths at Lincoln's Tomb in Oak Ridge Cemetery.

The annual pilgrimage is conducted by Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, assisted by the Military Order of the Loyal Legion.

To be a member of the Dames one must be a direct descendant of a commissioned officer in the Civil War. Mrs. Titcomb is related to Maj. Gen. George H. Thomas.

The doctor says

Heart patient can live useful life

Our doctor told us my husband has coronary artery disease and our cardiologist said ischemic heart disease. We can't find it in our medical book so we are wondering if you could explain it. He said nothing about diet or activity, or if my husband may die suddenly, soon or live for years.

Don't sign my name so I can keep the knowledge from him if necessary.

I never give anyone's name in my column, but a good part of your husband's management of his medical problem will depend upon his actions so he must know what his problem is and what he can do about it. In my experience patients do much better if they know what their problems are and why they should follow certain programs for their health.

Both diagnostic terms refer to the same condition. Your husband has fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries to his heart muscle. This is a common disease in our society. These deposits tend to block the artery and when the artery is blocked enough it limits the amount of blood that can flow through it. The lack of blood to the heart muscle is called ischemic heart disease.

This is the common process in the arteries of the heart that can lead to heart attacks, chest pain from the heart or in some instances important irregularities of the heart.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-10, Heart Attack, Myocardial Infarction, Angina Pectoris, to give you a better understanding of this problem. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

THE DISEASE IS unpredictable. I have had patients with heart attacks who have lived active useful lives for 20 years after a serious attack. Both President Johnson and Eisenhower lived for many years after their first attack. Johnson had his first attack while Senate Majority Leader and Eisenhower during his first term in office. So you can see that many people live many years after such an attack and may lead rather busy lives.

On the other hand, the first symptom of the disease in some cases is to drop dead. That is pretty final. About half of the people who have an attack don't make it to the hospital for adequate treatment. This is why a preventive program to prevent heart attacks is so important. It is too late to start a preventive program when the first symptom is sudden death.

The reason your doctors didn't say much about what to expect is the unpredictable nature of the disease — from living years without trouble to dropping dead the next day. You can do a lot to prevent heart attacks. The most important two things are to eliminate or prevent obesity and eliminate cigaret smoking entirely.

Beyond that you can alter the diet to decrease the fat intake, particularly the saturated fat intake, and cholesterol intake. The diet is quite important in the management program. A sensible physical activity program approved by the patient's doctor for his case is also useful.

Because of the volume of mail Dr. Lamb cannot answer your letters personally but he will answer representative letters of general interest in his column. Write to him in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.)

Trick with toothpaste removed car scratch

Here's a money-saving tip for many of you — those, anyway, who own cars. A man backed his car into ours, denting the right rear side. As everybody knows, even a small accident like this is a big-ticket item these days and we shake our heads in disbelief. The insurance adjuster wondered if a longish scratch up front had been caused by the other car, added another $55 to the tab, although including a question mark. Out of my file came a hint and I handed his nibs a tube of toothpaste, a sponge and a Turkish towel. He didn't use the sponge, but put the paste on the scratch with his finger, then applied the towel briskly. Two applications and the scratch was gone. An infinitesimal amount of paint comes off on the towel, but that's it. Fascinating, what?

Dear Dorothy: Whenever I have to use eggs. I'm almost sure to break one. They slip out of my hand. I'm not the nervous type, or I'd worry. Is there a trick I don't know?—Carol Klein

Make it a habit to wet your hands before taking eggs out of the carton. Another trick using wet hands is when shaping hamburgers or meatballs. Wet your hands from time to time and the meats won't stick.

Dear Dorothy: I always had trouble keeping a zipper in place on the sewing machine until a friend suggested keeping it in place with cellophane tape. After sewing, the tape peels off easily.—Martha Peat

Dear Dorothy: Here's a little to add to your recipe on the roast made with rock salt. We've done some experimenting and find that baking the roast for 12 minutes at 500 degrees will make it rare, 13½ minutes per pound for medium and 15 minutes for well done. Also, you should crack the rock salt immediately after removing the roast from the oven or it will continue to bake. We let a roast sit approximately 20 minutes while the other food finished cooking — and it was too well done. It is our favorite way to fix a roast and our friends love it, too.—Donna L. Brown

Donna is referring to the old English recipe we carried in which a whole roast is encased in rock salt.

Weddings

Janet Lee Wakely–Ronald Louis Donhardt

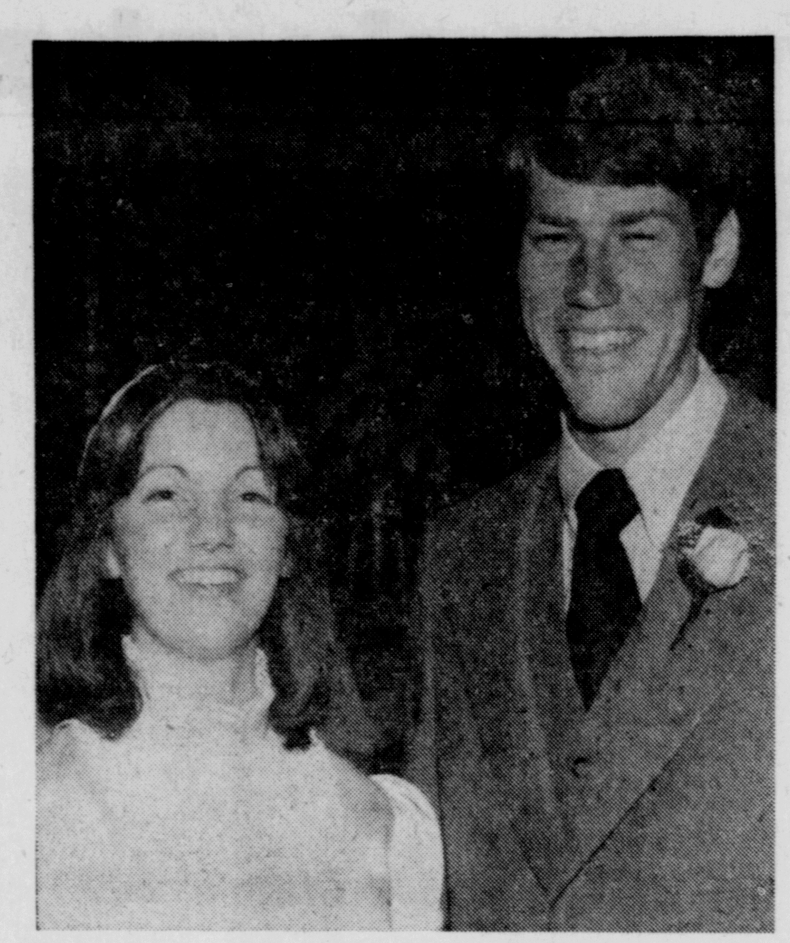
It was basketball that brought Janet Lee Wakely and Ronald Louis Donhardt together when both were students at Western Illinois University, Macomb. Janet, a total greenhorn at the game, asked Ron if she could join him shooting baskets, then to her own amazement, outshot him. It had to be love.

Their double ring wedding took place March 26 at First United Methodist Church, Arlington Heights, at 1:30 p.m. Janet is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Wakely, Arlington Heights, and Ronald the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard L. Donhardt, Quincy, Ill.

CARRYING OUT A green and pink color scheme, Janet carried pink roses. She wore a full-length gown of off-white satin. Serving as maid of honor, her sister, Mary Elaine, of Macomb, was attired in a green gown with green and blue flowered sleeves. Another sister, Patricia Ann, wore a green and blue flowered gown with green apron and inset in her role as bridesmaid.

Best man was the groom's brother, Gary, of Louisville, Ky. Other groomsmen were Gary Hubbs, Macomb, and John Allen Wakely, the bride's brother. Following the ceremony, a church reception was held for 100 guests.

After a three-day holiday in Wisconsin, the new Mr. and Mrs. Donhardt settled in Bloomington, Ill., where Ron is employed with Larson Homes as a carpenter.



Mr. and Mrs. Ronald L. Donhardt

Deborah L. Ormsbee–Leonard I. Coltun

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard I. Coltun

Not everyone has his wedding publicly announced by a famous songstress, but that was the case for Deborah Lynn Ormsbee and Leonard I. Coltun, both of Los Angeles. When recording artist Helen Reddy introduced the members of her company at her benefit concert in Chicago last month, she included the wedding news of Leonard, her lead guitarist.

Deborah is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Elliott Ormsbee, Arlington Heights; Leonard the son of Mrs. Harry Coltun, Chicago, and the late Mr. Coltun. In a pastel setting of spring colors, the pair were married March 20 at Itasca Country Club.

Deborah wore a white shantung three-piece suit with a pastel print jersey blouse. She carrid a bouquet of pink rosebuds, blue statis, stephanotis and white carnations, and tucked baby pink rose buds in her hair.

SHE WAS ATTENDED by her twin sisters, Candy and Sandy. Mrs. Ronald Karlin (Candy) of Wheeling served as matron of honor, and Mrs. Gregory Peters (Sandy), Glendale Heights, was bridesmaid. They wore street-length dresses, one in turquoise knit jersey, the other in yellow linen. Their crescent bouquets consisted of blue daisies, white carnations, stephanotis and greens.

Leonard's brother, Sanford, of Chicago, served as best man. Groomsman was his uncle, Joseph Coltun, of Munster, Ind.

A family reception at the club, with 33 guests attending, followed the wedding ceremony. For their wedding trip, the newlyweds spent a week in Honolulu, then returned to their residence in Los Angeles. Deborah, a 1969 Arlington High and 1972 University of Illinois graduate, works at BNB Assocites, Ltd., Beverly Hills.

They'll be summer brides

Burger-Johnson

Planning a September wedding are Mary Deborah Burger and David Johnson. Their engagement is announced by Mary Deborah's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence G. Burger, Mount Prospect. David is the son of Mrs. Lucinda Johnson, Hanover Park.

Deborah, a '74 graduate of Prospect High, is also a graduate of John and Lewis Beauty School and works for Illinois Counties Detective Agency. Her fiance, a graduate of Spalding School, Chicago, is with Addressograph-Multigraph, Schaumburg.

Suzzi-Lazzara

A June wedding has been planned for Linda Suzzi and Tom Lazzara.

Their engagement is announced by Linda's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome M. Suzzi, Elk Grove Village. Tom's parents are the Peter Lazzaras of Des Plaines.

Both young people are graduates of Elk Grove High School, Linda in 1972, Tom in '73. Both are working at the Venture store in Mount Prospect, where Tom is a merchandise processing manager.

Bettis-Schaefer

Carolyn Bettis of Palatine and Scott Schaefer of Morton Grove are engaged and will be married Aug. 20. Their engagement and forthcoming marriage are announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bettis Jr. Scott is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Schaefer.

Carolyn, a graduate of Forest View High School, works for Addressograph-Multigraph, Schaumburg, and Scott, a graduate of Niles West, for Baxter Laboratories, Deerfield.

Rosenberg-Lutostanski

A July wedding is planned by Susan Rosenberg and Frank Lutostanski, son of the Frank Lutostanskis of Warren, Mich. Their engagement is announced by Susan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott D. Rosenberg of Palatine.

A 1970 Palatine High graduate, Susan took her occupational therapist training at the University of Illinois Medical Center and graduated in 1974. She now works at Evanston Hospital. Frank is a 1974 graduate of Northwestern University and is employed by IBM in Evanston.

Liberal American Jews critical of Breira viewpoint

David E. Anderson
World of religion

Breira is the Hebrew word for alternative. As an organization of U.S. Jewish activists critical of Israel's Middle East stance, Breira is causing a great deal of discussion and some consternation among the generally liberal American Jewish establishment.

Growing out of the Vietnam antiwar movement of the 1960s and early 1970s, Breira attempts to apply some of the same antiwar rationales to the search for peace in the Middle East as Jewish activists and intellectuals did to the Vietnam conflict and the U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia.

BUT THE alternatives it has suggested — particularly its openness to the Palestine Liberation Organization — have not met with favor by leaders of the nation's major Jewish organization.

In recent weeks, two highly critical articles about Breira have appeared in Jewish magazines — the first in Re

Credit union share draft forms new trend in personal banking

An increasing number of American consumers will pay for their purchases with share drafts as the certificates, issued by credit unions, become more popular, predicts Al Liesse of the Illinois Credit Union League, Bensenville.

Speaking Friday at a league conference in Rosemont, Liesse said use of the check-like certificates means convenience for customers and improved competition for credit unions.

Share drafts look something like checks, and users can pay bills by writing drafts similar to the way they use personal checks. Automatic protection against "bouncing" and the payment of interest on the account when permitted separates the share draft from a bank checking account.

THE SHARE DRAFT'S similarity to commercial bank checks has been criticized by the American Banker's Assn., Liesse said. An association suit against the National Credit Union Administration, charging that share drafts are illegal, was dismissed. New federal standards are slated for publication by May 1, but there may be additional suits by the association to defend banks' "God-given right to issue checks," Liesse said.

Thirty-three credit unions in Illinois already offer share draft plans to their members, Liesse said. So far, participation among the 1,432 Illinois credit unions is minimal. But Liesse predicts that the organizations' need to compete with banks and other financial institutions will prompt them to offer the share draft plans.

Credit unions are groups of persons who have a common bond, generally their place of employment. Members pool their money to make loans to each other.

Liesse sees several advantages to consumers who participate in share draft plans: the convenience of a checking account, easy access to funds, interest earnings, no minimum balance and no service charge.

Among the advantages to the credit union are increased awareness of credit unions and potentially higher capital.

"We've always been the little brother in the financial community," Liesse said.

"SHARE DRAFTS have a tendency to condition members for electronic funds transfer," Liesse said. He predicts that U.S. financial institutions will clear some 44 billion checks a year by 1980. Share drafts will help to eliminate the high costs of this paperwork.

Eventually, automatic deposit of paychecks in credit union or bank accounts will be commonplace, Liesse predicts. Another step will be the use of a debit-credit transaction card that would involve electronic processing of bill-paying and other transactions.

"We've been talking about the checkless, cashless society for years," Liesse said. "We're not there yet."

Although there always will be consumers who prefer the traditional checkbooks and finanical transactions, he plans to make credit union members aware of new time and money saving systems.

Carter energy plan: hope it's good

Louis Rukeyser

NEW YORK—Thoughts while waiting for the President's energy program next week:

(1) Let's hope it's more than a hair of the dog that bit us.

The pooch that pecked us was, after all, the government itself. Its continual interventions into the energy market are what distorted the price structure, created artificial, — (and then very real) — shortages and left us vulnerable to blackmail and extortion from the Mideast. As Elizabeth Barrett Browning once remarked, on another warm subject, "Let me count the ways."

For a generation, Congressmen from gas-consuming areas bragged about how low they had held the interstate price of natural gas. While suckers were applauding, two entirely predictable results occurred — excessive use and inadequate production. Use became excessive because the price was artifically low; production lagged because the depressed price did not offer a return competitive with that of other investments.

Nor was production curtailed only in the natural gas fields. This country is blessed with extraordinary, and internationally unique, reservoirs of coal. The development of modern uses of coal lagged critically because it couldn't be done at prices competitive with the controlled price of natural gas. And more recently, controls on domestic oil prices have hobbled what could have been an explosion of energy exploration to end our dependence on the Arabs.

IF CARTER IS truly going to move the nation forward on energy, he will have to recognize the bankruptcy of Congress' activities in this area. As its first major move after the Arab oil embargo, Congress reduced the oil depletion allowance — whose purpose for decades, in notably less perilous times, had been to increase United States energy production. Having thus moved to discourage producers, and to lower what had operated as a subsidy to the consumer, Congress rested — and went back to berating the oil companies.

The President, to be effective, has to take us beyond a program that makes scapegoats of the only people who can get us out from under the Arab thumb — and makes tin heroes out of the legislators who have contributed to our slippage.

(2) Let's hope it really offers us a handle — and not just a hairshirt.

The advance leaks about the Carter energy program have been so numerous that if they could be gathered in one container and transformed into oil, they might solve the energy crisis all by themselves. But too many of them have emphasized the President's apparent intention to curb consumption.

CONSERVATION IS plainly a necessity, in our present state, and as noted Congress' own policies have spurred the profligate use of some resources. But despite the moral smugness that makes some people think there is something evil in the average fellow's desire to live better, a long-term prescription of "less" is neither necessary or desirable.

The alternative is, while restraining consumption now, to move vigorously toward developing our own resources. In this respect, it would be a far more positive long-run step to remove all the debilitating controls on natural gas and oil than to turn down every thermostat in America. We can expect an inspiring call to rally in the common interests; the real question is whether the President's program will itself perceive that interest. Cardigans are comfy, but they do not consititute an effective policy.

(3) Let's hope it genuinely ends uncertainty — instead of just creating more.

The recent disarray in the financial markets is evidence that much of the country is deeply worried about Carter's ability to cope with inflation and to implement an energy program that will not stop the economic recovery in its tracks. He has a chance next week to soothe that concern, at least in the energy area, by demonstrating that he has a clear, viable policy that will reverse our still growing dependence on unreliable foreign suppliers.

Carter can win huzzahs by talking tough about the oil and gas companies, which are scarcely national love objects, and he can garner applause by talking of conservation and sacrifice. But it will all ultimately be an empty exercise unless he directs national policy toward decreasing government and increasing energy. Here's hoping.

Dow ends good week still gaining

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market, battling profit-taking pressures throughout, closed its best week in more than a year Friday with its sixth consecutive gain — a small one — in slowed trading.

Investors found little to complain or cheer about in President Carter's generally voluntary program designed to cut the nation's inflation rate by a third in less than three years.

Carter, saying his administration wants to reduce inflation by 2 per cent by the end of 1979, also said his energy program, to be unveiled next week, would be "the least inflationary" approach possible.

AGAINST THAT background, the Dow Jones industrial average managed to gain 0.76 points to 947.76, bringing its six-day gain to 33.03 points. For the week, the closely watched average rose 28.88 points, the best performance since it climbed 29.44 points the week ended Feb. 20, 1976.

Buyers remained enthusiastic over the President's decision Thursday to drop his tax rebate and business investment tax credit proposals because it was not needed in an economy that is picking up steam.

The Federal Reserve Board's report late Thursday that the nation's basic money supply soared $5 billion did not faze investors.

The NYSE common stock index added 0.02 to 54.94 and the average price of a common share increased by a penny.

BIG BOARD volume totaled 20,230,000 shares, down sharply from the 30,490,000 traded Thursday, the busiest session in four months.

Composite volume of NYSE issues traded on all exchanges totaled 22,332,988 shares, compared with 34,741,280 Thursday.

The American Stock Exchange index lost 0.09 to 112.50 and the average price of a common share decreased by one cent. Advances topped declines, 293 to 282, among the 898 issues traded. Volume totaled 2,280,000 shares, compared with 3,280,000 Thursday.

Judge orders stop to airport blockade

NEW YORK (UPI) — A state Supreme Court justice Friday enjoined leaders of a group of opponents of the Concorde SST from jamming traffic with an estimated 4,000 cars converging at Kennedy Airport Sunday. But a leader of the protesters said he could not guarantee the motorcade could be aborted. Acting on a request by the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, which operates the airport, Justice Leonard Finz signed an injunction and ordered attorney Brian Levinson, described as an "architect" of the "Concorde Alert" protest, to issue a public statement urging protesters to stay at home Sunday. Finz suggested that rather than converging on the airport with cars, protesters try taking out their frustrations in the same manner as a character in the award-winning movie "Network" — by screaming out their windows: "I'm mad as hell and I won't take it anymore." The group had threatened to jam traffic around the airport to protest proposed landing of the British-French supersonic plane at Kennedy. At the hearing, Finz said although he recognized the group's right to speak out, "I find . . . that were 4,000 cars to converge for the singular purpose of closing down the airport, it would create disaster and possibly tragedy by blocking emergency vehicles." Levinson, reached by telephone after the injunction was signed, said, "I'm not saying that I hope no one turns out. I am merely filing the judge's requirement. I like to see people demonstrate, but I have a zipper on and I can't comment." Levinson led a similar automobile protest at Kennedy Feb. 22, 1976, which drew 1,500 cars and blocked traffic for hours.

Harris to head banking panel

Gov. James R. Thompson Friday appointed former Senate Republican Leader William C. Harris of Pontiac to head the Commission of Banks and Trust Companies. Harris served six years in the Illinois House and 16 years in the Senate before retiring in January. He served as Senate president in the 1973-74 session of General Assembly. Harris, the Republican candidate for secretary of state in last November's general election, lost overwhelmingly to Democrat Alan Dixon. The appointment, which requires Senate confirmation, is effective May 1 at a yearly salary of $30,000.

Rolling Meadows bank renamed

Suburban Bank of Rolling Meadows is the new name of the former Bank of Rolling Meadows, bank president Alvin S. Carlsen said. "Our name change reflects our continued association with the Suburban Bank Group plus the expanded area our bank now serves," he said. Located at 3250 Kirchoff Road, Rolling Meadows, the bank opened in December 1959. The Suburban Bank Group includes seven affiliated banks.

People in business

JOHN MATTHEW of Buffalo Grove recently joined Ekco Products Inc., Packaging Group in Wheeling, as a sales representative in the central region. He will be responsible for the sales of aluminum foil and plastic packaging products and systems, having joined Ekco six months ago as a sales trainee.

MICHAEL G. AUGUSTINE of Schaumburg, currently division marketing manager of SAFECO Insurance Companies' Chicago Division, has been promoted to manager of the company's St. Louis, Mo., Division. He joined the company at its home office in Seattle, Wash., in 1966.

KATHLEEN WEINERT HALLE of Palatine has been promoted to assistant cashier of The First Trust and Savings Bank of Glenview, and will be in charge of the bookkeeping, proof and general books departments of the bank. She joined the staff of the bank in 1971, in the bookkeeping department.

JOHN D. NOWAK of Des Plaines recently was presented with a service pin in recognition of his 1th anniversary with the Allstate Insurance Companies. He is employed as an account agent at Allstate's Skokie sales office, 7770 Frontage Rd.

ROBERT SODERMAN of Mount Prospect has been named a vice president of the James B. Beam Distilling Co., Chicago. He joined the Beam Co. in 1948 and was named assistant secretary in 1968 and was appointed advertising director in 1970.

Home car repair popular with majority

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (UPI) — The bulk of the nation's car owners also take care of the simple repairs the car needs, according to a new study.

The survey, covering 10,000 households, was made by the Motor and Equipment Manufacturers Assn. In light of its findings, the association said parts makers "will have to become more aware" of the consumer as the "ultimate user" of the parts and include "detailed directions" on how to install them.

The association said the boom in car home repairs stems not only from a desire to save money but from convenience because the car owner doesn't have to wait at a service station or car dealership for someone to serve him.

Bulls tip Portland to stay alive

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Wilbur Holland must be getting tired of taking abuse from the Portland Trail Blazers.

With one second left Holland stood at the free throw line hoping to finally put an end to the Chicago Bulls' second playoff battle with the Trail Blazers.

Maurice Lucas, Portland's 6-foot-9 power forward and a firm believer in winning through intimidation, stepped face-to-face with Holland and began putting a verbal whammy on the Bulls' guard.

HOLLAND CALMLY signalled to official Richie Powers to get Lucas away from him and then popped the two free throws that made the Bulls 107-104 winners and evened the series at one game each.

The series now moves back to Portland for the deciding game Sunday.

"I don't know what he (Lucas) said and I don't care," Holland said. "None of that matters to me."

Holland's 25 points nicely complemented 29 from forward Mickey Johnson and 27 from Artis Gilmore, who did nothing more important than play Portland center Bill Walton to a standoff for the second time in the series.

"WALTON DOES an exceptional job of shooting inside," Gilmore said. "I prefer to push him out but he's an intelligent player and always does something to adjust."

Walton hit 12 of 21 from the floor for 24 points and grabbed 17 rebounds but one thing he couldn't adjust to were five personal fouls by the end of the third quarter.

When Walton returned in the fourth quarter Portland coach Jack Ramsey had to put Lucas on Gilmore, at least temporarily.

"I thought Gilmore was outstanding," Ramsey said. "He got good position and we can't let him into the lane like that on Sunday."

THE LUCAS-Gilmore matchup sprang the Bulls loose with a streak that eventually decided the game.

It began with Gilmore snuffing a Dave Twardzik layup off the break and getting the ball back down to Holland, who drilled a 22-footer to put the Bulls ahead 96-94 with 4:33 remaining.

Holland followed with another 18-footer and Gilmore worked free over Lucas with a jump hook to give the Bulls the lead at 100-94 and force a Portland timeout.

"That was a big point in the game," said Bulls' coach Ed Badger. "It really got the crowd going."

An estimated 20,000 packed the Stadium but for some reason an official total was never announced.

"I'D LIKE TO take all of them with us to Portland," Badger said.

The six-point lead was the most command the Bulls had in the game, which was as physically intense as NBA playoff battles are expected to be.

With six seconds left in the first half, that intensity got out of hand. Holland and Portland guard Herm Gilliam got into a fight and when it was over Gilliam had been ejected and Lucas had drawn a punching foul for taking a swing at Bulls' assistant coach Gene Tormohlen.

Lucas said, "I felt he (Tormohlen) squeezed Gilliam's neck a little too hard."

Holland said, "We were running downcourt and were talking to each other. I bumped him and said I was sorry and all of a sudden he started kicking me."

GILLIAM'S SIDE of the story was "I thought Holland tripped me."

The Bulls got the better of the Lucas-Mickey Johnson matchup. The former Marquette University All-American hitting only 17 points after getting 29 in the Blazers' 96-83 first-game victory.

Johnson did the job primarily by being on hand when Lucas went for his shots, something he didn't do in the opener. Lucas still hit eight of 14 shots but that was a far cry from his 14-for-17 in the first game.

"I didn't shoot as much because Bill (Walton) had the better shot all night," Lucas said. "I love the pressure. I'm not a nice guy. I like to play physical."

"Portland is a tough team," Badger said. "They didn't win 49 games through a fluke. I've got to think the team that comes out of this series is going to go pretty far."

IN OTHER NBA playoff contests Friday Campy Russell tossed in 22 points and Foots Walker added 20 as Cleveland evened their series with Washington 91-83. Meanwhile, Boston, behind Jo Jo White's 38-point barrage, whipped San Antonio 113-109 to move into the quarterfinals against Philadelphia.

Sox shake 5-run deficit to drive past Blue Jays

by BOB GALLAS

The White Sox dipped into their "bargain basement" pool of talent Friday night and pulled out another gem as they came back from a five-run deficit to defeat the Toronto Blue Jays, 7-5, before 10,840 fans at Comiskey Park.

Royle Stillman, who hadn't lifted a bat in anger yet this season, was inserted into the lineup at the last minute when Ralph Garr came up with a sore shoulder. Stillman, who came to the Sox for a pittance in the free agent draft over the winter, took advantage of the opportunity by pounding out three hits in five trips and three runs batted in to lead the Sox comeback which was highlighted by a five-run sixth inning.

The Sox, who had dropped two out of their first three earlier to the expansion Blue Jays, also got some help from Francisco Barrios, who came in in relief of Chris Knapp in the second inning and pitched 7 2, 3 innings of shutout ball.

STILLMAN DIDN'T get the word he was starting until minutes before the game started but had showed up early Friday to take extra batting practice, some completely unintentional foresight.

"I didn't expect it. I was surprised when they told me I was going in there," said the soft-spoken 26-year-old who had brief trials with Baltimore in 1975 and 1976. "I had butterflies out there all night. But then I always do."

Two lockers over, Garr pondered over the consequences of his night off.

"If he (Stilliman) keeps hitting like that, I might never get back in," Garr whined. "But if he keeps hitting like that he's also gonna put some money in my pocket."

After grounding out second to first in the opening inning, Stillman singled in a run in the third, flied to right in the fifth, singled in two more runs in the sixth, then singled again in the eighth.

"I was impressed not only by his (Stillman's) bat, but also his glove and his arm in spring training," said Sox manager Bob Lemon. "I've been saying all along we have a little more depth in some areas than last year."

BARRIOS ENTERED hurriedly in the second after Toronto had scored three runs and had two runners on base. Jim Mason drove in the fourth Blue Jay run with a fielder's choice. Then Al Woods singled in another run before Barrios struck out Ron Fairly to end the inning. After rocky third and fourth innings, Barrios set the side down in order in the fifth, sixth, eighth and ninth, retiring 16 of the final 17 men he faced.

"I maybe wasn't quite ready when I first got in but the super defense helped," said Barrios.

Barrios got some good plays from his infield, particularly from first baseman Jim Spencer, who dove far to his left to cut off a sure double off the bat of Dave McKay in the fifth inning, and while sitting down threw to Barrios covering first for the putout.

JERRY JOHNSON, who came on in relief of starter Steve Hargan in the sixth, took the loss for Toronto, now 5-3 on the young season. Barrios' win was his first decision of the year.

Catcher Jim Essian continued to crowd Brian Downing for the starting catcher's job. Essian was 2-for-3 with an RBI triple, a single and a walk.

The Sox scored a pair of runs in the second on a single by Alan Bannister, Essian's triple, then a single by Stillman that drove in another run.

Richie Zisk led off the five-run sixth with a walk and went to second on a passed ball. Spencer doubled Zisk home and that chased Hargan and brought on Johnson for the Blue Jays. Oscar Gamble greeted Johnson with an RBI single that scored Spencer. But Johnson then got Eric Soderholm to ground into a double play and it looked like the rally was over.

BUT CHET LEMON legged out a double for his second hit of the night, Essian walked, and Bannister doubled in the tying run and put runners at second and third.

Stillman then singled in both runners and went to second on an error on the throw in.

That brought on former Cub reliever Chuck "Twiggy" Hartenstein, who caught on with the Blue Jays after spending the past six seasons in the minors. Hartenstein got Zisk to pop up to end the inning and finished the game for Toronto.

SOX SHORTS: Former White Sox pitcher Jesse Jefferson, who went to the Blue Jays in the expansion draft, will face his ex-mates in a 1:15 game today . . . Steve Stone will make his second start of the season for the sox . . . catcher Wayne Nordhagen will rejoin the Sox Sunday, when he will officially be recalled from the Sox Iowa farm club . . . Nordhagen has already arrived and worked out with the team Friday . . . Wilbur Wood is working out with the team and throwing but still can't run on his tender knee . . . no word yet on when he'll be able to join the active roster . . . One Sox player will have to be trimmed from the roster after today's game to make room for Nordhagen . . . Sunday is "Grab Bag Day" as the Sox wind up the three-game set with the Blue Jays in a single contest . . . A variety of old Sox souvenir helmets, posters and a record of Sox announcer Harry Caray singing "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" are some of the items to be given away to the first 15,000 customers.

Big eighth lifts Cubs to 8-4 win

From Herald Wire Services

A pair of doubles by Manny Trillo in the eighth inning highlighted a seven-run Cub outburst and powered an 8-4 Chicago victory over the New York Mets Friday in Shea Stadium.

Trillo led off the eighth with the Cubs trailing 4-1 and Jon Matlack breezing along with a six-hitter. He doubled to start things off and went to third on a one out single by Ivan DeJesus. Skip Lockwood relieved Matlack and walked Jose Cardenal to load the bases. Larry Biittner doubled, scoring two runs, and Bobby Murcer was intentionally walked to load the bases again.

Jerry Morales' infield hit scored Cardenal, tying the game. After a strikeout, Lockwood walked pinch-hitter Greg Gross to force in the Cubs' fifth run. Trillo then delivered a bases-cleaning double to make the score 8-4.

Bobby Murcer homered leading off the seventh inning, his third of the year, to account for Chicago's first run of the game.

Dave Kingman homered with one on in the first inning, his second of the year.

Reliever Paul Reuschel picked up the win for the Cubs, making him 1-0. Lockwood was the loser and is 0-1.

JAY JOHNSTONE hit a two-run double in the second inning and Greg Luzinski added a two-run homer in the seventh as the Philadelphia Phillies spoiled Montreal's home opener by defeating the Expos 7-2 before a crowd of 57,592 in the Olympic Stadium.

It was Montreal's first game in its new home, and the crowd was the largest in the National League this season and the most ever for the Expos who had played their first eight years in small Jarry Park.

Jim Rooker pitched a three-hitter and Duffy Dyer, Dave Parker and Rennie Stennett hit home runs to power the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 7-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals and disappoint a Busch Stadium home opening crowd of 41,622.

Rooker, who lost his first start to St. Louis, evened his record a 1-1 while Pete Falcone suffered the loss.

REGGIE SMITH drove in four runs with his first two homers of the season and Doug Rau, with relief help from Charlie Hough, picked up his second victory as the Los Angeles Dodgers spoiled San Francisco's home opener by beating the Giants, 7-1, before a crowd of 40,008.

Smith hit his first homer in the opening inning after a single by Bill Russell and got his second in the third after a leadoff walk to Dave Lopes. Ron Cey, Dusty Baker and Johnny Oates each drove in a run for Los Angeles as the Dodgers gained their fifth victory in eight games.

Jeff Burroughs hit a two-run homer in his first at bat at Atlanta Stadium and pitcher Dick Ruthven stroked a tie-breaking double in the sixth inning to lift the Atlanta Braves to a home opening 4-3 victory over the Houston Astros.

Rick Camp protected the victory for Ruthven with some clutch relief pitching. Camp came on with two out and the bases loaded in the top of the seventh and got Enos Cabell to bounce out. Then, with the bases loaded and one out in the eighth, he again prevented the Astros from scoring.

Second Paddock tourney

Racquetball finals begin

by JEFF NORDLUND

Ladies and gentlemen, grab your racquets.

It's the final weekend of Paddock Publications' 1977 Racquetball Tournament of Champions, and those players who survived area club play are ready to battle for the championship today and Sunday at Buehler YMCA in Palatine.

Fifty-five men and women won divisional titles at the eight participating racquetball clubs in March, and play in the nine different brackets begins today with 37 quarterfinal and semifinal matches. The championship matches will be played Sunday afternoon.

NEARLY 200 racquetball enthusiasts began play in the second annual Paddock Publications tournament in March, playing at the following clubs: Arlington Indoor Tennis, Buehler YMCA, The Court House (Arlington), The Court House (Schaumburg), Oakwood Racquet Club, Poplar Creek, Right Tennis Club and Woodfield Racquet Club.

Of last year's champions, three are back. Tom Street of Schaumburg, the Men's Seniors (35 years and older) champ, and Bill Shook of Barrington, the Men's Masters (45 years and older) champ, are returning to defend their respective titles. The Juniors (17 years and under) title holder, Steve Breckenridge of Palatine, will also be back.

Several runners-up are also playing again in this year's tourney. John Williams of Bloomingdale was the Men's B second-placer last season, and this year he has moved up to the Men's A bracket. Men's Seniors runner-up, Roger Eckert of Hoffman Estates, is among the finalists in the Men's Masters Division this time.

Ada Crabtree of Wheeling will try and better her second-place finish in the Women's A Division of last year.

THE LARGEST FIELD of finalists is in the Men's C Division where eight players are still hoping to land the winner's trophy. Saturday's matches include: George Hixson versus Jerry Clauser; Greg Pederson versus Tom Threlkeld; Jim Cartwright versus Richard Semmel; and George Dean versus Tom Casterton.

In Men's B play there are seven finalists. Saturday matches include: Jeff Schrank versus Herb Smith; Ken Fisher versus Ed Kramer; Wally Joniec versus John Kelvie; and Jim Schmidt gets a first-round bye.

Seven finalists clash in the Men's Seniors division. Opening round matches include: Jack Kenney versus versus Frank Beccastro; Palmer Pyle Louis Mezzano; Warren Bouwman versus Frank Rhode, Jr.; and Street gets a bye.

THE MEN'S Masters Division also has a seven-player field of finalists. Saturday's matches include: R. A. Haack versus Robert Caulk; Eckert versus Wally Hofman; R. H. Pletch versus Dorsey Boult; and Shook has an opening-round bye.

There will be six finalists in the Men's A Division. First-day matches include: Rick Hobday versus Jim Thompson; Don Kulick versus Len Meyer; and Bill Donnelly and John Williams get first-round byes.

Six finalists join in the Women's B Division, and Saturday's matches include: Nancy Smiley versus Colleen Shields; Terrie Eisenmann versus Pat Ketlinski; and Debbie Darlington and Kim Ruck have first-round byes.

Approximate times for the championship matches in each of the divisions Sunday are: Men's A 1 p.m.; Men's B, 2 p.m.; Men's C, 1 p.m.; Men's Seniors, 2 p.m.; Men's Masters, 1 p.m.; Juniors, 2 p.m.; Women's A, 2 p.m.; Women's B, 3 p.m.; and Women's C, 1 p.m.

Badminton teams at four districts

by KEITH REINHARD

Up until this year, it's all been academic.

Now the perennial question about who has the best high school badminton team will be answered in the proper place . . . on the court . . . as the IHSA prepares to unfold its first state tournament for this sport.

SIXTEEN DISTRICT meets will be conducted today and area teams are involved in four of them with Arlington and Elk Grove each hosting their own tourney. Winners — two top singles players, two top doubles teams plus any other member of the winning teams not qualifying on their own merit — will advance to the state finals at New Trier West next week.

Some of the pundits and critics have been leaning toward Central Suburban League entries such as Maine South, Deerfield (also a district host school) and Evanston to emerge as powerhouses over the next two Saturdays but Arlington coach Mary Lou Hundt for one feels that the MSL could surprise some people.

"Schools like Palatine, Prospect and Forest View have individuals that could probably be competitive with just about anybody," she noted, adding, "There's been so little matching up of teams outside their leagues that I don't think anyone can be certain about where the power lies."

THE CARDINAL mentor is a little more certain about her own conference championship club. "I'm very optimistic about our district. On top of the fact that we're a strong team, we gained the luck of the draw. I can't see us really contending with any strength until the third round."

Entered in the Arlington district are Conant, Hoffman Estates, Fremd, Rolling Meadows, Lake Park and Schaumburg. The Mustangs and Saxons, also seeding individuals along with two sets of Arlington singles players and doubles units, collide with each other before meeting up with the Redbirds.

Other districts are not so clear cut although Grenadier coach Jeanne Kidd reports that her tournament should highlight at least one individual in York's Ann French. The Duke entry will be making her high school debut after playing on an amateur doubles team during the regular season and earning the rank of third in the nation.

Other schools battling at Elk Grove will be Fenton, Addision Trail, Glenbard East and Willowbrook.

AT MAINE SOUTH, the CSL South Division runner ups from Maine West are expected to give the Hawks a tussle along with the Falcons and Knights. Other schools participating in the Maine South district are Maines East and North and West Leyden.

The remaining MSL outfits — Palatine, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and Hersey will hook up with Glenbrook North, New Trier West and the host Warriors at Deerfield. A Huskies doubles team and Pirate Peggy Munson both earned seeds there.

Mark Spitz meets the youngsters at Northwest Suburban YMCA in Des Plaines.

Jeff Nordlund

Seven gold medals, several million dollars and five years ago, Mark Spitz was a student and swimmer at Indiana University. He had promise then, but no one knew just how great.

"I wasn't prepared at all for what came following the Olympics," Spitz, who was in the Herald area on a promotion tour, said of his historic summer of 1972 in Munich. "I thought maybe I could make several thousand dollars out of the swimming to pay my way through dental school."

That's not the way things turned out. Though many people regard his history since the Olympics as a case of too much too soon, Spitz is still flying high. Dental school and competitive swimming are relics in his past. He is in the business of selling Mark Spitz now.

SINCE HIS unprecedented success at the Olympics, Spitz has parlayed his name and handsome good looks into financial opportunities that range from milk endorsements on television to real estate holdings in California.

The 27-year-old Californian still looks tanned and fit, even though he hasn't swum competitively for five years and most of his time is spent meeting business responsibilities both here and in Europe.

"I don't believe in fairy tales," Spitz said. "You have to make things happen yourself. Up to 1972, I had tried to control the direction of my destiny.

"But that year I got to, just like in a game of Monopoly, take three steps forward if I took a particular road and left the old one behind.

"Dentistry may have been an easier future to foresee, but the pursuit I chose seemed more inviting. I still don't know if I made the right decision. I'm young and vulnerable, but I'm trying everything I can to make sure it all doesn't fall out from beneath me."

SO THE swimmer-turned-business-exec. has plunged himself into the world of finance with the same keen competitive edge he used to make his name while swimming. He is busy to the point of having virtually no free time.

Thursday, he had just returned from Europe where he had mixed a brief vacation with his wife and the business of reviewing a spring line of sporting goods for one of the firms with which he does his business. In the evening he went to sign autographs and talk with youngsters at the Northwest Suburban YMCA in Des Plaines.

"I'm tired, even though I just finished having a vacation," Spitz admitted. "I've got an agency that does most of my scheduling and I've got a business adviser, but it may soon reach the point I will have to say 'no more.'

"I'm not in the limelight like I used to be. Things are more subdued now that I'm into the business end of the operation. But I still haven't got much free time any more."

THE MANNER in which Spitz and others have marketed his name, plus Spitz' knack for saying inappropriate things at times, has not endeared him to many people. Still he thinks his image is improving.

"Kids once thought of me as one of them," Spitz said. "Now they think of me as an adult — almost an oldtimer. Others, as they learn of my business dealings, are respecting me more."

Spitz once described himself as "a commodity." He still thinks of himself in the same terms, without the shame it may cheapen himself.

"I had an opportunity to sell myself just like any other commodity in 1972," Spitz said. "I know it makes me sound just like a package, but I would have been a fool to have passed it up.

"OTHERS WILL TRY the same thing. Look at Bruce Jenner. He will get raked over the coals for selling himself, but in the end it pays off."

Admitting to sometimes feeling as if everything was happening too fast, Spitz is still confident. He knows there may come a time the name Mark Spitz won't have any appeal, and that is why he is going headlong at profit-seeking right now.

"If my name is an asset now," he said, "then I'm going to get everything I can from it."

NBA Bucks promote St Viator graduate

John Steinmiller, a St. Viator High School graduate, has been named director of business operations for the Milwaukee Bucks.

The announcement of Steinmiller's appointment was made Friday as the Bucks made some changes in their organizational structure.

Steinmiller previously had served the Milwaukee club as director of public relations.

WAYNE EMBRY, who had said he would resign as general manager of the Bucks, was named a vice president of the corporation which owns the National Basketball Assn. club.

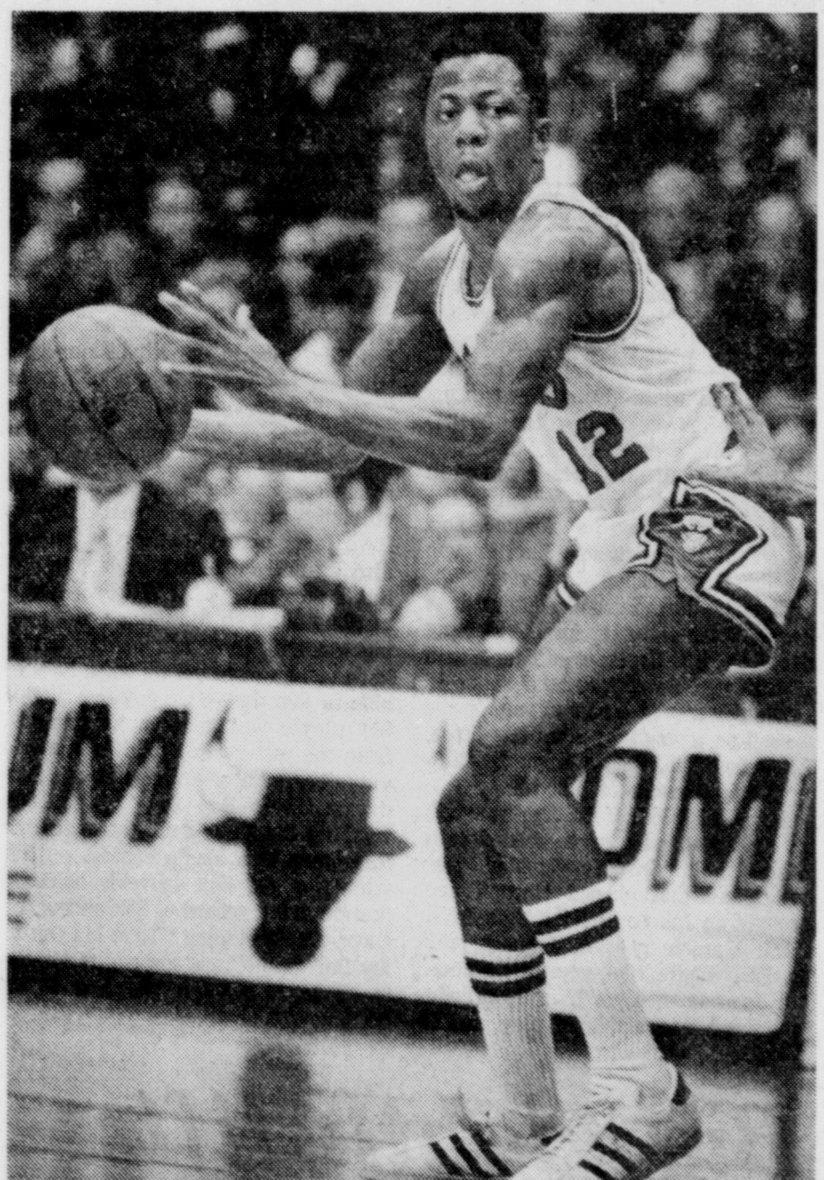
"I am pleased to announce that Wayne Embry will remain with the Milwaukee Bucks through a two-year contractual agreement which will assure his services as a vice president in a consulting capacity," said Bucks' President James Fitzgerald.

"From now until July 1, Wayne will concentrate completely on drafting and signing talent acquired through the NBA draft. After that date he will serve actively as an adviser to the club," Fitzgerald said.

FITZGERALD ALSO said Head Coach Don Nelson will take on the additional role of player-personnel director under terms of a multi-year agreement.

Former Bucks' player Jon McGlocklin will continue in his role as color commentator on the Bucks' broadcasts, and will work within the club's communications division, "with special emphasis in the community relations, promotional and broadcast areas of that division," according to Fitzgerald.

Nelson, McGlocklin and Steinmiller assume their new responsibilities immediately. Embry's job becomes effective July 1.



WILBUR WON'T. Bulls' guard Wilbur Holland had no intentions of letting the ball, the fight, or the verdict in Friday's playoff game with Portland at the Stadium get away. Holland chalked up 26 points, including three free throws as the result of a skirmish prompted by a Blazer player, to help boost the Bulls to a 107-104 win.

Track records could fall in 6th annual Harper test

by ART MUGALIAN

Harper's track team has never won the Harper Invitational track meet, and head coach Bob Nolan isn't exactly predicting a victory for his Hawks this year either.

But you never know — and that's what makes a track meet.

"DuPage and Blackhawk look like the odds-on favorites again this year," said Nolan on the eve of today's sixth annual Harper Invite which begins at 10 a.m. "I suppose we could win it, but we'd have to take several first and get some surprise seconds and thirds."

HARPER FINISHED a strong third last year behind defending champ DuPage and runnerup Blackhawk.

"We've always pretty much been in the top three," said Nolan, who has been Harper's only track coach in 10 years. "We hope to be in the top three again this year."

The Hawks will be led by weightman Bob Roels, distance runner Wil Fieldhouse and high jumper Mike Nichol. Each has a chance to break Harper Invite records in their respective events.

Roels, who won the discus (149-7) and the shot put (45-3) in last Monday's University of Chicago Relays, setting personal marks in both events, will be the favorite in the discus today. His 149-7 effort, which set a school record, is less than four feet short of the meet mark, set by national champion Rich Girt of Blackhawk in 1974.

"I think Roels has a chance to win both events," said Nolan. "He's really been working hard."

FIELDHOUSE WILL run the mile and the three-mile, and perhaps even the six-mile, but his best effort could come in the mile. The meet record was set by former Harper miler John Geary who clocked a 4:24.8.

Fieldhouse has run in the 4:23s twice indoors this season and last week cranked out a 3:57 for 1,500 meters, the equivalent of a 4:15 mile, in St. Louis.

Nichol, who like Fieldhouse was a qualifier for the indoor nationals this year, has a shot at the meet high jump record, which stands at 6-6. Nichol's best is 6-6.

"Several records could go," said Nolan. "The mile, the 440, the pole vault, the long jump, the discus and the shot. We're looking for some really good performances."

IN ADDITION to Harper, the teams entered in the meet are DuPage, Blackhawk, Wright, Oakton, Triton, Morton, Illinois Valley, Kankakee, Kishwaukee, Lake County, Joliet, and Concordia.

The meet will be run on Harper's track at the school, Roselle and Algonquin Rds. in Palatine.

Coho arrival surprises Waukegan

The feeling is a little like toting a BB gun into African big game country. There's always the chance the game will overpower the equipment.

With those prospects, Jeff Heintz and I made our seasonal debuts on Lake Michigan, armed mainly with ultralight tackle and nerve.

Heintz, who runs The Salmon Shop at 103 S. Northwest Hwy. in Palatine, is the new owner of "Jeff's Boat House" (formerly Atkinson's Boat House) in Waukegan.

BUT EVEN THE rigors of remodeling and the general preparation for the deluge of summer activity took a backseat to last week's 80-degree temperatures.

Jim Cook

Outdoor editor

Normally, the excitement in Waukegan in April is reserved for smelt fishermen. But there's a strange phenomenon occuring this spring that has Heintz and other charter boat captains smiling.

"The fishing's been unbelievable out there," Heintz said. "I've been listening to a scanner radio and the reports have been amazing. A couple of guys with one-half day charters Saturday brought in their limits two hours early! That's unheard of."

Coho salmon have comprised the majority of stringers, although occasional chinook or steelhead trout dent the angler's huge ice chest.

"MOST OF THE fish are running 2-4 pounds," Heintz said, prompting our gamble to try light tackle. "We'll probably lose some, but you can't beat the action."

Ultralight tackle is normally taboo to charter boat captains who are paid to catch fish. Increasing the margin of error with buggy-whip rods and flimsy, four-pound test line is defeating their objective of putting fish in the box.

But Jeff has always expressed an eagerness to try new methods, techniques and systems in his hunt for salmon and he welcomed the challenge.

Before launching a third line into the water, a two-pound coho had fallen prey to a chartreuse Tadpolly. Heintz christened a new rubber net that purported to be tangle-free and the net lived up to expectations.

IT WASN'T LONG after an ultralight line was extended that the first hit was recorded. The rod buckled in half as I yanked it out of the holder, but two revolutions on the reel gave me the sickening feeling that the fish had snapped the line.

"It didn't break at the knot or the line would be curled at the end," Jeff said, examining the limp monofilament. "You either ran into a sharp-toothed chinook or just something that was too big for the equipment."

By adjusting the drag systems on Mitchell 308 and Daiwa Mini-Cast reels, the feather-like resistance served as a shock absorber when the fish hit.

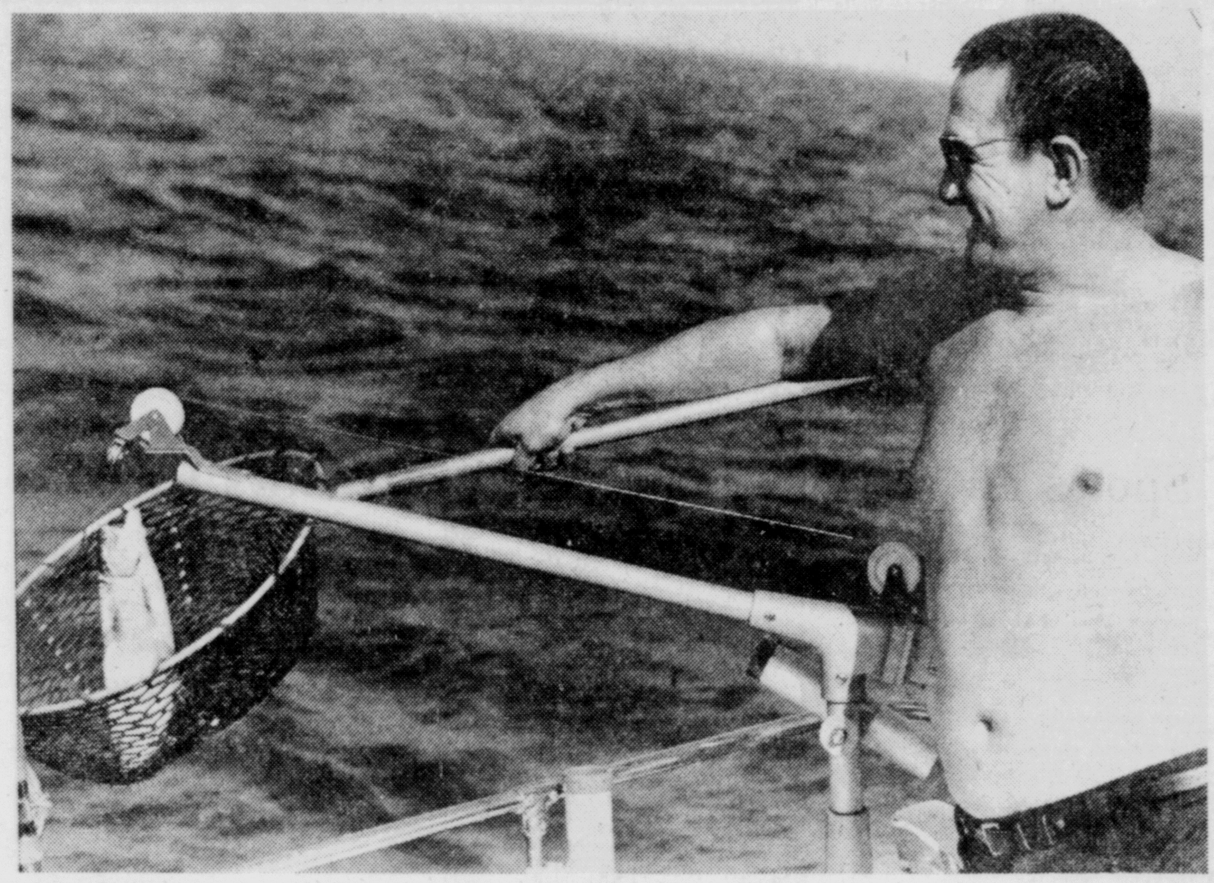
The trick to fishing ultralight gear in Lake Michigan is speed and quickness. Most reel spools have a very limited capacity or maybe 80-100 yards.

FISHING 20 YARDS behind the boat doesn't allow much reaction time. The moment a fish hits until the drag is tightened down and the cranking begins, is only a matter of seconds. Toss in the boat's trolling speed as added drag and the time element is even more critical.

The 13 young coho that visited our cooler during the 2½-hour trip expressed a preference for surface or flat lines and yellow or green lures with Skimpy LIndas and Tadpollys drawing the most attention.

With the water temperature still only 45 degrees, it's anyone's guess how long the coho will remain in Waukegan. They shouldn't be there in the first place, not yet, anyway.

At this time of year, the action is traditionally in warm water near Michigan City, Ind. Waukegan's heyday is usually reserved for June. But the coho are certainly welcomed to stay especially now when they're so acrobatic to catch and delicious to eat.



NETMINDER. Lake Michigan charter boat captain Jeff Heintz of Palatine cradles a two-pound coho salmon safely in the landing net. Fishermen who took advantage of last week's mild temperatures were generally rewarded with limits of salmon.

Coho '77 fish derby opens May 1

The Chicago Park District's Coho '77 fishing derby will begin at 9 a.m. Sunday, May 1, and continue through the month, ending at 6 p.m. Saturday, May 28, with hundreds of prizes to be awarded.

There is no fee to enter the contest. All fishermen except the handicapped, those under 16 and senior citizens must have a valid Illinois fishing license with a salmon stamp.

Contestants may enter any of the four designated game fish legally caught in the waters of Lake Michigan, or Chicago Park District harbors or lagoons, as long as the fish is caught within the city limits of Chicago.

Designated fish are the Coho and Chinook salmon, or brown and rainbow trout. Fishermen must take the fish they wish to enter to one of the official weigh-in stations at Burnham Park Harbor, Jackson Park or Montrose fishing pier, all of which will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

A separate entry blank, available at participating bait and tackle shops, will be required for each fish entered.

Hundreds of sweepstakes prizes will be awarded, as well as weekly prizes for the largest fish caught, with grand prizes at the contest's end for the largest catch in each category.

Pike get reproductive aid in Spring Grove hatchery

Wanted: Young male northern pike, preferably virile.

If it were only a matter of placing a newspaper ad to obtain breeder fish for stocking purposes, Illinois Dept. of Conservation fishery biologist Harvey Brown's problem would be solved.

For the past two weeks, Brown has been capturing northern pike during their spring spawning migration, hoping to obtain fertilized eggs from which to raise northerns at the state's Spring Grove fish hatchery.

THE ONLY hitch, he says, is that most of the dozen or so males he has captured so far are on the small side and have not produced any milt. No problem with the females, however; the largest was a 12-pounder and most have been ripe with eggs.

Last week, he estimates that 30,000 fertilized pike eggs hatched at Spring Grove because of his efforts. That may sound like a lot but fishery biologists normally try to stock 1,000 pike "fry" per acre to insure survival of only a few of the newly hatched pike

Usually about this time of year, when the water temperature reaches between 38 and 40 degrees, the pike migrate up smaller streams and into marshes where they spawn.

But because there is not an abundance of good pike spawning habitat in Illinois, some hatchery reproduction is necessary to maintain strong pike populations in heavily-fished areas like Warrior Lake at Morraine Hills State Park.

To capture the pike Brown used wing nets set overnight in the chilly Fox. He captured about 30 northerns. Although he doesn't anticipate this new breeder stock will be enough to wipe out a deficit of good game fish imposed by a cruel winter kill, he's optimistic about the success of his northern pike breeding project.

"Next year we'll nail them," he says of the elusive northern.

AS FOLLOW up to his egg gathering project, Brown plans to establish a pike breeding marsh, possibly along the Fox River at Morraine Hills State Park. Such a marsh would enable him to raise the northerns until their chances of survival were much greater, instead of being forced to stock them as newly hatched fry.

Current facilities at Spring Grove are inadequate to raise the pike there.

Peorian catches 25-lb. muskie

Vern Swords of Peoria caught a 25-pound state record muskie last week at Spring Lake. His son, Steve, helped him land it when, as the fish was beached he got out of the boat and grabbed it by the gills. Swords used a Big O lure. The fish tops the previous record, a 22-pounder, caught by Richard L. Emmons of Bellevue, also at Spring Lake, May 6, 1972.

11-year-old wins Herald contest

White Sox gain new fan

Since the White Sox traded Bucky Dent, Kurt Petersen isn't sure who his favorite player is anymore.

But, as winner of The Herald's Batboy Contest, he will have plenty of time to find one when he joins the team for their April 29-May 1 homestand against the Texas Rangers.

Petersen, 11, of 1218 Burr Oak Dr. in Arlington Heights, submitted a unique essay using each letter in the words WHITE SOX to describe "Why I would like to be a White Sox batboy or batgirl."

Kurt Petersen

HIS ESSAY was selected from 142 entries (101 boys, 41 girls) by former major leaguer Bill "Moose" Skowron, author Stella Pevsner and American Legion baseball coach Lloyd Meyer.

Finishing second in the judging was Chris Glomski of Elk Grove. Other runnersup were Tom Alesia of Mount Prospect, Rich Arshonsky of Des Plaines, Philip Berins of Buffalo Grove, Julie Cywinski of Arlington Heights, Kurt Fischer of Des Plaines, Ellen Kucz of Hoffman Estates, Steven Lezaj of Mount Prospect and Bradley Sherman of Des Plaines.

Petersen, a sixth grader at Riley School in Arlington Heights, said it took him a while to think up his entry.

"In a Bicentennial contest I used 'FREEDOM' and it worked," he said. "I didn't win but I thought I would try it again."

KURT HASN'T been out to Comiskey Park to see his favorite team this year but he has high hopes for their eventual finish.

"I think they'll finish second or third or maybe first," he said.

In addition to helping the Sox out during their series with the Rangers, Kurt will have a picture of himself taken with a White Sox player, receive a baseball autographed by the White Sox, a Zenith multiple band radio, a White Sox cap and box seat tickets for his parents for each game he serves as batboy.

Kurt's winning entry went like this, using the letters in White Sox.

"I would like to be a batboy for the White Sox because I would like to have the thrill to:

Watch my favorite major league team and ballplayers win their opener.

Have a White Sox cap and tickets for my mom and dad.

Listen To the White Sox on the Zenith radio when I'm not at the games.

Meet Every player on the White Sox and talk to them about baseball and how they became a major leaguer.

Stand up on the field with the ballplayers and practice with them.

Say, "Oh, my gosh" when I trip over the bats in my excitement.

Get X'cellent tips on baseball from the White Sox players to help me be a better ballplayer in Little League.

ROUGH TIMES. This pretty well shows the plight of Johnny Miller on the golf tour this year. Miller had more problems on the second round Friday in the LaCosta Tournament of Champions. See story below.

Benson will be top pick in NBA draft

NEW YORK — Kent Benson, the 6-foot-11 center from Indiana University, will be the number one choice by the Milwaukee Bucks in the National Basketball Assn. college draft on June 10.

The Bucks won the right to select first by winning the coin toss — over the Kansas City Kings — conducted via telephone by Commissioner Lawrence O'Brien from New York on Friday.

"We have a high regard for Kent as a basketball player and as a person," said Milwaukee General Manager Wayne Embry, who will become vice president of the corporation which owns the club on July 1. "We feel he will fit in well here and will be a great help to us."

Benson, who was named to UPI's first team All-American college basketball squad for the second time in 1976-77, led the Hoosiers in rebounds (241) and scoring average (19.8) this season, despite missing the last four games after aggravating a back injury. In 1975-76, after leading Indiana to its second straight undefeated season and an NCAA championship, he was operated on for a broken wrist and was unable to appear in the Olympics.

Wynn shoots 67, leads at LaCosta

LA COSTA, Calif. — Veteran Bob Wynn, a winner only once in seven years on the pro golf tour, grabbed a three-shot lead over Jack Nicklaus Friday by carding a five-under-par 67 in the second round of the $225,000 Tournament of Champions.

Wynn, 37, finished the day with a 36-hole total of 137, seven under par.

Nicklaus, beaten by two shots by Tom Watson at the Masters last week, shot a second-round 69 for a 140 total.

First-day co-leaders Johnny Miller and Ray Floyd flatered to 74 and 76 respectively.

Miller, battling to end a season-long slump that has seen him make only $3,098, fell back into a third place tie with Gary Koc and early-season tour sensation Bruce Lietzke at 141, three under.

Floyd, who took a seven on the par three, 181-yard seventh hole, dropped six shots off the pace at 143.

Watson, suffering from a post-Masters letdown, struggled in with a one-over 73 that gave him 147 after two days.

Islanders, Flyers skate to wins

Jude Drouin's second goal of the night, while his team held a two-man advantage in the second period, put the New York Islanders ahead to stay in a 4-3 National Hockey League playoff victory over the Buffalo Sabres Friday night in Buffalo.

The win gave the Islanders a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven game series which they could close out Sunday in Buffalo.

Rick MacLeish, whose unassisted goal with 38 seconds left in the third period tied the game, scored at 2:55 of overtime to give the Philadelphia Flyers a 4-3 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs.

It was the Flyers' first victory in the best-of-7 NHL playoff series after Toronto won the first two games at Philadelphia. The fourth game will be played Sunday in Toronto.

Part-timer bowls into No. 1 spot

TOLEDO, Ohio — Mike Samardzija of Southfield, Mich., a part-time performer on the Professional Bowlers Association tour, is the top-seeded bowler for today's finals of the $70,000 Toledo Open.

John Denton of Midland, Tex., and Wendell Davis of Johnson City, Tenn., tied for the second spot. Denton then defeated Davis 268-201 in a one-game rolloff to win the position.

Rounding out the five finalists are fourth-seeded Steve Jones of Independence, Mo., and fifth-seeded Nelson Burton Jr. of St. Louis, the 1970 PBA Player of the Year.

Samardzija, competing in only his third tournament this year, began the final session of match play in first place and held the lead by winning six of eight match play games. He finished with a 42-game total pinfall of 9,875 and had an 18-6 match play record. He has never won a PBA event.

Billie Jean King and transsexual Dr. Renee Richards reached the semifinals Friday of the $20,000 Lionel Cup Women's Tennis Tournament in Port Washington, N.Y. . . . King will play Jane Stratton today and Richards will meet Caroline Stoll.

Peggy Kennedy, the Northern Arizona University women's basketball star from Schaumburg who led the team in almost every category during the 1976-77 season, has been listed among the top 10 scorers, rebounders and single-game high scorers in the Intermountain Conference . . . Kennedy also received honorable mention for the All-conference team.

Brewers, red-hot A's, Tigers win

From Herald Wire Services

Sixto Lezcano and Cecil Cooper drove in five runs between them Friday night to lead the Milwaukee Brewers to their third victory in four games with the New York Yankees, 7-4.

Lezcano, who beat Don Gullett with a pair of homers last weekend, stroked a two-run single off the Yankee left-hander in the first inning to give the Brewers a 2-0 lead.

Cooper delivered a two-run triple to highlight a five-run fifth inning that gave the Brewers a 7-1 lead and saddled Gullett with his second loss.

Jerry Augustine, who posted his second win against New York this season, allowed just one hit and one run until the eighth inning when the Yankees rapped him for five singles and scored three runs. Bill Castro and Bob McClure finished up for Milwaukee.

Reggie Jackson did not play for New York because of a sore left elbow.

MIKE TORREZ, with eighth inning relief help pitched Oakland to a 3-2 win over the Minnesota Twins, the A's fifth straight victory and seventh in eight games.

Rod Carew's 437-foot home run leading off the eighth was only the fifth hit off Torrez, but chased him from the game. Pablo Torrealba and Dave Giusti cleaned up.

The A's nicked starter and loser Paul Thormodsgard for all three runs in the fifth. Rob Picciolo hit a solo homer, his first in the majors, and rookie sensation Mitchell Page, who is hitting .500, drove in two runs with a single.

Roy Smalley drove in Minnesota's first run with a single in the third.

BEN OGLIVIE knocked in three runs with a home run and a sacrifice fly to give the Detroit Tigers a 4-3 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Ogilvie stroked his second home run of the season after Jason Thompson had doubled in the second inning and then knocked in what proved to be the game-winning run with a bases loaded sacrifice fly in the sixth inning which scored Tito Fuentes.

Detroit scored its other run in the sixth inning on consecutive singles by Ron LeFlore, Fuentes and Steve Kemp to enable Vern Ruhle to even his record at 1-1. Ruhle went 7-2/3 innings before giving way to Jim Crawford. Crawford was relieved by Steve Foucault in the ninth when the Royals got the tying run to second base and Foucault got the final out to pick up his first save.

Kansas City scored its first run in the third inning on a single by George Brett and a double by Amos Otis and used two Detroit errors in the seventh inning to score its final runs.

TAMBOURINE

Dancers in South America often use tambourines. To make a tambourine, glue the rims of two paper plates together. (Plate bottoms should be on the outside.) Let dry. Decorate with paint or felt-tipped markers. Punch six holes near the edge of the plates. Space them evenly around the rim.

With a hammer, flatten 12 pop bottle caps. Pull off cork centers. Hammer a nail hole through the center of each cap. Tie two bottle caps to each hole with a short piece of yarn. Tie loosely so the caps can jingle when the tambourine is shaken.

Ask Andy

Flowers' scent helps process of pollination

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Patricia Schulz, 13, of Enid, Okla., for her question:

HOW DO FLOWERS GET THEIR SCENT?

A sweet-smelling flower for many people is one of the great joys of life. Poets through the ages have praised the fragrant blossoms. On important occasions, there isn't anything quite as appealing or as appreciated as a large bouquet of flowers with its special perfume from nature.

Distinctive odors of flowers are, of course, nature's special gift. The smell we enjoy in most flowers comes from special kinds of essence, or oils, the plant makes itself.

You'll find a family resemblance between most flower scents, especially when they are made by related plants. All roses, for example, have similar pleasing and delicate odors, although each is distinctive.

The oil from flowers is a complicated compound of two elements, carbon and hydrogen, with sometimes a little oxygen. This type of compound often is called the volatile oil. Volatile simply means flying and the oil is known to escape readily into the air and move about in it.

Did you know that some flowers smell sweeter at night than they do during the day?

Flowers that become especially fragrant at night attract certain types of night-flying moths. The moths land on the sweet blossoms, collect pollen from one along with some nectar and then rub the pollen off on another flower and fertilize it.

The special partnership between plants and animals is, of course, very noticeable between lots of flying insects and many of the flower-producing shrubs, trees and grasses. The fact the flowers have a pleasant scent plays an important part in the game.

Insects are attracted to a blossom by its color, shape, nectar or scent — with scent being an especially favorable attracting device. Once on the flower they can get on with the important job of carrying fertilizing pollen from one blossom to another.

Most garden roses are the result of development by careful breeding. Along with beautiful blossoms that are both full and colorful, the breeders attempt to capture an especially fragrant scent. Sight and smell go together to present the total picture of a rose.

Andy sends a Denoyer-Geppert World Globe to Laura Hordubay, 9, of Verona, Pa., for her question:

HOW DO BRUSSELS SPROUTS GROW?

Brussels sprouts are tiny cabbage heads, and they grow on a stem in clusters. They are definitely in the cabbage family and were sold first in Brussels in 1213.

Scientists noticed a tendency in some wild cabbage plants to form little heads at the point where the stalk joins the leaf. They encouraged the plant to go on developing in this direction. The seeds from those that showed the tendency most were saved and planted and the selection went on this way until we had today's brussels sprouts.

Broccoli, by the way, means "little sprouts" in Italian. It's another member of the cabbage family and a close relative to brussels sprouts.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries are open to boys and girls 7 to 17.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Slam bid lucks out

John Saunders of Millville, N.Y., sent us today's most interesting hand with the comment: "The hour was late. My partner had never bid and made a grand slam before. This is my only excuse for the bidding."

Mr. Saunders adds that his partner frowned as he studied the dummy. Then his face relaxed into a smile. He won the first trick with the ace of diamonds, ruffed a diamond with dummy's ace of trumps, drew trumps while discarding two of North's clubs and claimed the grand slam. The hand will only produce 12 tricks at either spades or notrump.

The 13th trick with hearts as trump is made possible by the use of one of North's three trumps to ruff a diamond.

We must say there is considerable luck in getting to seven hearts. To start with, South might well have elected to respond either two clubs or two notrump in which case hearts would probably never have been bid. Then, Mr. Saunders wanted to give his partner a chance to play a grand slam which definitely influenced his selection of the final contract.

Short lived shows don't bother Franciscus

by Vernon Scott

Jim Franciscus, who made his debut at midseason in "Hunter," leads all other actors in the number of leading men played in weekly television series.

"Hunter" is Jim's sixth weekly prime time show in 13 years.

Back in 1958 Jim was a cop in "Naked City." For "The Investigators" he was a detective. He was a school teacher in "Mr. Novak." In "Doc Elliott" he played a sawbones. And in "Longstreet" Jim was a blind insurance investigator.

This time around Franciscus is seen as a secret agent involved in counter intelligence activities.

The natty, blond star is running out of characters and occupations.

"I haven't played a lawyer yet," he said, grinning. "And I never will. Not that I have anything against the profession. There's just too much dialogue involved.

"Brad Dillman played an attorney in a series and almost went crazy memorizing pages of dialogue. He even played recordings of his lines while he slept, hoping to learn them by osmosis.

"The only other alternative is to use cue cards like Raymond Burr did for his years of courtroom scenes in 'Perry Mason.' And I don't want to do that."

Franciscus is philosophical about the short duration of his half dozen series. He's starred on all three major networks. Only "Mr. Novak," his favorite, endured more than a year, and it survived a scant two season.

"Look at it this way," he said. "It's been refreshing playing six different characters. I think it's better than playing one character in a series that runs six or seven years.

"The key to setting a record like mine is not to have any series run too long.

"You've gotta think of yourself as a success in this business if you get a show on the air at all."

Franciscus has little hope that "Hunter," in which Linda Evans plays his partner, will run longer than the 13 one-hour episodes just completed.

"I'd like to see the series renewed," he said. "The role of James Hunter appeals to me. There are two distinct sides to his character. Professionally he is a cynical man who's been through it all. On the personal side there is a certain innocence and humor to him.

"But chances of renewal are remote because the show has no gimmick — like the bionic thing. And it had only three weeks to establish a steady audience and rating.

"Networks used to give a show a year to build. Now it's all decided within the first month on the air.

"An actor is restricted in his interpretation of dramatic roles in a series. I've relied on the basic Jim Franciscus elements for each of my parts and pick up a few peripheral characteristics for the individual man I play.

"Sure, the wardrobes are different and the nuances differ to a degree. But a leading man in a dramatic series has to fit some preconceived outlines.

"I don't do guest shots on other series because producers stop thinking of you as a leading man in your own series. So you just have to sit it out, no matter how much you want to work, and wait for the next series or a movie.

"Fortunately, I was able to fly off to Australia to do a new feature film, 'Puzzle,' when we wrapped up 'Hunter.' I won't know until next month when CBS makes out its fall schedule whether the series is picked up. If not, I wait.

"I'm not alone in this category. David Janssen, Mike Connors, Peter Graves, James Farentino, Dick Crenna and a lot of other guys are in the same boat."

For all his experience on the tube, Franciscus never has attempted situation comedy. He has an aversion to the three-camera format and live audiences.

"I've done comedy in television movies," he said. "But I wouldn't want to spend all that time in a situation comedy just getting laughs without communicating something more to an audience.

"Even in the worst dramatic scrips there are worthwhile elements to bring to the audience. At least the characters are put in situations and confronted by experience that provoke some thought from viewers.

"I think 'Hunter' does that. And so did my other five series."

James Franciscus stars in the CBS series "Hunter" Fridays at 9 p.m. on Channel 2.

Gavin MacLeod

Q. I have a bet with my sister about Ray Bolger and I was wondering if you could settle it. I say, that Ray played both the part of the Scarecrow in "The Wizard of Oz" and the role of Murray Slaughter on the "Mary Tyler Moore" show. I'd appreciate it very much if you could help. S.M.

A. I'm going to help, but you may not appreciate it, because you're wrong. Murray of "MTM" is played by Gavin MacLeod not Ray.

Q. I have a $5 bet that you will print my question, I would like some info on that beautiful blonde on "Three's Company." Her name, birthday, how I can write to her, etc. Please print this because I don't have $5. R.M.

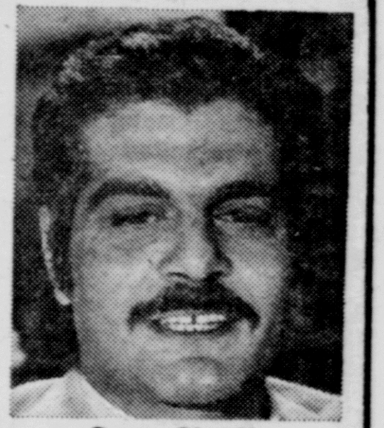
A. I was going to pass your letter but I reconsidered so that I could pass on a bit of advise. Don't bet what you don't have, that practice can cause a great deal of trouble and you may as well learn that fact at an early age. That blonde's name is Suzanne Somers, she's 5'6" tall and weighs 110 lbs., her birthday is October 16 and she has a son (Bruce) from an early marriage. Now donate the "fin" to charity.

Q. On the "Las Vegas Entertainment Awards" show, Jimmy Durante was honored. His wife accepted saying Jimmy sends his love. Is he enjoying life as a senior citizen? J.H.

A. Jimmy is 84 years old and has not been well.

Q. An answer to this question will mean very much to me. Did I, or did I not see two "Love Stories." One with Omar Sharif and Ali MacGraw and another with Ryan O'Neal and Ali MacGraw. C.E.

A. You did not. There were two "Love Stories" the O'Neal - MacGraw movie adapted from the Erich Segal book and a 1944 release originally titled "A Lady Surrenders" with Stewart Granger and Margaret Lockwood. Omar and Ali never made a movie together. Sorry!



Omar Sharif

A HERALD EXCLUSIVE

A SURVEY OF ISSUES AND CANDIDATES IN MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS ON TUESDAY, APRIL 19, 1977

29 seeking office in Des Plaines Tuesday

On April 19th, Des Plaines voters will elect eight aldermen, a mayor, a city clerk and a treasurer from a field of 29 candidates.

There are seven candidates for the mayor's race alone: Lorraine Angell, Charles J. Bolek, Walter F. Cloutier, Vernon Ecklund, Christian Figge, Herbert H. Volberding and David R. Wolf.

On paper, most of the candidates agree on the issues. As a result the campaign has centered on personality and experience.

The advantages and disadvantages of incumbency are diminished this election, as Bolek has been acting mayor for just seven months. Bolek was elected last August by his fellow aldermen when long-time mayor Herbert H. Behrel retired.

Whether the mayor should be allowed to hold an outside job became a campaign issue in December when the city council increased the mayor's salary from $25,000 to $32,500, and reaffirmed its intention to keep the mayor's post full-time.

Bolek has been criticized by the other candidates for continuing to keep his job as president of Jeco Industries. Bolek now says he will resign from Jeco if he wins the election.

The city council has in the past rejected motions which would have reduced the mayor's job to part-time and established a full-time professional city manager post.

There are three candidates who are unopposed in their bids for city office: Eleanor Rohrbach, running for reelection as city clerk; Ewald Swanson, running for city treasurer; and Ald. Daniel Kisslinger, 4th.

There are at least two candidates for alderman in the remaining seven wards:

- 1st Ward: Daniel J. Carr, Thomas J. Koplos, Ronald W. Loewe.
- 2nd Ward: Kenneth A. Kehe, George F. Olen.
- 3rd Ward: Thomas O'Malley, Ralph E. Ensign, Lysle Whetstone.
- 5th Ward: Ald. Irene M. Birchfield, Robert C. Reda, Clarence Gehrke.
- 6th Ward: Ald. Carmen J. Sarlo, Curtiss Schmidt, Barbara Schmidt.
- 7th Ward: Ald. Gerald J. Meyer, Carol Kempiak.
- 8th Ward: Ald. Richard F. Ward, Marian Ratajczak, and George Egan.

In addition to the role of the mayor, other issues to emerge in the campaign include the future direction of downtown redevelopment, the general cost of government, the use of federal funds and subsidized housing in Des Plaines.

Most candidates agree that continued redevelopment of the central business district is needed, but they disagree on how best to do it.

The multi-million dollar Superblock complex is the first effort at revitalizing the downtown area. All candidates support the project, but some are critical of some parts of it. The most controversial part is the construction of a $1.2 million parking deck at the city's expense in the immediate downtown area. It has been criticized for dividing the downtown district and for its overall appearance.

Other recommendations for the downtown area include creation of a riverfront park and establishment of an old fashioned motif for future renovation, a departure from the modernistic appearance of Superblock.

All candidates running for election opposed construction of low-income subsidized housing in Des Plaines using federal funds. However, establishment of subsidized senior citizens housing is supported by mayoral and aldermanic candidates. Funding such projects has met with differing opinions. Candidates have suggested the city create its own housing authority to seek private funding. A few have said Des Plaines should use federal funds, but only after careful study.

All candidates will be elected to four-year terms.

Mayoral race

Lorraine Angell

Address: 2843 Sycamore St.
Age: 54.
Residency: 10 years.
Community Involvement: First attempt at public office; member of the state advisory committee to revise licensing requirements for day care center.

- Goals: Lorraine Angell said her primary goals should she be elected mayor will be to reduce the property tax load for homeowners and provide low cost day care and health programs for the people of Des Plaines. She said she is running to represent the "little guy" in Des Plaines. "Basically I want to see the people get a fair shake. I'm tired of seeing the little guy get stepped on."
- Cost of Government: Mrs. Angell is proposing a reduction in the property taxes for homeowners by putting a greater burden on business and industry. She said Des Plaines could use its home-rule powers to tax business at a higher rate. "It's been done in Rosemont and I see no reason why it can't be done here." She said such a program would aid senior citizens and others living on fixed incomes.
- Role of Mayor, City Manager: Mrs. Angell favors retaining a full-time mayor and does not see the need to hire a city manager. "The people should elect a mayor who is a qualified administrator. Just because you have a college degree doesn't make you a good administrator." She cites her experience as administrator of the Angel Town Day Care Center as qualification for the job.
- Downtown Development: "I'd like to call a moratorium for six months or a year on Superblock to find out where we are going, find out what kind of tenants we'll be getting." She said she would need time to study the progress of downtown development to find out if it will meet the needs of the citizens. She said it doesn't make sense to have a lot of high price shops when the average everyday citizen is suffering economically." Mrs. Angell also wants to see free shopper parking in the downtown area.
- Subsidized Housing: "There definitely is a need for this kind of housing for our senior citizens. But I want to stay away from low-income housing." However, Mrs. Angell said Des Plaines should change its policy against using federal funds in some cases. She said federal money could be used to renovate the train station downtown and other programs.
- Other Proposals: Mrs. Angell wants the city to subsidize day care and nursery school facilities in Des Plaines and provide low-cost health care for residents. She has no cost estimate on the program.

Lorraine Angell

Charles Bolek

Address: 1388 Dennis Place.
Age: 52.
Occupation: Mayor of Des Plaines; President of Jeco Industries.
Community Involvement: Alderman, 3rd Ward, since 1965; president and director of the Des Plaines Chamber of Commerce in 1968; director for 12 years of the Northwest Suburban YMCA; past Exalted Ruler of the Elks Lodge; member of the VFW, American Legion and the Moose Lodge.
Residency: 26 years.

- Goals: Charles J. Bolek said his main goal is to see Superblock completed and running successfully. Elected acting mayor by the city council last August when Herbert Behrel resigned, Bolek stresses continuing the projects he has already begun: getting the railroad to build a new station on Miner Street, working with other suburbs to fight the Chicago water rate increase, and expanding services to senior citizens.
- Cost of Government: Bolek said he thinks the city has done a good job in the past keeping down city costs. He denies that fellow mayoral candidate Walter Cloutier was responsible for a recent reorganization of the sanitation department that saved the city $160,000. "It was devised by the administration," Bolek said. "There are other areas where we can reduce maybe one or two positions to save money."
- Role of Mayor, City Manager: In the past, Bolek has supported hiring a part-time mayor and a full-time city manager. He said he thinks a city manager is much better prepared to run a city than a private citizen. Since the city council has decided against this plan, however, Bolek said he is committed to working as a full-time mayor. He has promised to quit his job as president of Jeco Industries if he wins the election.
- Downtown Development: Bolek said he hopes to have free downtown parking for shoppers by this summer. He wants to build a pedestrian overpass across the railroad tracks to the north side of Miner Street, in connection with a new train station. The looks of the new parking deck can be improved, and its uses should be expanded.
- Subsidized Housing: "I've got the housing commission working very diligently on the possibility of building more senior citizen housing." Bolek is wary of using federal funds for housing, because he feels the city might be forced to admit non-residents. "We need low-cost and moderate income housing for our own people."
- Crime Prevention: Bolek thinks the police in Des Plaines have been doing a good job. "We've tried to maintain the image of the police department as a friendly department." He thinks current youth education programs hold the key to reduced vandalism.

Charles J. Bolek

Walter F. Cloutier

Address: 843 North Avenue.
Age: 30
Occupation: City Sanitation Dept. Truck Driver.
Community Involvement: Vice President of the public works dept. chapter of the Assn. of Independent Municipal Employes.
Residency: 28 years.

- Goals: Walter F. Cloutier's major goal is to hold down the cost of government, largely through re-organization of city departments. Other goals include creating a "suburban machine" to combat the "Chicago machine." Cloutier thinks the suburbs need to organize politically to solve problems that affect them all. "I would take steps myself to try to do it."
- Cost of Government: Cloutier takes credit for the current reorganization of the sanitation department which has cut costs by decreasing the number of men on each garbage route. He said he can cut $270,000 through similar reorganizations of other city departments. Cloutier proposes to put a $25,000 ceiling on all city salaries. He also plans to cut many supervisory positions. "I think if we would eliminate a lot of middle management positions we could save $100,000."
- Role of Mayor, City Manager: Cloutier would maintain a full-time mayor, but cut his salary to $25,000. He thinks a city manager would be "a waste of money." A city manager would become a scapegoat for things that go wrong in city government, he said.
- Downtown Development: Cloutier supports Superblock, and thinks the city should work through the Chamber of Commerce to attract more businesses to the downtown area. He would build a pedestrian overpass connecting the parking deck to the north side of Miner Street just west of the train station. He wants to keep the old city hall. "The building could be used for a community center and could be brought up to standards by volunteers of the community."
- Subsidized Housing: He is in favor of city involvement in subsidized housing only if the citizens of Des Plaines say they want it.
- Crime Prevention: "Punish the criminal." Cloutier would increase police protection of residential neighborhoods by sending patrolmen in frequently on small motorcycles. "You might have to hire more police, but if people want crime stopped, they'll have to do it."

Walter F. Cloutier

Vernon Ecklund

Address: 982 Woodlawn Avenue
Age: 49
Occupation: Printer, Fort Dearborn Lithograph Co., Niles.
Community Involvement: Past president of the Des Plaines Optimists Club; formerly active in the Boy Scouts, Algonquin district.
Residency: 19 years.

• Goals: Vernon Ecklund's primary goal is to increase Des Plaines' tax base by attracting more businesses to the city. "I feel a real long-range study should be done on how to do this." As mayor, Ecklund said he would encourage the policemen's union to get involved in training programs to increase officers' effectiveness. Ecklund would also like to see the old city hall torn down to make space for additional parking.

• Cost of Government: "I think the city is doing a pretty good job with keeping their costs down." Ecklund sees no places where the budget should be cut. "You can chop too far and start hurting services."

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: Ecklund opposes hiring a city manager. He thinks Des Plaines should have a full-time mayor, and that this should be his only job. "I think a full-time mayor has a tendency to take care of business. A part-time mayor just doesn't have the time to check up on a city administration the way he should."

• Downtown Development: "Oakton Street is going to be the sales center of Des Plaines. There isn't that much of a space to redevelop downtown now." Ecklund said he thinks the city should concentrate on attracting business to the Oakton Street area. He would like to see small shopping centers on Oakton Street that don't require much parking space. He also favors reversing Ellinwood Street to make it one-way westbound, which would ease the traffic flow in the area.

• Subsidized Housing: Ecklund said there is no need for low-cost housing. "I'm opposed to taking federal grants for low-cost housing. You come in with low-cost housing and the Federal government is going to run it." If the need is shown for senior citizen housing, however, "I'd be willing to go along with it."

• Other Proposals: "I'd like to see money spent to curb vandalism. I don't know exactly how to do it. Maybe you could do something with the schools."

Vernon Ecklund

Chris Figge

Address: 696 Therese Terr.
Age: 22.
Occupation: Salesman, Stewart Oxygen Service, Chicago.
Residency: 17 years.
Community Involvement, Offices: First attempt at public office.

• Goals: Energy conservation is a major goal of Christian Figge. He advocates the use of smaller police cars, burning garbage for energy production and installation of solar panels on all public buildings. He also wants to upgrade insulation standards for all buildings and encourage the use of alternative source of energy in all new construction.

• Cost of Government: "I think the people of Des Plaines are paying enough in taxes now and I would hate to see them go up. Anyone who becomes mayor should look at reorganizing departments to save money. Energy conservation is another area where we could save."

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: Figge supports the hiring of a city manager to direct the every day affairs of city government. However, he favors retaining a full-time mayor at a reduced salary. "I don't think the city has gotten a fair shake with the current mayor. The mayor should devote himself full time to the job."

• Downtown Redevelopment: Redevelopment of the downtown area should continue, Figge said, including construction of a new train station and the opening of a pedestrian crossing over the railroad tracks. He also supports efforts to boost the Oakton Street business district and provide more parking there. Figge said tax breaks should be given to business that develop more parking in the area.

• Subsidized Housing: "I'm not in favor of low income housing as such, but senior citizens housing is obviously acceptable in Des Plaines. I would not offer a radical departure from the way housing has been put up in the past in Des Plaines. "Figge said the city always should look into various programs where there is federal funding. "However, there are some kinds of funds the city would be better off without," he said referring to Community Development Grant funds which require a housing assistance plan.

• Other Programs: Figge supports establishment of a single emergency telephone number for Des Plaines fire and police departments. He wants to use the old city hall on Miner street for a senior citizens center or Des Plaines Historical Society Museum, and tear down the old courthouse and police department for more municipal parking.

Christian Figge

Herbert Volberding

Address: 1227 Cora St.
Age: 49
Occupation: Des Plaines Police Detective, real estate salesman.
Residency: Lifetime.
Community Involvement: Des Plaines Elks Club.

• Goals: Herbert H. Volberding said he would use his rapport with the people to open up city government. "I will have constant contact with the public. This is your council, you tell me how you want the city run," he said.

• Cost of Government: "Dollar for dollar, Des Plaines spends its money well. We have a very efficiency-prone government." Volberding said costs could be cut, however, by consolidating city council committees.

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: Volberding sees no need for a city manager, and would leave this up to the city council. He is for a full-time mayor, and said he would stop his Des Plaines real estate business if elected.

• Downtown Development: "I don't see much success for Superblock until it's modified." He said rents are too high. Volberding would build a new train depot and would consider building a pedestrian walk-way over the tracks. He said the old city hall is poorly built and should be torn down.

• Subsidized housing: Volberding said he is in favor of more housing for Des Plaines senior citizens, but that he doesn't see the need for general low-income housing.

• Crime Prevention: "I don't think our crime rates are any different than any other suburban communities."

• Other proposals: Volberding said he would try to get the state to move Hwy. 62 from Oakton St. to Touhy Ave. "This would solve much of the traffic problem."

Herbert H. Volberding

David Wolf

Address: 674 Laurel Avenue
Age: 46
Occupation: Former Asst. Fire Chief, retired.
Community Involvement: Past chairman of the Des Plaines Historical Landmarks Commission; member of the special task force for community development, 1974-75; recipient of the 1976 Distinguished Service Award from the Illinois Bicentennial Commission, candidate for Mayor in 1973.
Residency: 46 years

• Goals: "The people aren't happy with the direction the city council is moving in." Wolf vows to have an administration that is open to the people and able to work to resolve factions within the city council. Specific goals include creation of a task force to study the city's traffic problems, funding an alcohol and drug counseling service for juveniles and young adults, and reorganizing the city council committee system.

• Cost of Government: Wolf said the current level of city spending is reasonable. He sees city costs leveling-off in the near future as the growth of the city stabilizes. "The cost of government shouldn't materially change, because the demand for services shouldn't increase."

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: Wolf opposes hiring a city manager, saying they tend to have "a cold and very calculating attitude. They never really establish a rapport with the community." He favors a full-time mayor. "Anyone willing to take $32,000 should be willing to give his full attention to the job."

• Downtown Development: "I'm convinced the people want the downtown business district redeveloped," Wolf said. However, he feels it should be done at the risk of private developers, not the city. He calls the Behrel Parking Plaza an "ugly monstrosity" that has divided the community, "physically and spiritually." He said it shows a lack of vision on the part of the mayor and city council. Wolf would build a new train station west of Graceland Avenue, and develop an historic riverfront park on the corner of Miner Street and River Road.

• Subsidized Housing: "The fact that we have no low-income housing in Des Plaines is indicative of the need. If there is a need, it should be met by private developers." For senior citizens, however, Wolf said the city should build several more housing units.

• Other Proposals: "There's going to have to be some strong organization of efforts between police, parents, schools and youth to stop vandalism. The heart of the problem is why these people are vandalizing. I think it's all a cry for attention. There's got to be some kind of youth center provided, with people there willing to listen."

City clerk

Bertha Eleanor Rohrbach

Address: 210 Wisconsin Drive Age: 50
Occupation: City Clerk since 1965.
Community Involvement: League of Women Voters; Soroptimist International; president, Municipal Clerks of Illinois, 1971-73; International Institute of Municipal Clerks, Board of Directors, 1975 to present.
Residency: 20 years

"I'm running for the office of clerk because I have enjoyed serving the City of Des Plaines and feel I need four more years to develop a central file system wherein all records of the city will be in one office," Eleanor Rohrbach said.

Mrs. Rohrbach said she has experience in personnel management, banking, and secretarial work. She is running unopposed for a fourth term.

1st Ward:

Daniel J. Carr

Address: 2535 Suffield St.
Age: 38.
Occupation: Salvage broker.
Community Involvement, Offices: Former Des Plaines police officer.
Residency: 20 years.

• 1st Ward Goals: "City government needs a change from the mayor right on down." Carr said he would see that street lighting is improved in the first ward, River Road is repaired and Weller Creek is cleaned up. He also said he would permit Forest Hospital, 555 Wilson Ln., to expand.

• Cost of Government: Carr said the city can save money if they stop removing dead trees from private residences. He said more money should be spent on police equipment, however.

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: Carr said a full-time mayor would take a more personal view of the city than a manager. He said a manager "would not stay long enough."

• Downtown Development: "I don't think it's going as well as it should go." Carr would tear down the old city hall to make room for parking.

• Subsidized Housing: Carr is in favor of senior citizen housing, but not low-income housing. "I don't know where you could put it."

• Other Proposals: Carr said the city should crack down on trains that block traffic illegally. "The first ward is loaded with trains that break traffic laws. I would say that's a major problem and it's almost ignored."

Daniel J. Carr

Thomas J. Koplos

Address: 535 Bellaire Ave.
Age: 45.
Occupation: Truck driver for Skokie Valley Asphalt Co., Des Plaines.
Residency: Lifetime.
Community Involvement: Alderman since 1969; member of Des Plaines Elks Club, Des Plaines Moose Lodge; past president and current member of the Bellaire Acres Civic Assn.

• 1st Ward Goals: Street repairs and stepping up police patrols in the 1st ward are priorities of Ald. Thomas Koplos. "This has been a tough winter on the streets. We also hope to pave some unimproved streets in Hawthorne Lane, Bellaire Acres and River Rand neighborhoods." He also said he wants to cut down on the number of speeders in the ward.

• Cost of Government: "The tax rate is about as high as the city will take. I'm not in favor of tax increases to balance the budget. Instead we should establish a list of priorities where cuts could be made. Right now I think the budget is about in line. You have to play the devil's advocate, though, to justify expenditures."

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: Koplos favors hiring a city manager and making the mayor's post part-time. He said this would encourage more qualified people to run for office. "The mayor and city council, should devote more time to policy."

• Downtown Development: "I think Superblock will be a success. I've heard the rents are high, but they are high everywhere. I also think a railroad crossing, probably at grade level, is needed downtown. That would help the business situation." Koplos also said the city should encourage developers by "listening closely to reasonable requests for zoning."

• Subsidized Housing: Koplos said there is room for subsidized housing for the elderly in Des Plaines, but is against low or moderate income projects. "I think there is a need for more senior citizens housing, but people in my ward are against federal funds. People are not cold-hearted about taking care of their own, but not on a metropolitan basis."

• Other Proposals: Koplos opposes any attempt to annex portions of unincorporated Maine Township because of high density and low building standards there. He wants to continue efforts to reduce Chicago water rates to Des Plaines and other suburbs.

Thomas J. Koplos

Ronald W. Loewe

Address: 1972 Big Bend Drive.
Age: 44.
Occupation: Repairman, Central Telephone Co., Des Plaines.
Community Involvement: Past commander of the American Legion; electrical union steward; raised funds for The Crusade of Mercy; worked on blood drives.
Residency: Nine years.

• 1st Ward Goals: Ronald W. Loewe said if he is elected he will work to improve the traffic problems in the 1st ward. He said many of the school crossings are dangerous, and recommends installing a system whereby crossing guards could manually flash traffic lights to alert motorists. He also recommends giving citizens a chance to talk at city council meetings. "I think the citizens deserve to be heard. If I were elected alderman, I'd like to have some meetings to meet people."

• Cost of Government: "Everything's going up. I don't see how you can cut it. Labor costs keep going up." Loewe said he isn't in favor of cutting any current city programs.

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: "I think we need a full-time mayor, someone willing to extend himself." Loewe opposes hiring a city manager.

• Downtown Development: "Something had to be done to bring more business into town. I don't know if Superblock is the answer. I'd like to see the City of Des Plaines flourish because I like the city. I think it's a good place to live."

• Subsidized Housing: "I don't know if there is really a need for it. There seems to be quite a bit of housing in Des Plaines."

• Other Proposals: "It doesn't seem like the kids have anywhere to go. They may need a youth center where they can listen to their own music. I'm for helping the kids all you can."

Ronald W. Loewe

2nd Ward:

Kenneth A. Kehe

Address: 1419 Forest Avenue.
Age: 45.
Occupation: Printer, Des Plaines Publishing Co.
Community Involvement: Alderman, 1971-75; Des Plaines Park Board commissioner, 1965-71; active in Optimist Club, Elks Club, Immanuel Lutheran Church, and the PTA.
Residency: 45 years.

• 2nd Ward Goals: Kenneth A. Kehe sees traffic congestion on Oakton Street as the main problem in the 2nd ward. He said the city should conduct a thorough traffic survey to try to solve the city-wide traffic problem. On Oakton Street, he recommends parking on alternate sides of the street during rush hour, and additional off-street parking. He also recommends passing an ordinance giving citizens the right to sign complaints against railroads that block crossings for more than 15 or 20 minutes. He favors additional street lighting in the 2nd ward to curb vandalism and theft.

• Cost of Government: "I'm sure it will continue to rise, because you have to give the employes a raise. In the past they have been given too much of a raise, however. The raises have to be curtailed. I don't think we can afford to cut back on any services."

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: "I've been in favor of a full-time mayor all the way along. However, the mayor should have an assistant to take charge when the mayor is out of town."

Kenneth A. Kehe

• Downtown Development: Kehe said he thinks Superblock "is going along very well. I was in favor of it years ago when I was on the city council." He recommends development of a riverfront park in Des Plaines. "We need some green areas in the downtown area."

• Subsidized Housing: "If at all possible, I'd like to see more senior citizen housing." Kehe thinks Des Plaines needs another development like the Henrich House. However, he said he doesn't think there is a need for low-income housing. As an alderman, Kehe opposed using federal funds for housing. "I'd be in favor of looking into it now. We may not be able to afford it without federal help."

George F. Olen

Address: 1570 Whitcomb Ave.
Age: 37.
Occupation: Consultant and sales manager of Midwest Concrete Products Inc., Franklin Park.
Residency:
Community Involvement, Offices: 2nd Ward Alderman since 1973; financial chairman for the Northwest Suburban Council of the Boy Scouts of America; football coach for St. Stephen's School, Little League baseball coach.

• 2nd Ward Goals: Upgrading existing housing in the 2nd Ward is a major goal of Ald. George F. Olen. In the last four years, Olen said he has sought through the city building department repairs on 87 homes in the ward. "There still is some rehabilitation that needs to be done. After all the 2nd Ward is the oldest ward in terms of houses and people."

• Cost of Government: Olen said services in Des Plaines can be improved without additional spending. He said city departments can be consolidated to save costs, but will not reveal his ideas during the election campaign. "I'm going to keep this to myself and talk it over with department heads after the election." He said money saved in this way should go to existing services, not to reduce taxes "because this would only mean only pennies to the tax payer."

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: "My personal opinion differs from the way I have voted in the past. I voted to retain a full time mayor because that's what the people of Des Plaines want. My personal opinion is that we should hire the best professional manager we can find and have a part-time mayor. But as long as the people want a full-time mayor, I will support that."

George F. Olen

• Downtown Development: Olen said any further downtown redevelopment should come after the city has decided on a theme or master plan for the central business district. "We have to be honest with ourselves. What do we want? Massive redevelopment or an older atmosphere? Nobody knows where we want to go, there is no pattern." He said the city must make that determination before proceeding. Olen does favor a new train station in the downtown area.

• Subsidized Housing: Olen said the city needs another subsidized housing complex for senior citizens because the only other facility, Henrich House, has a long waiting list.

3rd Ward:

Thomas E. O'Malley

Address: 1208 S. Third Avenue.
Age: 62.
Occupation: City of Chicago electrician, retired.
Community Involvement: Active in Chicago politics, serving as an aide to Rep. Dan. J. Ronan, D-6th, and to two Chicago aldermen.
Residency: Two years.

• 3rd Ward Goals: Thomas E. O'Malley said he thinks the main duty of an alderman is to be available to his constituents, and to represent them if they have problems with the city, county or state. In the 3rd ward, O'Malley is concerned about some of the open land on Oakton Street. He said he would work to keep large high-rise developments out of his ward.

• Cost of Government: "We're a victim of the times and inflation." O'Malley said if he is elected he will take a look at city departments to see where cuts can be made. "Any city budget, regardless of the size, can be cut without cutting services."

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: O'Malley said the major should make the position his full-time job. Otherwise there are "too many chances for conflict of interest." He opposes hiring a city manager. "The mayor is elected by the people. He has more to gain by doing a good job."

• Downtown Development: O'Malley likes Superblock, but said he thinks future downtown development should be determined by private enterprise. He said the city should hire a full-time traffic engineer to solve traffic problems, rather than hiring consultants.

• Subsidized Housing: "No town should seek federal funds until the last resort. It's like going to the mafia — they own you. I'm not in favor of low-income housing, except for senior citizens. Senior citizen housing should always be a must in any town."

Thomas E. O'Malley

Ralph E. Ensign

Address: 910 East Grant Drive.
Age: 56.
Occupation: Insulation consultant, Paul J. Krez Co., Skokie.
Residency: 24 years.
Community Involvement: Member of American Legion, First Congregational Church of Des Plaines.

• 3rd Ward Goals: Ralph E. Ensign, if elected, wants to hold general meetings in the ward to give residents the opportunity to talk about their problems. "This takes the pressure off. It gives them a chance to express their opinions."

• Cost of Government: "I don't believe in spending if you don't have it. Des Plaines is a big operation. I believe the council should make every effort to save money."

• Downtown Development: "You've got to have a viable downtown to survive. We generate sales tax revenue which is good for the city. The city can do certain things, but property owners have to cooperate on this. They should be upgrading their stores and merchandise. It's not good when I go to Des Plaines and find I have to go out to Woodfield to get what I want."

Ensign said the traffic problems are hurting businessmen on Oakton Street but he has "no simple solution" to the problem. "An overpass would help relieve it, but nobody wants it on their street," he said. "We need some professional help on this. Restricting parking along the street in the afternoon and mornings would help."

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: "If we go with a part-time mayor and city manager it would increase our costs. The trouble with a city manager is that they are not in tune with the community. You are either going to get a young man trying to make a name for himself so he can move on, or an old man on the way down."

• Subsidized Housing: Ensign said he will back more low cost housing projects for senior citizens, "but only one project at a time so we don't saturate the city with them. I would be against low income housing because 90 per cent of the people in the third ward would be against it." He said there are low-income people in Des Plaines, but current federal programs make it impossible "to take care of the people you want to take care of."

Ralph E. Ensign

• Other Proposals: Ensign supports preservation of open space in Des Plaines and urges adoption of a master land use plan for the city.

Lysle T. Whetstone

Address: 893 Walnut Court.
Age: 35.
Occupation: Design engineer, Litton Medical Systems.
Community Involvement: Optimists Club.
Residency: Three years.

• 3rd Ward Goals: Lysle T. Whetstone thinks traffic is the most severe problem in the 3rd ward. "The streets are too narrow." More one-way streets in the ward would create a smoother flow of traffic, he said.

• Cost of Government: Whetstone said he doesn't know of any current programs that should be cut, but that he plans to study the problem if he is elected. He said he would work to achieve a balanced budget.

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: Whetstone favors a full-time mayor, and opposes hiring a city manager. "I don't want to create another political job."

• Downtown Development: He thinks the city should adopt a comprehensive plan and follow it. He said he has had reservations about Superblock, but hopes it succeeds. "There's nothing we can do about it now, it's up. I'd like to see it work." Whetstone recommends building a new train station one block west of the current station. He said it should have a car turnaround, and a parking deck on top.

• Subsidized Housing: He favors building more senior citizen housing in the downtown area, to give residents access to area businesses. He favors using federal funds, "depending on what strings are attached." He opposes building more low-income housing.

• Other Proposals: Whetstone opposes the suit against Chicago to force the city to lower their suburban water rates. "That's like telling Commonwealth Edison you're not going to pay your bill."

Lysle T. Whetstone

4th Ward:

Daniel Kisslinger

Address: 131 E. Fremont Avenue
Age: 52
Occupation: Mechanical Engineer, Hattis Associates, Deerfield
Community involvement: Alderman since 1971; former member of the school Dist. 62 School Board Caucus; former member of the Safety Council of Des Plaines; active in cub scouts, boy scouts, little league baseball and the First Congregational Church.
Residency: 15 years

• 4th Ward Goals: "The 4th ward is very fortunate. It probably has fewer problems than any other ward in the whole city. It's primarily residential, and fairly well developed." Kisslinger said he is trying to curb vandalism and crime in the 4th Ward by providing more street lighting. "I'm sure we could put more police on the street and they would do some good, but there is a diminishing return." Kisslinger favors building a railroad overpass or underpass on Algonquin Street, because this is where Des Plaines residents would get the most use out of it. He also favors expanding city youth programs.

• Cost of Government: "Our city employes' pay scale and benefits are far above what comparable employes in the private sector make." He said there is little the city can do about this. "I'm not really in favor of cutting costs. I hope to provide basics for the city."

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: "I've been in favor of a full-time mayor from the day I became an alderman." Kisslinger opposes hiring a city manager or administrative assistant. "It would just add another $10,000 or so of salary."

• Downtown development: "Presently the the downtown area is a complete eyesore. We're going to have to address ourselves to making it a more beautiful area. It will involve a lot more money." Kisslinger recommends creating free parking for shoppers downtown.

• Subsidized housing: "As a bare minimum, we definitely need one more senior citizen home in the near future. The need for senior citizen housing is almost a nightmare." Kisslinger said the rest of the council has been afraid of using federal funds because of the supposed strings attached. He says there are about 13 aldermen who see minority housing as opening the door to "a creeping hoarde." Nevertheless, Kisslinger opposes low-income housing. "The Des Plaines people just aren't ready for a major high-rise low-income housing unit."

Treasurer:

Ewald A. Swanson

Address: 1856 Welwyn Avenue
Age: 57
Occupation: Real Estate Salesman, Wm. L. Kunkel & Co.
Community Involvement: Alderman, 1963-75; Lions Club; Elks Club; American Legion; member of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors.
Residency: 26 years

Ewald Swanson said he is running for treasurer because, "I like to do my part for Des Plaines." He is unopposed.

The next city treasurer will have fewer responsibilities and make less money than the current treasurer. Last September the city council voted to reduce the treasurer's annual salary from $12,000 to $1,800 and make it a part-time job.

The main duties of the treasurer are to sign all city checks, collect special assessment taxes, file an annual statement of city expenditures, and serve as treasurer of the Fire Dept. Pension Board and the Police Dept. Pension Board.

Ewald A. Swanson

The new treasurer will not be responsible for collecting property taxes or compiling lists of the holders of city bonds. These duties will now be handled by the city comtroller.

Swanson said he hasn't yet decided whether he thinks the reductions are a good idea. "I'm really not sure. I think it's a responsible position. It's important to make sure the city is spending its money according to ordinance," he said.

5th Ward

Irene Birchfield

Address: 2045 Spruce St.
Age: 50
Occupation: homemaker, city alderman.
Community Involvement: alderman, 1973 to present; member, League of Women Voters.

• 5th Ward: Ald. Irene Birchfield said airport noise and the poor conditions of railroad crossings in the 5th Ward are major problems which should be corrected. "There's very little we can do on the local level to cut down on the noise, but I do support efforts by city officials to bring pressure on the airport." Mrs. Birchfield said she is campaigning on her record, citing the anti-vandalism ordinance and the city's decriminalization of marijuana which she proposed.

• Cost of Government: Mrs. Birchfield said the city has done a "fairly good job" of keeping the budget down, and she supports further efforts to keep a lid on expenses.

• Role of Mayor, City manager: "I'm very much in favor of a full-time mayor. Whether we have a city manager depends on who is elected mayor. If we get somebody who is not that informed, we'll have to get some help."

• Downtown Development: "I'm very much for it," she said. She said the downtown area needs another restaurant and a large grocery store. Mrs. Birchfield also said creation of a riverfront park and construction of a new train station should be investigated.

• Subsidized Housing: Mrs. Birchfield said she doesn't favor the city's use of federal money where "strings are attached." She is against low-income housing projects because "they are just not working out" other places. She said the city should do what is best for Des Plaines in the area of housing.

Irene Birchfield

Robert C. Reda

Address: 1855 Plainfield Dr.
Age: 44
Occupation: Sales Manager, McGregor Swire Air Services Ltd., Elk Grove Village.
Residency: 17 years.
Community involvement: First try at public office.

• 5th Ward Goals: Robert C. Reda wants to establish an office in the 5th Ward to foster better communication between the residents and city government. "I feel there hasn't been enough communication between the people of the ward and their aldermen. Most people don't even know who the aldermen are." He also said street maintenance is a major problem in the ward that should be corrected.

• Cost of Government: Reda said he won't know if and where to cut the city budget until he can take a close look at it. However, he said there are many grants available to the city for improving services that currently are not being used. "There are monies available for things, but nobody knows where to get them."

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: The city should continue with a full time mayor, Reda said, and should not hire a professional manager to handle day to day operation. "A full-time elected mayor will be more responsive to people than a manager." He said the mayor should not hold an outside job, though.

• Downtown Development: Reda said he would like to see future downtown development done in an older motif. "I don't like the modern look. We had something being an older town. We should have preserved it," he said in reference to the modernistic Superblock development. He said it was a mistake to build a city parking facility next to Superblock before the development proves successful.

• Subsidized Housing: Reda is opposed to any multi-family low income projects in Des Plaines because "they place a burden on services."

Robert C. Reda

Clarence E. Gehrke

Address: 2086 Ash Street
Age: 47
Occupation: Real Estate and Insurance Broker, Ben F. Eidamiller & Co.
Community involvement: First attempt at public office.
Residency: 18 years

• 5th Ward Goals: Clarence E. Gehrke, Jr. said he thinks the city should spend more money to repair streets and sidewalks in the 5th ward. He said the city should set up a program to repair streets on a 50-50 cost sharing basis with the residents of the street. He said he would support the city's efforts to reduce airport noise.

• Cost of Government: "I'd like to conserve as much as possible. I don't believe in prolific spending. The council passes anything that comes through." Gehrke didn't cite any specific places where he would cut the city budget, but recommended setting up a Des Plaines city lottery to raise funds. This lottery would be fashioned after the Illinois state lottery.

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: "I believe in a full-time mayor, someone who isn't serving two masters." Gehrke said a city manager — in addition to a mayor — is not needed to administer city programs. "I think the mayor could handle it."

• Downtown Development: Gehrke said he thinks Superblock is a step in the right direction. "I'd like to see the citizens in Des Plaines be able to shop in town here." Gehrke said he thought alternate rush hour parking on each side of Oakton Street would help solve the traffic problems there.

• Subsidized Housing: Gehrke said he is in favor of more senior citizen housing, "If there is a need." He strongly opposes building any low-income housing in Des Plaines, however. If special housing is built for low-income citizens, Gehrke said, "In no time at all they turn it into a 'tobacco road.' " "If we do take that federal money, we have to do what they say."

Clarence E. Gehrke, Jr.

6th Ward

Curtiss C. Schmidt

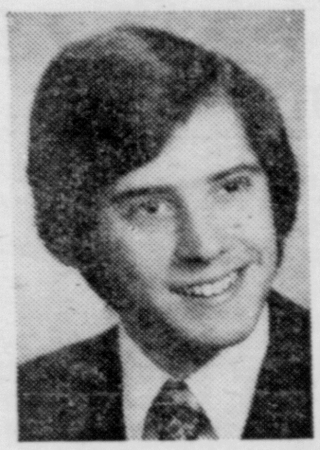
Address: 1833 Illinois St.
Age: 22
Occupation: Self-employed marketing consultant.
Community Involvement: First attempt at public office.
Residency: 22 years

• 6th Ward Goals: "The 6th ward, being on the south side, has been neglected. You go to the north side and everything's very nice. There's a whole lot of things that should be done that are not getting done." Curtiss Schmidt said he would work to improve city services in the 6th ward to increase snow plowing and leaf pick-up in the area, and to repair streets.

• Cost of Government: Schmidt said he didn't know of any programs he would cut, but said, "Des Plaines is tossing away millions of dollars because they don't know where to go for funds (federal and other grants). A professional administrator knows where to get these funds."

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: Schmidt favors a full-time mayor and assisted by a professional administrator, but thinks the change should be decided by a public referendum.

• Downtown Development: Schmidt said he doesn't think Oakton Street is a big problem. He is in favor of tearing down the old city hall, because "It isn't worth saving." He said he isn't happy with Superblock, but added, "We'll have to learn to live with it." He said the rent should be lowered to encourage better businesses to open stores in Superblock.



Curtiss C. Schmidt

• Subsidized Housing: Schmidt said he favors subsidized senior citizen housing like Henrich House, but opposes low-income housing projects.

• Other Proposals: Des Plaines needs a better developed youth program, according to Schmidt. "Children at vandalism age don't have anything else to do. We need drop-in centers, arts and crafts things."

Barbara E. Schmidt

Address: 2119 Fox Lane
Age: 36
Occupation: Part-time asst. to the president of Michael M. Mueller and Assoc., a Skokie sporting goods distributor.
Community involvement: Member of the Des Plaines Human Relations Commission; active in Our Lady of Hope as member of parish council, board member of Altar and Rosary Society, and past chairman of the Sunday school.
Residency: 12 years.

• 6th Ward Goals: Barbara E. Schmidt said her main goal as alderman would be to work closely with the people in her ward, and to carry their needs to the council. She recommends setting up a "rotating city council," which would meet at least once a year in each ward. To help curb vandalism and other youth crimes, Mrs. Schmidt said the city should set up a constructive punishment program, whereby young offenders would be put to work on city projects.

• Cost of Government: Mrs. Schmidt said she thinks the city has spent their money well in the past. She doesn't see any programs that should be cut, and recommends spending more on traffic lights and stop signs.

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: Mrs. Schmidt opposes the current system of a full-time mayor. "I think a part-time mayor with a full-time administrator might work just as well, and save money at the same time."

Barbara E. Schmidt

• Downtown Development: Mrs. Schmidt supports the proposed Superblock plan, saying she thinks it's attractive. She said she would like to see the old Chicago and North Western Ry. station on Miner Street between Lee and Center streets torn down and re-built. She said in future downtown redevelopment, the city should work closer with the business community. "In order to do anything, the whole city has to work together. The city council can't do it alone."

• Subsidized Housing: Mrs. Schmidt sees no need for low-income housing in Des Plaines. "There is a lot of low-income housing in Des Plaines now." She would favor building more housing for senior citizens, but only "if there is a need."

Carmen J. Sarlo

Address: 3051 Scott Street
Age: 49
Occupation: Foreman, International Harvester Co.
Community Involvement: 6th ward alderman, 1973-present; past PTA president; past president and vice-president of the Orchard Place Civic Association; past chairman of the Des Plaines Council of Civic Associations; chairman Cub Scouts Pack 148; Moose Lodge #604.
Residency: 20 years.

• 6th Ward Goals: Carmen J. Sarlo said he would continue working to prevent "spot-zoning" in the 6th ward. He said the ward should remain primarily residential. Achieving this goal would be easier, Sarlo said, if the city would adopt a comprehensive plan. Other 6th ward goals include installation of a turn signal at Devon Avenue and River Road, and construction of a sanitary sewer lift station at Fargo and River Roads to prevent sewer back-ups.

• Cost of Government: "Everything is going up. I think most of the aldermen have done a pretty good job of holding down costs over the past four years. I don't visualize any programs being cut."

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: Sarlo said there should be a referendum in the next election so the voters can decide whether Des Plaines should have a full-time mayor or a city manager. "The city council should not decide."

• Downtown Development: "I voted against Superblock every time. I've felt all along the taxpayer is going to have to pay for this." Sarlo said downtown redevelopment should be left to private enterprise. He further feels the downtown area can't handle the traffic of additional shoppers. "There's absolutely nothing being done about our traffic problem. Something should be done about this before we try to attract more business downtown." Sarlo said he favors making more one-way streets downtown.

• Subsidized Housing: "We are going to provide more senior citizen housing, some way. They definitely need it." As for general low-income housing, Sarlo said if it can't be limited to local residents, "I am definitely against it."

• Other Proposals: As chairman of the Youth Activity Committee, Sarlo said, "Everything that's in youth activity in Des Plaines, I've created in the last four years." Sarlo said even more has to be done for young people. Proposals he would like the city council to consider include development of a children's park with small fenced-in animals, and funding for a downtown youth center. "I would like to see something in this downtown redevelopment for young people."

Carmen J. Sarlo

7th Ward:

Gerald J. Meyer

Address: 741 Madelyn Dr.
Age: 44
Occupation: Dentist
Residency: 19 years
Community Involvement: 7th ward alderman since 1973; member, Craig Manor Homeowners Assn., St. Emily's Church

• 7th Ward Goals: Gerald J. Meyer said he wants to maintain the residential character of the 7th ward by resisting efforts by developers to build multi-family dwellings. He said he will also push for continuing city beautification efforts and support completion of the Des Plaines master plan.

• Cost of Government: "I can't believe the cost of government can be maintained at its present level. However, there has to be economy in government by taking a conservative approach. We should cut down the government costs as much as possible." Meyer said the city has done a good job of living within its budget. Specifically he sees no programs which should be deleted.

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: Meyer said he favors continuing with a full-time mayor because that's the system most people want. "At first I thought the city manager was the way to go. It made sense to have a qualified professional running the city. But then most people said they want the current system. Since then, I've been a proponent of a full-time mayor." He said the mayor should make that his only job.

• Downtown Development: Meyer said he disagrees with some of the downtown redevelopment decisions made in the past. He said the Behrel Plaza Parking deck on Ellinwood Street should have been built outside of the central business district so it did not divide the downtown area. He supports free shopper parking in the downtown area, rather than the current metered parking, as a means of stimulating more business activity.

Meyer said a meeting should be held with merchants on Oakton Street to seek a solution to traffic congestion and the lack of parking spaces there.

Gerald J. Meyer

Carol S. Kempiak

Address: 137 Cornell Ave.
Age: 31
Occupation: Homemaker, part-time receptionist at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines Community Involvement Offices: Member of Des Plaines Beautification Commission, Environmental Control Committee and Senior Citizens Advisory Council.

• 7th Ward Goals: Carol Kempiak's goal is to establish better communications between people in her ward and the city council. "From going door to door in my ward I have found that people are unaware of who is alderman. That's not the way it should be."

• Cost of Government: Mrs. Kempiak said she will look for areas to economize the cost of government, but has not specifics in mind. "Ideally the cost of government should go down, but at the same time I realize that inflation has an impact."

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: Mrs. Kempiak favors retaining a full-time manager and hiring a city administrator to fill in when the mayor is not available. "This is not a city manager, though. In essence the administrator would be a deputy mayor to help the mayor." She said the people of Des Plaines should decide in a referendum whether to make the mayor's post part-time and hire a full-time city manager.

• Downtown Development: "Superblock is here. Our main problem now is to get business in there and make it a money-making thing."

• Subsidized Housing: Mrs. Kempiak favors more housing for the elderly, specifically for those with moderate incomes who cannot qualify for low-income projects like Henrich House. "This would be for the elderly who own their own homes but have trouble making ends meet. We should have housing for these people." She said she is against low income housing, but would like to see less expensive housing built in the city for "young people who have trouble buying homes."

• Other Proposals: Mrs. Kempiak supports purchase and development of the Earl Dooley property at River Road and Miner Street as a downtown park if the city can obtain state or private grants for the project.

Carol S. Kempiak

8th Ward

George Egan Jr.

Address: 434 Lillian Lane
Age: 25
Occupation: Writing Masters thesis for degree in administration and organizational behavior from George Williams College
Community Involvement: First attempt at public office.
Residencey: 13 years

• 8th Ward Goals: George Egan, Jr., said if he is elected he will work to upgrade flood control, recreational facilities and police protection in the 8th ward. "Residents of the 8th ward are not getting enough of the right kinds of services." Egan said street maintenance and garbage pick-up is especially poor for apartment dwellers and in commercial areas. He said the city should clamp down on zoning violations and force delinquent landlords and homeowners to clean-up their property.

• Cost of Government: Egan strongly recommends hiring a full-time grantsman to apply for public and private funds for city programs. "The $30,000 you would pay for a grantsman would be more than made up by the income produced by the grants he writes." He said an active grantsman wouldn't necessarily be able to cut taxes, but would be able to increase city services without raising taxes. Egan also said the city should rely on its own personnel to solve problems rather than hiring consulting firms.

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: Egan said this issue should be decided by referendum. However, Egan said, "I believe in a full-time mayor with an administrative assistant."

• Downtown Development: Egan said he thought the city should have held a referendum before going ahead with Superblock. "I believe that any huge expenditure of money should not be decided by a few people in local government." He said the city can improve the downtown area by "updating and enforcing city codes."

George Egan, Jr.

• Subsidized Housing: "I don't believe that Des Plaines should build low-income housing." He said the city should provide increased services for poor people, but not housing. He is in favor of additional senior citizen housing, but said he isn't sure how it should be developed.

Wheeling Park District

Two candidates will run uncontested April 19 for two six-year terms on the Wheeling Park District board.

Candidates are Shirley L. Mueller, 307 N. First St., and Glenn E. Meier, 113 S. wheeling Ave.

Mrs. Mueller, records clerk and matron for the Wheeling Police Dept., is a 25-year resident of the village. She is president of the Wheeling Historical Society, and has served as treasurer, recording secretary and vice president of the Wheeling Women's Club.

Mrs. Mueller said she is running for the park board "because I believe a person should be active in the affairs of their community."

Meier, 22, an employe of the Bank of Buffalo Grove, is a lifelong resident of the village of Wheeling. He worked for the park district from 1967 to 1975.

Richard F. Ward

Address: 1410 Miami Ln.
Age: 39
Occupation: Airline pilot for United Air Lines
Residency: 13 years
Community Involvement, Offices: Des Plaines alderman since 1973; Mount Prospect Park District commissioner, 1969-1973; member, Devonshire Area Homeowners Assn.

• 8th Ward Goals: Solving problems connected with the construction of the Metropolitan Sanitary District's O'Hare sewage treatment plant and curbing airport noise are two major goals of Ald. Richard F. Ward. Although the city cannot stop construction of the MSD plant, Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road, it can make sure it's built correctly, Ward said. "The end products of that plant must be made acceptable to the community. There are mechanisms to do that."

• Ward also supports efforts by the city to force O'Hare Airport to modify its take off and landing procedures to cut down on jet noise. By alternating the rate of climb of aircraft, noise can be cut in half, he said.

• Cost of Government: Ward said that Des Plaines is in "very healthy" financial shape. He said a city policy of not hiring any additional employes only to fill vacancies has been helpful in curbing costs. "We insist on a reasonable projection of city income and a balanced budget. This requires a priority system regarding which projects will be undertaken and which ones will be delayed."

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: "The only reasonable form of government is that form all of our sister communities employ: some form of a full-time professional manager with a part-time elected chief political officer." Ward said people have a natural reluctance to change, but should convert from a full-time to a part-time mayor.

• Downtown Development: Ward said he is confident Superblock will be a success and said the city was wise to support it. He said traffic flow downtown should be improved "and there always is a need for beautification."

• Subsidized Housing: Ward said the city has turned down federal Community Development Act funds in the past because it has been unwilling to devise a housing assistance plan. "That policy should be reexamined now. Des Plaines now should do its own housing assistance plan before the county or federal government has a chance to do it for us." He said the form of the housing assistance plan should be left up to the city housing commission.

Richard F. Ward

Marian Ratajczak

Address: 1045 Arnold Ct.
Occupation: Machinist, Courtesy Manufacturing Co., Elk Grove Village
Age: 40
Residency: 7 years
Community Involvement: Member, St. Zachary's Church, first attempt at public office.

• 8th Ward Goals: Marian Ratajczak said his ward needs more street lights. He said there is room for other improvements and will seek out the opinions of residents about them. "You have to get with the people to see what they want. If elected, I'll find out."

• Cost of Government: "I want to avoid a tax increase, but you have to give a little either way. I would have to see what the city council is adding (to the budget) before I know whether to make any cuts."

• Role of Mayor, City Manager: Ratajczak sees no need for a city manager, but said the mayor should devote full time to the job and not hold outside employment. "I think the city should be run by the mayor. If we have a mayor, he will be more responsive to the people."

• Downtown Development: The city should encourage more modernization in the downtown area, Ratajczak said. "In order to flourish some modernization has to take place. It would help tax wise." He said a pedestrian cross walk over the railroad tracks in the downtown area would be a good idea, but believes an elevated walk "would look ugly."

• Subsidized Housing: "Everybody who bought a house in Des Plaines has an investment. If all of a sudden one of these projects (low income housing) is built, the neighborhood turns into a shambles. I don't see any place where you could build one of these in Des Plaines. Ratajczak said he is not opposed to subsidized housing for senior citizens in Des Plaines, though.

Marian Ratajczak

• Other Proposals: Ratajczak said he sees a need for more programs for the elderly.

4 seeking one seat on Des Plaines Park Board

The Des Plaines Park Board election has emerged as a race without issues, with all six candidates praising the policies of the present board.

Three seats on the five-man board are up for election. Two are six-year terms for which two candidates are running — incumbents Edward Keane, 2048 Webster Ln. and Dr. Thompson T. Wright, 618 Golf Rd.

The third seat is up for election because Comr. Thomas Mahon resigned this year. The candidate elected will serve the four years remaining in Mahon's six-year term.

Seeking that seat are Kenneth D. Mowbray, 726 S. Laurel Ave.; Richard B. Gould, 979 E. Grant St.; A. Daniel Mesenbrink, 701 S. Manor Ct.; and Daniel J. Dowd, 1503 Walnut Ave.

A fifth candidate, Ronald J. Simon, 1443 Ashland Ave., dropped out early in the race "for personal reasons" and endorsed Dowd.

Daniel Dowd

Daniel J. Dowd is a 24-year-old law student at DePaul University, Chicago. He is an eight-year veteran of the park district, working part-time as supervisor of seasonal recreational programs.

"I'm running to provide a voice on the board, which has been experienced at the program level," Dowd said.

"I would like to foster more cooperation between the school districts and the park district," he said, explaining use of school facilities would allow expansion of park programs.

Richard B. Gould

Richard B. Gould, 30, is a Mount Prospect attorney. He said he entered the race "to get involved in community affairs and do something constructive with the park board."

Expansion of youth programs, such as basketball and hockey, will be a high priority if he is elected, Gould said.

Kenneth Mowbray

Kenneth D. Mowbray, 45, is chief engineer for Electro Sprayer Systems, Inc., Rosemont. He said his engineering background could benefit the board in matters such as equipment purchasing.

If elected, he said his only goal is to maintain status quo on the board.

A. Daniel Mesenbrink

A. Daniel Mesenbrink, 45, has been principal of Central School for 18 years. He served on Des Plaines Human Relations and Bicentennial commissions.

"I have no axe to grind — only the highest regard for the people who've run the park district over the years," he said. "I would like to see them keep up the high quality program."

Mesenbrink said he would work toward preservation of the little open space left in Des Plaines.

Dr. Thompson Wright

Thompson T. Wright, 57, was elected to a two-year park board post in 1975.

A Des Plaines veterinarian, he proposed the board establish a petting zoo in the next six years. "I'm keeping it in mind and the staff of the park district is keeping it in mind as one of its goals for the future."

He pledged to maintain a financially sound park budget. "The main thing is harmony in the community and giving a good recreation program to the taxpayers."

Edward Keane

Edward Keane, 59, is a one-term veteran of the park board. He supported the board's rehabilitation of Grant Park and purchase of the Oakwood Street garage, "all without increased taxation."

Keane is a sales representative for General Electric Corp. He proposed no new programs for his next six years in office, but promised to maintain financial responsibility and quality performance on the board.

14 candidates seek office in Wheeling

Voters in Wheeling will go to the polls April 19 to elect a village president, four trustees and a village clerk.

Candidates for a four-year term as village president are Trustee Otis L. Hedlund, a member of the Better Environment, Service and Trust (BEST) party; Trustee William Hein, a member of the Wheeling Citizens' Party (WCP); and Edward A. Fox, an independent.

Candidates for four-year terms as village trustee are Trustee William Rogers, Walter Stryszyk and Jerrald Abrams, BEST party members; and Roger Powers, Robert Ross, and Hugh Sommerfeld, WCP members.

Candidates for a two-year term as village trustee are James Goetch, BEST party member; and Dolores Dahm, WCP member.

BEST member Joan Shelk, WCP candidate Alberta Klocke, and independent candidate Patrick Trunda are running for a four-year term as village clerk.

Cost of government is one of the major issues facing the candidates in the April 19 election. Members of the BEST party said the present board took a village government that was nearly bankrupt in 1975 and brought it back to a balanced budget. WCP members claim the village board is overspending and that cuts must be made in the budget.

A massive capital improvements program, including overhaul of the water and sewer system, and downtown redevelopment also are facing the incoming village board. Policy decisions will have to be made on how to finance the costly programs as well as what priorities will be set.

The problem of whether or not to dedicate private streets in condominium and townhouse developments is another issue that will be decided by candidates elected in April. The BEST party favors village takeover of the streets but said the condominium associations must foot the bill for bringing streets up to ... standards. WCP candidates have proposed a plan where the condominium associations grant an easement to the village for maintenance and repair of streets.

The subject of executive sessions also has been hotly debated by candidates. The WCP slate claims the present board has called too many unnecessary executive sessions in the past two years. The BEST party claims the closed sessions were necessary because of the number of lawsuits against the village.

Six trustees sit on the village board, which is chaired by the village president. The board is responsible for establishing all policy which governs Wheeling on a local level.

Village president:

Otis L. Hedlund

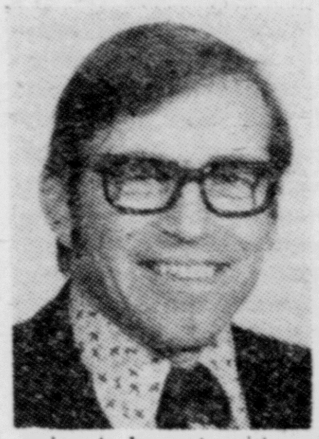
Address: 125 Berkshire Dr.
Age: 42
Occupation: Electronics engineer, C.P. Clare & Co., Mundelein.
Residency: 14 years.
Community involvement: Village trustee, former trustee and president of Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District, member of Wheeling Jaycees and Wheeling Instrumental League.

• Goals: Hedlund said he hopes to continue the professionalism brought to village government in the past two years.

• Cost of government: "I think we've done pretty well. We've been forced to since we took over a bankrupt government in 1975. We've kept government to a bare minimum. As long as we're not required to provide continuing expanded services, we can keep the lid on."

• Capital improvements: "There are several methods for funding capital improvements. The water and sewer system can be done with water rates and fees. Hopefully, there will be some federal and state grants for some of the projects. We can also float a bond referendum."

• Downtown redevelopment: "We're going to have to involve both the public sector and the private sector to get money for downtown redevelopment. The businessman is going to have to put some money in but the people of Wheeling have to start shopping at home," Hedlund said.



Otis L. Hedlund

• Condominium streets: Hedlund favors setting minimum standards for judging private streets and assessing a fee to "bring streets up to that level" before dedicating roadways in developments.

• Executive sessions: "We've had no more executive sessions than necessary with lawsuits and police negotiations. We question why we're going into executive session, which is something that wasn't done previously."

• Public employe unions: "I'm against a common union for all village employes. I'm not absolutely against unions for individual groups but I certainly wouldn't encourage them. I wouldn't like to see the village shut down by a union."

William Hein

Address: 138 Berkshire Ln.
Age:
Occupation: Sales manager, representative and manager, Wheeling Auto Parts, Wheeling.
Community Involvement: Village trustee, past member Wheeling Fire and Police Commission; vice-president, Wheeling Chamber of Commerce; member Wheeling Jaycees; and past member Wheeling Rotary Club.

• Goals: "We have to find a way to unify the village. I think there's a general lack of communications with the citizens. We've got to plug into people for ideas."

• Cost of government: "The cost in certain areas has gone higher than it should be. If we're spending that kind of money, we have to be sure we're getting the best possible people to serve."

• Capital improvements: "Our bonding powers haven't even been touched. We could go to a major bond issue to fund capital improvements. We should also look for money at the state and federal level."

• Downtown redevelopment: Hein said adequate parking is essential for downtown redevelopment. He also favors seeking control of Milwaukee Avenue and Dundee Road from the state so the village can set speed limits.

William H. Hein

• Condominium streets: Hein supports a plan where condominium associations grant the village an easement to maintain and repair private drives. Condominium owners would be charged a one-time tax to bring the streets up to village standards.

• Executive sessions: Hein said he believes there were too many unnecessary executive sessions in the past two years although he admits voting for 55 of 61 sessions. He said executive sessions must be agenda items.

• Public employes unions: Hein said outside unions should be the last resort for employes. He said if negotiations break down both management and employes should have the right to call in outside mediators.

Edward A. Fox

Address: 1092 Kenilworth Dr.
Age: 49
Occupation: Owner of the Edward A. Fox Insurance Agency, Chicago.
Residency: 25 years.
Community involvement: Member of Amvet Post #66; Wheeling Jaycees; past president of the Dunhurst Homeowners' Assn.

• Goals: Fox said he supports formation of a "viable committee" to bring more industry to Wheeling. He said he also would like the village to seek out more single-family home developments.

• Cost of government: "I would be a conservative on government spending. I can't pinpoint any money one could say had been wasted in the past."

• Capital improvements: Fox supports seeking federal grants to help fund the capital improvements program. "We're definitely going to have to set priorities of what is and isn't going to be done."

• Downtown redevelopment: "There is no simple answer to the question of downtown Wheeling," Fox said, adding that traffic congestion is a major problem in the central business district. He feels the village should investigate means of easing traffic problems.

Edward A. Fox

• Condominium streets: "The answer is going to have to be a joint resolution between the village and condominium people. I think they do deserve consideration."

• Executive sessions: Fox feels there has been no problem with the board holding too many executive sessions although he said the closed sessions should not be called "without full knowledge of the people interested."

• Public employe unions: "I haven't made any determination on whether it's necessary for public employes to have a union."

Village clerk

Alberta Klocke

Address: 245 E. Wayne St.
Age:
Occupation: Attendance records clerk, Wheeling High School.
Residency: 22 years.
Community involvement: Vice president of Wheeling High School Instrumental League; member of Wheeling Historical Society; member of the Committee Against Unit District.

• Goals: "I'd like to put out a pamphlet so residents know what the village consists of. Newcomers don't know about vehicle stickers, water systems and so many other things. I think the clerk must be pleasant and understanding."

• Qualifications: Mrs. Klocke feels her work as record clerk as well as her involvement in various community organizations has prepared her for the clerk's position. Although she works full-time, she feels she has the time to devote to the job.

Joan Shelk

Address: 177 Sunrise Dr.
Age: 41
Occupation: Registered nurse and secretary.
Residency: 18 years.
Community involvement: Member and former president of Wheeling Township School board; member and former president, Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 school board caucus; member Wheeling Jaycee Jills; and judge of elections.

• Goal: Mrs. Shelk said she would like to educate residents about the electoral process and cut back on red tape involved in voter registration. She also would like to see elections consolidated so residents don't have to go to the polls on separate days to vote for the school board, village board and other governing bodies.

• Qualifications: Mrs. Shelk, who works part-time, feels she can put in the necessary hours to be a successful village clerk. She considers her background in accounting and as a judge of elections as assets.

Patrick Trunda

Address: 702 Linda Terrace.
Age: 20
Occupation: Delivery parts driver, Dunhurst Auto Parts, Wheeling; fire science student, Harper Community College.
Community involvement: First attempt at public office.

• Goals: "My objective is to get people out to vote. People are registered to vote but they don't."

• Qualifications: "I can sign my name and I know how to file. There's not too much responsibility involved as village clerk. I would do a fair and honest job and do my best."

4-year trustee terms:

William Rogers

Address: 146 S. Wolf Rd.
Age: 50
Occupation: Purchasing manager, Scott Foresman and Co., Glenview.
Residency: 9 years.
Community involvement: Chairman, Palwaukee Steering Committee; Former Chairman, Wheeling Environmental Advisory Commission; village trustee.

• Goals: "We've got to get the capital improvements program started. The village is falling behind in its ability to provide those services. It's a critical period for the village, if it isn't done properly."

• Cost of government: "I don't think our salaries are out of line. I don't feel government is costing us too much and our tax base will probably improve. In the past, we got into problems because there wasn't any one person in charge and we couldn't tell our monthly financial condition."

• Capital improvements: "We're going to have to study the costs every year and see if we can afford it. I'd like our financial planner to look into the total plan and tell us the best way to fund it."

• Downtown redevelopment: Rogers favors a cooperative effort between businessmen, the village and residents. He said the village should seek funding for improvements although property owners will have "to some degree do it for themselves." "The businessmen can work with the village to solve some of the problems. What's good for the village is good for business. It runs together."

• Condominium streets: "Unless we dedicate these streets, we'll have this problem from now on," Rogers said, adding that fee will have to be negotiated with condominium homeowners to bring the streets up to village standards.

• Executive sessions: Rogers favors calling executive sessions for sensitive issues such as negotiations and lawsuits.

• Public employe unions: Rogers said he would support bargaining units run by village employes but does not feel employes should affiliate with outside unions.

William A. Rogers

Walter Stryszyk

Address: 386 S. Jeffery Ln.
Age: 47
Occupation: Repair Shop supervisor, Karnes Music Co., Elk Grove Village.
Residency: 20 years.
Community involvement: Member of the Wheeling Beautification Committee and former chairman of the Wheeling Beautifi- former chairman of the Wheeling Environmental Advisory Commission.

• Goals: "I would like to see a continuation of the professionalism started by the present board."

• "We're going to see increased costs. It's going to have to be that way. Services are going to continue to grow. The village manager and finance director have to see if money is available. If not, they have to hold the costs down."

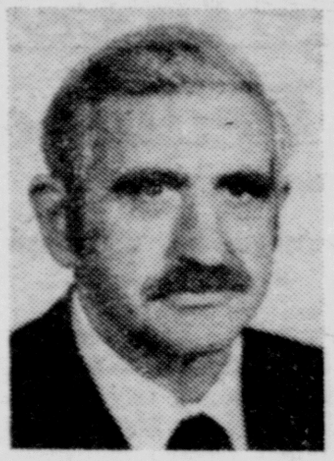
• Capital improvements: Stryszyk said capital improvements should be funded by an increase in taxes if necessary, although the board should seek alternative funding. "It may hurt someone by an increase in taxes, but if it is for the benefit of everyone it's necessary."

• Downtown redevelopment: Bond issues and a possible increase in taxes are two alternatives for funding downtown improvements, Stryszyk said. He also feels businessmen should bear a fair share of the costs.

• Condominium streets: "Dedication will almost surely become a reality, but it must be handled on an individual basis." Stryszyk said a study will have to be made as the best method "for everybody possible."

• Executive sessions: Stryszyk said executive sessions should be held when dealing with sensitive topics such as negotiations. He said he doesn't feel the board has held any unnecessary executive sessions.

• Public employe unions: "If the employes feel the need for a union, they should talk it over with the village manager. If the manager comes up with something he feels is best for the village and employes, I don't see how we can disagree with him."



Walter P. Stryszyk

Jerrald Abrams

Address: 648 Lakeview Dr.
Age: 30
Occupation: Attorney.
Residency: 5 years.
Community involvement: Former member of Wheeling Youth Commission.

• Goal: Abrams said continuing the "good job of the present board" is the major aim. "I want to continue the sense of professionalism and good government we've had the past two years."

• Cost of government: The present board has brought village government back from financial instability created by earlier administrations, Abrams said. The recent hiring of a finance director will help the board continue in its work towards a balanced budget.

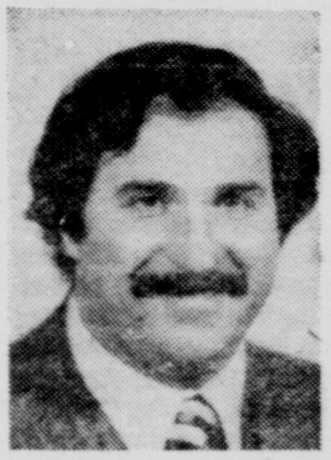
• Capital improvements: "I think the issuance of municipal bonds is the best way to fund capital improvements. The less tax impact there is on residents, the better."

• Downtown redevelopment: Abrams supports joint funding of downtown redevelopment by businessmen, the citizens and government. He said the village also should seek federal grants for the program. "It will take the whole community — there has to be a new attitude among businessmen and the people. Without their efforts, no federal, state or local efforts will succeed."

• Condominium streets: "Each development is going to have to be taken on a one by one basis. The planned developments have a very good cause — their street taxes bring a very substantial amount to Wheeling. As long as Wheeling doesn't suffer, I feel they should have their streets dedicated."

• Executive sessions: Abrams said the executive sessions are justified when talking about "sensitive negotiations, salaries, litigation" and other issues allowed under state law.

• Public employe unions: "Municipal employes are not indentured servants. As long as we can deal with unions on a fairly equitable basis of a position of strength, I don't see any great objection."



Jerrald B. Abrams

One-year trustee term:

James Goetch

Address: 382 Sunset Ln.
Age: 47
Occupation: Public affairs representative, Allstate Insurance Co., Northbrook.
Residency: 7 years.
Community involvement: Former village representative to the North Suburban Mass Transit District board.

• Goals: Goetch said improving the financial state of the village and starting the capital improvements program are major goals.

• Cost of government: Goetch feels the present village staff is "turning the village around" from poor financial management exhibited in the past. He also said the village should seek out federal grants to ease the cost of government.

• Capital improvements: "We should explore the whole federal route for funding capital improvements. We'll probably have to bond ourselves but these improvements are definitely needed."

• Downtown redevelopment: Goetch favors joint cooperation between the village and downtown merchants and property owners. "We have to work out a definite theme with the cooperation of building owners and the Chamber of Commerce. I hope the people who make a profit out of Wheeling are willing to work for redevelopment."

James E. Goetch

• Condominium streets: Goetch favors dedicating streets in condominium developments but feels an impact fee must be charged to bring the roadways up to village standards.

• Executive sessions: Executive sessions should be called when necessary, Goetch said, adding the closed sessions must deal only with negotiations, lawsuits and other subjects allowed under state law.

• State employe unions: "I would rather see a local union. If employes feel they need one."

Dolores Dahm

Address: 33 S. Schoenbeck Rd.
Age: 44
Occupation: Co-owner Dahm's Landscaping and Gardening Service, Wheeling.
Residency: 14 years.
Community involvement: Licensed foster parent, former nurses aide at Addolorata Villa and volunteer at St. Mary's School, Buffalo Grove.

• Goals: "We definitely have to get a firehouse on the west side of the village. We have to have coverage not only for homes but for the industrial area."

• Cost of government: "Wheeling is running on a blank check policy. They're writing checks and don't know until the last minute where the funds are coming from. That's no way to run a government."

• Capital improvements: "A whole lot needs to be done but I don't know how we're going to generate it. The new board is going to have to sit down and take a close look at the budget."

• Downtown redevelopment: Mrs. Dahm said she would like to see a mall area developed, including professional buildings, a movie theater and small shops.

Dolores Dahm

• Condominium streets: Mrs. Dahm favors a plan where the condominium associations grant the village an easement to maintain and repair private drives. Condominium owners would be charged a one-time tax to bring the streets up to village standards.

• Executive sessions: Mrs. Dahm said too many unnecessary executive sessions were called in the past. She said all closed sessions must be an agenda item.

• Public employe unions: "Everyone is entitled to a union. If the employes are unhappy with an in-house union, they should be given the opportunity to get union representation providing it covers all employes."

4-year trustee terms:

Roger Powers

Address: 897 Rose Lane.
Age:
Occupation: Secretary-treasurer and director, Bond Safeguard Insurance Co., Glenview.
Residency: 4 years.
Community involvement: Member of Wheeling Fire and Police Pension Board.

• Goals: Powers feels there is a need for "professional management" in village government. "There is no reason the village can't be run as a business," he said. He supports the idea of easing the way for developers and new businesses coming into the village. "A number of people have been given the impression the village is designed to set up criteria to prohibit them from achieving their ends," he said.

• Cost of government: "Let's monitor expenses and make realistic goals. It's a question of professionalism. No one runs a village without knowing what it costs."

• Capital improvements: Powers said there are two types of capital improvements projects — those which pay for themselves through revenue (i.e. the water system) and those which must be funded through revenue sharing or a bond issue (i.e. a fire station). He said capital improvements should have been started several years ago. "We can't change that but we can make sure it doesn't occur again," he said.

• Downtown redevelopment: Powers supports a plan where the village buys out nonconforming property in the downtown area and sells it to builders willing to develop it under the downtown redevelopment plan. "Given that it can be financed, we have to determine that nothing goes in within the realm of reason not in line with the eventual plan," he said.

• Condominium streets: Powers favors a plan where the condominium associations grant the village an easement to maintain and repair private drives. Condominium owners would be charged a one-time tax to bring the streets up to standards.

• Executive sessions: Powers said all executive sessions must be agenda items, with no closed sessions announced at the last minute.

• Public employe unions: "I'd rather not see employes put into a position where they have to go to an outside union. They should have the right to choose a bargaining agent to use for expertise but not as a threat of strike.

Robert Ross

Address: 312 S. Wheeling Ave.
Age:
Occupation: President, Anderson-Ross Flooring, Chicago.
Residency: 17 years.
Community involvement: Wheeling park commissioner and former park board president; member Wheeling Historical Society; vice president, Wheeling American Field Service program.

• Goals: Ross said his major goal is to establish a "line of communications between the board and citizens. We have to bring openness, honesty and integrity back to government."

• Cost of government: "Facts and figures show that village government doubled its spending in the last two years. We have to scrutinize the budget and not wait for a crisis situation."

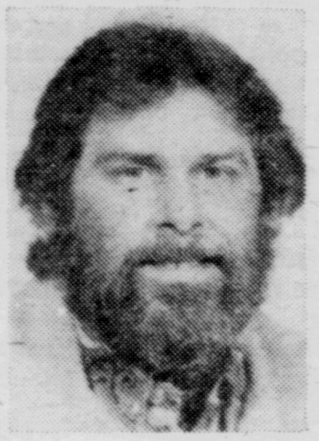
• Capital improvements: "Most of them are needed but financing should come from use — revenue bonds and tap on fees. It's an awful lot of work and it can't be done overnight."

• Downtown redevelopment: Ross said property owners will have to cooperate in any development program in the central business district. He said he would like to see Milwaukee Avenue developed "as another Long Grove."

• Condominium streets: Ross favors a plan where the condominium associations grant the village an easement to maintain and repair private drives. Condominium owners would be charged a one-time tax to bring the streets up to standards.

• Executive sessions: Ross said he is against holding executive sessions not listed on the agenda. He said the village board has held too many unnecessary closed sessions in the past few years.

• Public employe unions: "I can't see a union that could tie up the village for weeks. I'm not against unions in general. It depends on the specific case."



Robert E. Ross

Hugh Sommerfeld

Address: 227 Fletcher Dr.
Age:
Occupation: Owner and operator of Kotz Shoe Store, Wheeling.
Residency: 20 years.
Community involvement: Former member of Wheeling Board of Zoning Appeals; former secretary plan commission; past member Rotary Club; past president Lion's Club; past president Wheeling Community Council.

• Goals: "We have to try to turn off voter apathy and plug in people again. We also have to deal with the (condominium) street problems and get and capital improvements program under way."

• Cost of government: Sommerfeld said the village government should be reviewed to make sure there is no unnecessary spending. "There have to be some areas where cuts can be made. If we look for it, we can find it."

• Capital improvements: Sommerfeld favors the "most economical manner possible" for funding capital improvements, including grants from the federal government.

• Downtown redevelopment: Sommerfeld favors setting a theme for the central business district. "Where the funds will come from, I can't tell you yet. I hope we can get some federal help to do this."

• Condominium streets: Sommerfeld favors a plan where the condominium associations grant the village an easement to maintain and repair private streets. Condominium owners would be charged a one-time tax to bring the streets up to standards.

• Executive sessions: Sommerfeld said executive sessions must be an agenda item with no closed sessions called at the last minute.

• Public employe unions: "I feel employes should be totally responsive to the community."

No race in River Trails parks

Two Mount Prospect residents are running unopposed for seats vacated by retiring commissioners in the April 19 River Trails Park Board election.

Edward Judy, 1118 Barberry Ln., and Richard Pratt, 915 Ironwood Dr., both said they decided to run because they felt indebted to the community.

They will serve in six-year posts now held by Kenneth Rudnick, an eight-year board veteran, and John Johanson, a commissioner of seven years.

Rudnick and Johanson are retiring for business reasons.

"Everybody owes it to the community to do something," Judy said.

He said he hopes, as commissioner, to develop "a program which would encompass more of the middle-aged group in the community."

Judy, 48, is real estate superintendent at F. W. Woolworth Co., Des Plaines. He is a 14-year resident of Mount Prospect and involved in Boy Scouts, Little League baseball and Midget football.

Pratt, 30, is vice president of Aetna Screw Products Corp., Chicago. He is a five-year Mount Prospect resident, who has been a member of the Northwest Executive Club, Schaumburg.

"I have three children who take advantage of park programs," Pratt said. "I feel I should do my bit."

He praised the accomplishments of the board, adding, "I would like to see us get a little more land for a park or two in the northern area."

Park district polling places, open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., are:

• Euclid School, 1211 Wheeling Rd., for residents south of Camp McDonald Road and west of Wolf Road;

• River Trails park office, 1313 Burning Bush Ln., for residents east of Wolf Road and south of Camp McDonald Road;

• Willow River Garden Apartments Club House, 942 E. Old Willow Rd., Wheeling, for residents north of Camp McDonald Road and east of Wolf Road.

3 bid for Mount Prospect mayor

Voters in Mount Prospect will go to the polls April 19 to elect a mayor, three trustees and a village clerk.

All candidates this year are running as independents for four-year terms.

Michael H. Minton and Edward B. Rhea Jr., both village trustees since 1975, are vying with Carolyn H. Krause, chairman of the zoning board of appeals, for the mayor's seat.

Incumbent trustees Errol F. Richardson and Leo Floros are seeking reelection to the village board, challenged by Norma J. Murauskis and Ronald P. Cassidy for the three positions open this year.

Donald W. Goodman is running unopposed for a third consecutive term as village clerk.

With the retirement this year of outgoing Mayor Robert D. Teichert from the local political arena, the village will have a new leader — something Mount Prospect has not seen since 1969.

Cost of government, downtown revitalization, library financing, water conservation and acquisition of Lake Michigan water are just some of the concerns the candidates have been addressing throughout their campaigns.

Residents in the northeast section of the village want to rid themselves of Citizens Utilities water and sewer lines to become part of Mount Prospect's system. Members of the Chamber of Commerce want to see the development of an attractive and profitable business community, particularly in the downtown area. Condominium apartment owners want equitable water rates for all Mount Prospect residents. Senior citizens want more recognition — they do not like being referred to as the "forgotten race." And everyone wants to "hold the line" on village spending and subsequently taxes.

Six trustees sit on the village board, which is chaired by the mayor. With recommendations from the village manager and eight other administrative departments, the board is responsible for establishing all policy which governs Mount Prospect on a local level.

Village mayor:

Carolyn H. Krause

Address: 204 S. George St.
Age: 38
Occupation: Attorney, Mount Prospect.
Residency: 10 years.
Community Involvement: Chairman of the Mount Prospect Zoning Board of Appeals 1973-present; member of the Mount Prospect Zoning Board of Appeals since 1971; member of the Mount Prospect Business & Professional Women's Club; member of the Mount Prospect Historical Society.

• Goals: "A person who runs for mayor should have a knowledge of village affairs, a commitment and a concern. He should keep in touch with the citizens. I believe that and I want to contribute to solving the problems and issues."

• Cost of government: Carolyn H. Krause advocates re-activating the village finance commission which she says could forecast Mount Prospect's future needs. "A village of this size needs a long-range financial plan to see where we will be five years down the line. We must hold taxes down." Zero-based budgeting is one approach Mrs. Krause supports for planning the village's future. "Go back to the very beginning, department by department, as if it were being set up initially."

• Acquisition of Citizens Utilities: "Immediately initiate the public hearings that are necessary so that Citizen's Utilities customers can make a determination as to whether they choose to purchase the system, realizing that each year wasted adds to the cost."

• Acquisition of Lake Michigan water: Mrs. Krause said the procedures for obtaining lake water, including the cost, should be of immediate concern to everyone in the community." It's a regional thing. But we should plan for it now as far as the cost goes. It is an immediate issue facing us."

• Water conservation: Government agencies have to step in to limit water usage in times of extreme emergencies when the well tables are dropping, Mrs. Krause said. "We have to look at what other avenues are available for water usage and get information out to the people as to how they can conserve at home."

• Support for the library: "The library should go to the people for any amount needed exceeding the requirement by statute. Referenda have worked for all of the libraries in the area."

• Downtown revitalization: Revised zoning laws that would permit more of a variety of businesses to locate in the central business district without seeking variations is one of the first steps needed in implementing the downtown redevelopment plan, Mrs. Krause said. "Now there are only special types of businesses in the area. We must talk to private businessmen to see if they are willing to make a long-term commitment in the area. It is up to the village and citizens to put the plan through."

Carolyn H. Krause

Michael H. Minton

Address: 1207 W. Lonnquist Blvd.
Age: 30
Occupation: Attorney, Mount Prospect.
Residency: 24 years.
Community Involvement: Mount Prospect Trustee 1976-present; member and past president of the Mount Prospect Jaycees; member of the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce.

• Goals: Michael H. Minton's "Back to Basics" campaign focuses on giving Mount Prospect residents a louder voice in local government. "A voice in the problems affecting their homes, neighborhoods and schools," he said. "I (as mayor) intend to vote on each and every issue irrespective of whether it's a tie vote. It will set a precedent that would maintain public confidence and put the mayor's office on the firing line."

• Cost of government: Minton said rather than going to the homeowners continually to increase taxes, additional revenue must be sought from the private sector as Mount Prospect enters a period of "no growth." Revitalization of the central business district, and the annexation of unincorporated areas adjacent to Mount Prospect, including the United Airlines, Simonsen Nursery and Northern Illinois Gas properties, were cited by Minton as possible alternate revenue sources.

• Acquisition of Citizens Utilities: "We are not going to be a village until we purchase Citizens Utilities. The question is how much are the residents willing to pay for the lines." Minton has criticized the village for delaying a condemnation suit against the private utility. He said if condemnation was pursued a few years ago, the purchase price would have been frozen at a cost that is several million dollars less than the current estimate.

• Acquisition of Lake Michigan water: "It's an example of inter-city and inter-village cooperation — one of the main planks of my platform. I consider it a priority." Minton said Mount Prospect must work with other suburbs to find out the cost of the lake water acquisition and to decide whether to buy water directly from Chicago or to build its own pipeline to the lake.

• Water conservation: "It's going to have to be a joint effort. The village must regulate water usage by ordinance and part of accepting an ordinance is the education of the residents. To qualify for federal and state funds, water conservation efforts must be made by the municipality and proof of those efforts must be shown."

• Support for the library: Minton favors a referendum to increase the library tax levy so additional funds would be available for library operations. "I see no reason to create a library district. The people have reached their pain threshhold, their optimum level of taxation. There is no justification for a separate library district. We can encompass no one else to expand the (library) tax base. We are an island."

• Downtown revitalization: Minton said there currently is no reason to go downtown. "There is no parking and the traffic is a mess. There are problems involved in the downtown area. We must take a commitment and work with the downtown area, using funds from the village."

Michael H. Minton

Edward B. Rhea Jr.

Address: 1829 Palm Drive.
Age: 41.
Occupation: Vice President, Paine, Weber, Jackson & Curtis, Chicago.
Residency: 10 years.
Community Involvement: Mount Prospect Trustee 1975-present; president of the Mount Shire Homeowners Assn., 1972-74; member of the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce; member of the Mount Prospect Lions Club.

• Goals: "It is important to protect the quality and property levels of this town. We shouldn't have a second-rate village." Edward B. Rhea Jr. said the lack of candidates in this year's Mount Prospect election shows that "the people of this community are pleased with the operations of government. The less government the better. The fewer restrictions, the more freedom."

• Cost of government: Rhea said it is impractical and unrealistic to cut taxes or hold village spending down without cutting back services. "The village is in the best financial shape now than it's every been. Our outside revenues have not increased nearly as rapidly as the inflationary costs of everything in the world. The true problem is the deficit spending at the federal level. I can hold spending down if the people are willing to live with less police, fire, snow plowing and garbage service."

• Acquisition of Citizens Utilities: A referendum should be held this summer in the northeast section of the village, asking the people if they want to buy it and are willing to pay for it, Rhea said. "Then we'll do everything we can to facilitate condemnation."

• Acquisition of Lake Michigan water: Rhea said obtaining lake water is an area not a Mount Prospect project. "We are currently awaiting the state's decision on the allocations. I'm sure we will get it." Once the village is notified of its allocation, Rhea said, the decision of how to get the water — purchase from Chicago or direct pipeline to the lake — must be made. "I do not think it is in the best interest of our community to enter into an agreement that would not give us some control over the source and cost of the water."

Edward B. Rhea Jr.

• Water conservation: "We can't take any chances at all in my opinion to play any sort of brinkmanship with our water supply. It would be disastrous. If the tables continue to drop, we'll have to go to a more restrictive ban next summer."

4-year trustee terms:

Ronald P. Cassidy

Address: 708 E. Cedar Lane.
Age: 44
Occupation: Automotive Technician for Sullivan Pontiac Inc., Arlington Heights.
Residency: 9 years.
Community Involvement: Wheeling Township School Board Trustee 1972-present; currently serving as president of the Wheeling Township School Board; president of the Riverhurst Civic Assn.; chairman of the North West Suburban Council of Homeowners Association; member of the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce; member of the Illinois Business Men's Assn.

• Goals: "Like everyone else, I'm interested in the community. I'm a fiscal conservative by all means and I think common sense is needed on all judgments and decisions at the local government level."

• Cost of government: Mount Prospect's taxes are "astronomically high" when compared to other communities, Cassidy said. Noting that the village property taxes have increased 264 per cent since 1970, he added, "It's an abuse to raise taxes that high under the home-rule provision. I would like to analyze the budget to see if there's any fat in it. I would like to look into all departments and see where duplication of services are. Then let's eliminate them. If we see a surplus, then we should try to reduce taxes the following year.

• Acquisition of Citizens Utilities: "I would like to see the village acquire it at a reasonable figure."

• Acquisition of Lake Michigan Water: Cassidy said the village needs more long-range budget planning which would include money to acquire Lake Michigan water. He said he would like to see Mount Prospect guaranteed a definite quantity of water over a number of years.

• Water conservation: "The conservation of water has to be up to the individual. A governing body can't tell the people what to do. They should inform the people if the people are going to become water conscious.

• Support for the library: Cassidy feels that any elected body should be responsible for raising its own revenues.

• Downtown revitalization: "Idealistically,

Ronald P. Cassidy

it's a beautiful plan. It's not realistic to put it to work," Cassidy said of the new downtown redevelopment plan. "I would want to sit down with the businesses in the area to see how far they want to go and how much they want to cooperate."

Leo Floros

Address: 111 N. Emerson St.
Age: 49
Occupation: Public Relations Counsel for Seltz, Seabolt & Associates, Chicago.
Residency: 17 years.
Community Involvement: Mount Prospect Trustee, 1975-present; Mount Prospect Dist. 57 Board, 1968-72.

• Goals: "If there is one thing I had to accomplish in four years it would be the improvement of the downtown area. I know it will be extremely difficult." Leo Floros said he is concerned that the thousands of commuters passing through Mount Prospect view the intersection of Ill. Rte. 83 and Northwest Highway as the village. "People that go through our community, whether you like it or not, equate what they see (at that corner) with Mount Prospect."

• Cost of government: Floros said more efforts must be made to control government spending. "Be sure for every dollar you're spending you're getting a dollar's worth of service. Make government justify every new expenditure, every new addition to the payroll. The board can exercise restraints, like vetoing salary increases awarded by the manager.

"There is a tendency on the part of managers in and out of government to empire build. It's time for the board to blow the whistle and say no."

• Acquisition of Citizens Utilities: Water and sewer service, received by Mount Prospect residents in the northeastern section of the village who are Citizens Utilities customers, is "inferior" and "second-rate," Floros said. "With the approval of the residents in that area, hopefully we could acquire it."

• Water conservation: Floros said the village's lawn sprinkling restriction is not unreasonable. "The village board and administration must continue to alert people that water is a scarce commodity. The village should do what it can to promote conservation."

• Support for the library: Floros said perhaps the best way to avoid the perennial battling between the library and village boards over library financing would be to dissolve the library board and create a library commission. "The library could become a part of village government and the constant bickering could be dissolved without any harm to the village. There seems to be a lack of interest on the part of village residents toward who and what the library board is. I would hate to be a party to opening the door for more taxation by creating a separate library district."

• Downtown revitalization: "Time will tell whether it will work," Floros said of the new downtown redevelopment plan. "It's a good practical approach, not a pipedream. Historically, the downtown merchants haven't done a whole lot" to help improve the deterioriating central business district. "They ought to be partners in this venture — maybe dig into their pockets a little bit."

Norma J. Murauskis

Address: 1826 Pheasant Trail
Age: 50
Occupation: Housewife.
Residency: 9 years.
Community Involvement: Volunteer chairman of the Mount Prospect Community Blood Program 1974-present; member of the executive board of the Mount Prospect Community Action Plan; member of the Mount Shire Homeowners Assn.; past president 1968-1973.

• Goals: Norma J. Murauskis said she wants to bring to the village board the voice and views of the "average income homeowner." Mrs. Murauskis said she is impressed by the fact that residents can participate in their local government. "I'm running because I enjoy working for the community. I've been serving the community as a volunteer for almost nine years."

• Cost of government: Mrs. Murauskis predicts the village could save more than $200,000 if scavenger service to Mount Prospect apartment complexes is discontinued. "We should eliminate service to the multi-family residences and let them contract out," she said. "They're just like business enterprises. The owners rent the apartments for a profit."

Mrs. Murauskis suggested reducing the budgets of Mount Prospect's nine administrative departments by approximately 10 per cent. "But I'm not sure what the effect would be," she added. "The time has come to review the budget. I'm not saying cut taxes, but we must hold the line."

• Acquisition of Citizens Utilities: "It is up to the village to take the necessary steps to acquire Citizens if the residents want to pay for it. But can the homeowners really afford it?" Mrs. Murauskis said because Citizens Utilities customers living in Mount Prospect will ultimately have to pay for the privately-owned water and sewer lines, "it should be up to them to decide."

• Water conservation: Mrs. Murauskis said as village water rates are increased, it would follow that residents become more aware of conservation measures. "Perhaps people will use less. The sprinkling ban in the summer is necessary, but beyond that I would prefer voluntary conservation of water by educating the people that it is a precious commodity."

• Support for the library: "We've never had the opportunity to vote on that library." Mrs. Murauskis said the tension that lingers throughout the village over funding the Mount Prospect Library might be soothed if a referendum to increase the library tax levy were held. "If they (library officials) don't want to go that route, perhaps a separate taxing district would be the best solution."

Norma J. Murauskis

• Downtown revitalization: Mrs. Murauskis said she is not sure whether the downtown redevelopment plan is compatible with the rest of the village. "We do not have enough room down there to come up with a mini Loop. I can't see pushing people out of their homes and businesses to make room. It looks good on paper."

Errol F. Richardson

Address: 108 N. Louis St.
Age: 53
Occupation: Toll Road Coordinator for Standard Oil Co.
Residency: 25 years.
Community Involvement: Mount Prospect Trustee, 1971-present; chairman of the Mount Prospect Board of Local Improvements, 1968-71; president of the Wheeling Township School Board, 1969-70; member of Mount Prospect American Legion Post 525; past Commander of Mount Prospect American Legion Post 525.

• Goals: Errol F. Richardson said he is proud of Mount Prospect and would like to continue serving its needs. "The village board and administration are at peace with the citizens and businesses in town. There's either a lot of apathy or the people are satisfied with the way the current board is running things."

• Cost of government: "We should have sensible budgeting and maintain services within the financial means of the residents.

• Acquisition of Citizens Utilities: Richardson said Citizens Utilities customers in the village must decide whether they want to buy the private water and sewer lines before the board proceeds to acquire the system. "We have to get the feeling of the people involved, then arrive at a purchase price and find out if the residents are willing to pay that price."

• Acquisition of Lake Michigan Water: The two alternatives for obtaining lake water, Richardson said, would be to buy it from Chicago or build a direct pipeline to the lake. "Water is the No. 1 highest priority. But I would not like to see the city (Chicago) controlling water coming into Mount Prospect."

• Water conservation: Richardson said the village this summer may be faced with imposing more stringent sprinkling regulations in view of the depleting water supply in the area. "I would favor it. Some things just won't be done on a voluntary basis. It's the responsibility of village government."

• Support for the library: The village board must continue supporting the library with funds exceeding the amount generated annually by the library tax levy of 15 cents per $100 valuation, Richardson said. "We're going to have to give them more to keep them in operation. I do believe a referendum (to increase the library tax levy) would pass. Perhaps a separate library district would be a long-range solution."

• Downtown revitalization: Additional parking facilities and traffic congestion relief are essentials for downtown Mount Prospect

Errol F. Richardson

if private investors are to be attracted to the area, Richardson said. "It's up to the business community as well as the governmental body to do what they can to attract business. I really don't know what the problem is but we've got a big problem with all of the vacant businesses. They're eyesores."

Funds key Mount Prospect library issue

The Mount Prospect Public Library cannot exist without money — money generated from taxes paid by village residents.

And budgeting is a prime concern to the citizens of Mount Prospect, particularly to the candidates seeking election this year to the library board. Several alternatives for raising additional funds for library operations have surfaced in the 1977 library board race, especially since the new library, 10 S. Emerson St. is about four times the size of the old facility, 14 E. Busse Ave.

Possible solutions to the library's financial problems are a referendum, to increase the library tax levy, or the creation of an independent library district which would join the village board, park board and school boards in being its own taxing body.

Although the library is operated independently of the village, it is subsidized by Mount Prospect taxpayers and its expenses are subject to village board approval — a procedural matter which, in the past, has been a sore spot with both boards.

Library officials must submit an annual budget to the village board, which according to state law, can allocate funds for library operations generated from a tax levy not to exceed 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation. The village board, however, under its broad home-rule powers, has the authority to appropriate additional tax dollars for library operations.

The library board establishes policy for the village's public library. Seven persons sit on the board for six-year terms, maintaining working relations with the village board and weighing the library's financial needs according to guidelines set by the American Library Assn.

Mount Prospect voters on April 19 will elect three library board directors, two for six-year terms and one to serve the remaining two years of a seat vacated last year by the resignation of Tom Reed.

Judy A. Bennett and Martha J. Hopkins are running unopposed for the two six-year terms. Dennis J. Harkins and Patricia D. Scola are vying for the two-year term with write-in candidate Anton J. Dvylis.

Library Board Pres. John W. A. Parsons' term expires in 1981 as do the terms of board members Sam Hess and Sally Viger. Miriam Star will serve as a library board member until 1979. Robert C. Nordli and Mary Ellen Brady, whose terms expire this year, are not seeking reelection to the library board.

Anton J. Dvylis

Dvylis, 84, is the oldest candidate running for public office this year in the Northwest suburbs. An active member of the senior citizens community, Dvylis, 5 N. Waverly Place, has participated in programs for the elderly since he moved to Mount Prospect 12 years ago.

Anton J. Dvylis

Goals: "Senior citizens are paying high taxes and I'd like to see the money appropriated by the village spent wisely," said Anton J. Dvylis, write-in candidate for a two-year term on the Mount Prospect Library Board. "Most seniors are property owners. They should be represented on any taxing body board."

Budget: Dvylis said the annual budget requested annually by the library board may be justified. "The money is needed to buy books," he said. "Mount Prospect has been behind in stocking the library with books. We are the heaviest borrowers."

Library district: Frequent haggles each year between the village and library boards at budget time could be avoided if a library district was created, Dvylis said. "It's a lot of nonsense, monkey business," Dvylis said. "I think it should be a separate district. They should go with their budget to the taxpayers."

Martha J. Hopkins

Mrs. Hopkins, 46, is a free-lance book lecturer and has served on the library board since the fall of 1976 when she was appointed to fill a vacancy created last year by the resignation of Tom Reed.

Mrs. Hopkins, 106 N. Stevenson Ln., has lived in the village for 17 years. She was born in Chicago.

Goals: "With the new building now complete, I would like to participate in giving increased service to the people of Mount Prospect."

Martha J. Hopkins, candidate for a six-year term on the Mount Prospect Library Board, said she would like to see more citizens using the library and more services provided by the library for the community, "Like increasing our collection of books to be more near the American Library Assn. Standards."

Martha J. Hopkins

Budget: "Current taxing is inadequate. It generates less than what the library spends. Naturally, we have to spend more in a larger building. A referendum (to increase the library tax levy) is destined."

Library district: Mrs. Hopkins said the creation of an additional taxing body in Mount Prospect is impractical. "To expand to a district library instead of a village library would gain us nothing. The purpose of a library district is to gain unincorporated areas and expand your tax base. We are confined. Every place you go you're bumping into other library districts. There are very few holes."

Patricia D. Scola

Mrs. Scola, 40, is a native of Chicago and has lived in Mount Prospect for six years. A former teacher at a private girls high school in Chicago, she has a B.A. in English from DePaul University.

Goals: "One reason I decided to run was because of an article I read in the paper. At that time only two people were running for three offices. That struck me as wrong."

Patricia D. Scola, 1823 Palm Dr., is a candidate for a two-year term on the Mount Prospect Library Board. "I hope my experience in the field of education will help me make worthwhile decisions on library operations," Mrs. Scola, a teacher's aide at John Jay School, Mount Prospect, said.

Patricia D. Scola

Budget: "The people have a right to a say so in what happens with their money. I definitely favor a referendum to increase the millage. I think that's a must."

Library district: "I don't see it personally as solving any problems. It would just create another taxing body and I don't think the people need that."

Dennis J. Harkins

A 17-year resident of Mount Prospect, Harkins, 25, 1100 Barberry Ln., is a lithographer for the Dietzgen Corp., Des Plaines. He has an associate in Science degree from Harper Community College with a certificate in banking, finance and credit.

Dennis J. Harkins

Goals: "I don't have much experience in public service, but I've been thinking about something like this for a while," said Dennis J. Harkins, candidate for a two-year term on the Mount Prospect Library Board. "I'm not on an ego trip or anything. I've got the time and interest to serve on the board and those are the minimum requisites."

Budget: Harkins said library spending has been excessive in the last few years and even though he supports a referendum to increase the current library tax levy, he said library spending must be controlled. "I'd like to hold the line on the budget and if I could, cut it. To be specific now would be premature. Perhaps we should study the village building codes to find ways to cut building costs. We should keep the budget as low as possible without cutting services."

Library district: "A taxing district should be used as a last resort. We shouldn't have to establish a separate taxing district.

Judy A. Bennett

A native of Milwaukee, Mrs. Bennett, 35, 403 N. Pine St., has lived in Mount Prospect for six years. She has a degree from the College of Business Administration at Marquette University and is a past programs chairman of Phi Chi Theta, a national business women's sorority.

Judy A. Bennett

Goals: "I'm seeking the position to help the library on the road of responsible growth," said Judy A. Bennett, candidate for a six-year term on the Mount Prospect Library Board. "The library has been in the political arena too long. It's time to get down to the business of making it a valuable asset to the community."

Budget: Mrs. Bennett said funds generated for library operations under the current tax levy, established by state law, are not sufficient for maintaining the new library facility.

"Where you can cut corners at this point I really don't know. We still have people going to other libraries."

Library district: There is no point in creating a library district in Mount Prospect. I can't see much advantage to it since there aren't many unincorporated areas within our boundaries," that could be taken in to expand a library district's tax base.

Mount Prospect Village Clerk

Address: 514 N. Wille St.
Age: 52
Occupation: Director of Marketing for Callaghan & Co., Chicago.
Residency: 20 years.
Community involvement: Mount Prospect Village Clerk, 1969-present; member of the Mount Prospect Board of Appeals, 1968-69.

Incumbent Village Clerk Donald W. Goodman compares his role in Mount Prospect government to a watchdog.

"It's basically an insurance policy, someone representing the voters in running the election machinery," said Goodman, who is seeking a third consecutive term as Mount Prospect's custodian of records. "Watergate could happen again anywhere."

Goodman, running as an independent and unopposed in the April 19 election, said he cannot pinpoint why no one else is seeking the clerk's position. "Either everybody's happy or no one cares. I don't think anybody understands what the clerk does," he said. "Maybe it's because there is not the glamour or prestige there is in being a trustee."

Donald W. Goodman

Although the part-time clerk post in Mount Prospect has been criticized and suggestions have been made to convert the job into a full-time position, Goodman said, "The present method of handling the clerk situation is probably the best. It offers flexibility. It's an interesting job. You have something to do with what's going on in the village."

Rebirth

Downtown revamping issue in area voting

Those sprawling shopping centers have hurt downtown suburbia. They lure customers away with ample parking and flashy stores.

Downtown redevelopment, as a result, has become a major issue in election campaigns in Wheeling, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines. All three municipalities are involved in building programs that will revitalize the center business district to bring customers, and revenue back into the downtown areas.

While most candidates in the election agree something should be done to help the downtown areas, they disagree on the methods.

Editor's note . . .

The romantic King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table, the enchanting Guinevere and the mystical Merlin are captivating legends that have sparked the imagination of authors, songwriters, artists and filmmakers through the ages. They also captured the interest of Diane Mermigas, whose name you will find on bylines throughout Leisure today.

"I've always been fascinated by the Arthurian legends, mainly because they are so multi-faceted. Arthur is an intriguing combination of fact and myth and a perfect example of the age-old adage that great causes make great men. The legends have strong religious, idealistic and romantic themes running through them and have endured the passing of time in many lands," said Diane when I asked her why the bookshelves in her Elk Grove Village home are packed with Arthurian books, why she has the answer on any question about the days of Camelot and why a nice Greek girl like her relates so closely with England.

Diane's Arthurian collection could compete with most libraries and one of her pastimes is translating old English texts to find the meaning behind the unreadable inscriptions. Last year she and husband Nick visited England, not for the typical London tour, but to trace the commonly accepted Arthurian legends through England's southwest countryside and to make brass rubbings in churches and cathedrals along the way.

Diane's experiences in England and her knowledge of rubbings (brass, tombstone and the intricate Chinese rubbings) are related on the following pages. If the thought of Camelot has ever struck your fancy, you will find Arthurian England delightful. If you're interested in do-it-yourself decorating for your home check out the stories on rubbings.

"The Littlest Horse Thieves" — An altogether engaging adventure about three tykes who save some coal-mining pit ponies from slaughter and how the favor is repaid when an explosion traps miners underground. Minimal sugar-coating and lots of drama and humor make it a palatable, delightfully acted treat for young and old. (G).

"Mr. Billion" — The "little people" count in this breezy comedy about a lowly Italian mechanic (Terence Hill) on a mad, cross-country scramble to claim a billion dollar legacy. Jackie Gleason and Valerie Perrine try to hoodwink him. The romantic angle gets lost, but the action is plentiful and tautly handled.

History is yours for the rubbing

All you need is butcher's paper, shoemaker's wax and some patience and that old manhole cover, tombstone or building plaque will turn into an object of art.

by Diane Mermigas

Man has always endeavored to leave behind a monument to his short stay on earth. He does not want to be forgotten by history, and he does not want his words and deeds lost in the perpetual stream of time.

From his most humble beginnings, man has carved his name into rock. He has erected pyramids and gravestones and masterful brass markers in his memory. The varied sorts of gravemarkers — be it a brass in England or a chiseled tombstone in America — have ensured that he would be remembered. Sometime, in the ages to come, someone would happen upon his resting place and glance down at his name.

However, people are doing more than just reading the information on these tombstones and brass plates today. There is an increasing interest in the technique of "rubbing" — an easy and unique way of reproducing the message on the stone or brass without harming the monument.

Rubbing is actually a lost art. The Chinese discovered it as a way to make multiple copies in about 200 B.C. just after paper had been invented.

The Chinese perfected the method of rubbing by using wet ink and damp paper. The English took a liking to the technique in the 17th and 18th centuries and used wax crayons and dry paper for their rubbings.

Americans have recently taken up the technique of rubbing, discovering it is a marvelous way of making copies of tombstone art, building plaques and even manhole covers — anything that has a bas-relief, or slightly raised, surface.

Rubbing basically consists of laying a light-weight, tear-resistant paper over the relief surface and anchoring the paper with masking tape. A black wax crayon is then rubbed back and forth over the paper until a clear negative image or impression of the surface appears. The Chinese basically use the same idea, but utilize dabbed-on ink instead of wax crayons.

There are three main types of rubbings used in the world today: tombstone rubbing, brass rubbing and Chinese ink rubbing. The most difficult form of rubbing is the Chinese method and because of its intricate nature, it is not widely practiced.

But, the methods of tombstone and brass rubbing are easy and basically the same. The necessary tools for both are detail paper, a bees wax crayon and masking tape, although people have learned to improvise with butcher's paper and shoemaker's wax.

Tombstone rubbing is a way of taking a little bit of the past home with you.

There are many good quality and interesting tombstones in this country that can be rubbed, particularly in New England where a wealth of information about our colonial forefathers lies in graveyards.

Copy a tombstone

Early American tombstones are a unique expression of our art and is a doting part of our national heritage that has gone virtually unnoticed. There is much that can be learned about the deceased, the principles of the time in which he lived and the craftmanship of the people who made his marker just from examining the gravestone.

The earliest Puritan markers reflect a hopeful attitude toward death with motifs that symbolize heavenly rewards. A rope carved on the tombstone expressed eternity; the rising sun was a symbol of the soul's resurrection and figs and pomegranates symbolized happiness. The symbols were heavily relied on in an age when illiteracy was common.

Our American ancestors suffered from epidemics, famine and the harsh elements of nature. Death was a fearful but welcome end.

The grim reaper or a grinning skull often appeared on Puritan tombstones, telling passersby, "As you are now, so once was I; as I am now, so you must be."

But, the formidable tombstones of Puritan times gave way to a sweeter vision of death in the 18th Century, and tombstones often sported winged cherubs and a representation of the deceased in detailed costume.

Gravestones were eventually influenced by the architectural motifs of the Greek Revival periods with the carving of classical urns, willow trees, and Corinthian or Ionic columns.

The varied characteristics of American and even English tombstones can easily be found in old Chicago cemeteries today. As the colonists moved west they brought their English heritage with them.

Older tombstones are often more interesting to rub because they are diverse and sometimes even bizarre. Contemporary tombstones in most cemeteries don't afford much variety since they are limited in size and design by modern cemetery standards.

First, ask permission

The first thing to remember about rubbing the surface of any tombstone, is to ask permission from the caretaker or cemetery

Donald Becker rubs tombstones as part of his job as a memorial stone artist. He has worked on old and new stones since 1945 in a shop outside the main gates of Chicago's Rosehill Cemetery.

English brass rubbings often depict knights and their ladies. Rubbing the raised brass surface creates a negative image that makes a unique art work for the home.

office. Some cemeteries prefer that you not rub their tombstones, while others don't mind as long as you maintain a respectful attitude toward what you're doing.

It is also important to leave a tombstone the way you found it and not leave debris on the ground or make wax marks on the marker.

To begin the rubbing wipe dirt and dust from the surface of the stone with a soft rag. Then, study the designs and wording.

Cut the paper to size and tape it over the surface of the tombstone or gravemarker. Begin rubbing the paper with a wax crayon with even, light strokes going in the same direction until you have an image of the surface. Then, go over the paper again, pressing the crayon a little harder to pick up more detail.

Be careful of protruding edges or other surfaces that might break through the paper. When the rubbing is completed, untape the paper, roll it up and place it in a mailing tube for protection. The rubbings can be framed and make a unique form of artwork for the home.

As you rub tombstones, you will notice the wide diversity in American tombstone art and will sometimes be amused by the messages found there.

Some tombstones will sport winged hourglasses and crossbones referring to the flight of time. Others will have angels or soul effigies representing the spirit's flight to heaven and the triumph of death.

There are often zigzag trim, rosettes and vines, and trumpeting figures announcing the resurrection. The sun, moon and clouds were used for religious purposes to signify the crucifixion and resurrection of Christ. Cinerary urns were often carved on tombstones to signify penitence; the heart was used as a symbol of love and a fallen tree was used as a symbol of grief for one spouse separated from another.

The wording can be sensitive like that on the tombstone of Sarah Bonnorjelf in Succasunna, N.J., which reads "Sleep, lovely babe, since God has called thee hence. We must submit to his wise providence."

And, there are more cutting remarks like that on the gravestone of Lt. William Parsons in Northhampton, Mass., which read, "While living men do view my tomb, remember well — here is room for you."

The rubbings become even more meaningful when research is done to unveil more about the deceased. In that way, the rubbings are not only a hobby but an historical record as well.

A master craftsman

There are a few people, like Donald Becker, who use the rubbing technique as part of their daily work.

Becker, 54, is a memorial stone artist who has worked since 1945 on old and new tombstones in a shop just outside the main gates of Chicago's Rosehill Cemetary.

He rubs stones, just as his father did before him, to match the lettering and design of more contemporary tombstones to old ones. Becker takes butcher's paper, or a more waxy and brittle paper and a hand-sized brick of black shoemaker's wax to the cemetery grounds where he rubs impressions from existing tombstones.

The rubbings he brings back to his workshop are a perfect record of the letter style and gravestone detail that he may be asked to use in designing new markers.

Becker's method of designing gravestones is a little more sophisticated than that of the colonial stonecutters, who were in their prime during the 17th and 18th centuries, but the craft is basically the same. He uses the rubbings only to assist him in his work, but his skilled, artistic hands are the most valuable tools he has.

"I basically do it the same way my father did it when he worked here in this shop," said Becker, who returned after World War II to learn his father's craft.

"I have never considered the rubbings as a hobby, only as part of my job," he said. "I really don't see many people out there doing them in the cemetery when I'm out there, but I think it is a hobby that a lot of people are just learning about."

Becker said that tombstones in any cemetery have a sense of history about them and that people tend to find new meaning to a cemetery when they understand just how the tombstones were carved, and what traditions influenced their design.

One of Becker's crowning achievements was the Rosehill Cemetery crypt of former Vice President Charles Gates Dawes who lived in Evanston.

There are many fine tombstones in Chicago area cemeteries, although no concerted effort has been made to track them down and list them in a comprehensive manner.

The technique of rubbing is still new in America and people are still discovering the many relief surfaces that can be utilized.

English brass rubbings.

Archeologists have used the technique to copy inscriptions and carvings from ancient stone surfaces so that they could be studied. The art of "rubbing" took off on the East Coast in the 1960s with the sudden revived interest in colonial ancestry. Interest in the technique spread to the Midwest with the publication of Alex Haley's bestselling "Roots" and the interest it sparked in tracing family histories.

The practice of rubbing has been in full swing in England for centuries. Only a few books in America have been published on the art of tombstone rubbing, but there are many more books available in England on the art of brass rubbing. Brasses are unique to Great Britain and several isolated portions of Germany.

It was fashionable between the 13th and 17th centuries to commission the construction of a brass plate to cover a grave.

The brass plate usually sported a likeness of the deceased and an epitaph in old English or Welsh that gave the person's name, birth and death dates, and a brief description of his life's accomplishments.

More than 7,000 brasses can be found in the floors and the walls of churches throughout Great Britain where the dead were buried. The brasses show single effigies, couples and sometimes even entire families and their pets. They are perfect records of the fashions, attitudes and customs ot the times.

Rubbings are made from brasses the same way they are made from tombstones. The necessary supplies for rubbing are more easily available in art supply stores in England since the pastime has been around longer.

Many of England's finest brasses have been wearing away over the centuries because of excessive rubbing and the wear and tear from people walking on those set in church floors.

There are many churches in England where the vicar will refuse interested rubbers. In light of the problem, several English firms have produced facsimiles of a handful of brasses. The molds are kept in workshops where visitors pay a minimal fee to rub the brass copies instead of having to go into the churches.

Many church floors in England are nearly covered with the likenesses of knights in armor and ladies in elegant dress. English brasses were originally made from brass sheets manufactured in Germany.

As the craftsmanship of etching brasses improved, English metalsmiths were able to manufacture their own brass plates. The wide diversity in the design of brasses makes it easy to classify them by the centuries or workshops in which they were made.

Few of the earliest brasses made in the 13th Century have survived. The art of engraving brass was still crude and the earliest known English brass is that of Bishop Yso Von Wilpe, located at Verden, who died about 1231.

The best of the brasses

The 14th Century was the best for brass engraving and the brasses were almost exclusively made for knights and their families. The effigy's feet were usually resting against some heraldic animal and most of the features were conventionalized.

The rise of the middle class during the later part of the century gave way to smaller brasses that commemorated tradesmen and commoner.

Workmanship was of lesser quality in the 15th Century because the brasses were in great demand. However, some of England's finest military brasses were made during this time.

Figures on brasses made in the late 15th Century were often shown with grass growing at their feet and flowers at their heads. But just before the 16th Century, a morbid fashion in brasses came about. Many brasses showed only shrouds, the dead rising out of their coffins and skeletons being eaten away by worms. It was a quirk in the art of making brasses and a short-lived practice.

Mural forms of brasses, including a wealth of detail, emerged in the 16th Century and were almost a story unto themselves. By the 17th Century, the practice of using brasses was dying.

Just as the craftsmanship of the brasses altered constantly, so did the fashions and features of the effigies.

The military brasses changed from picturing men in suits of mail with a large shield and sword, to civilian costume centuries later when armor became obsolete with the development of firearms.

The civilian female dress went from a floor-length dress with short sleeves, high collar and hair bound by a narrow headpiece to a long tight-sleeved dress and mantle worn with a veiled headdress.

tion pieces, and a unique remembrance of a simpler, more chivalrous time.

Chinese rubbings

Tombstone and brass rubbing belong to the masses, but Chinese ink rubbing does not. The Chinese use ink, fine rice paper and a completely different process for dealing with basically the same idea.

One of the finest Chinese rubbers in America, William Zieman, lives in Chicago. A third generation wood carver and textile designer, Zieman happened into the distinctive craft while serving as an instrument specialist with the Flying Tigers in World War II.

When his plan was grounded in China because of inclement weather, Zieman packed up his sketching gear and set off to roam the Yunnan Province in southwest China. There in the mountains, he discovered old tombs of the Han dynasty, 206 B.C. to 221 A.D., and their stone carvings.

Using paper and a soft sketch pencil, the only materials he had with him, he tried to make rubbings from the surfaces. Zieman's interest in rubbings developed from there, and he learned and perfected the art under the direction of Chinese masters.

The mulberry or rice paper is placed on the surface to be rubbed and a small sponge dipped in distilled water is used to uniformly dampen the paper. Any wrinkles or air bubbles that develop between the paper and surface must be carefully squeezed out with the index finger, Zieman said.

Control of the room temperature, humidity and the wetness of the paper is very important. Zieman carefully uses two knitting needles to outline the design of the surface onto the paper. Ink is applied with silk pads by dabbing rather than rubbing to take the impression from the surface.

The Chinese often use a solidified stick of black ink that is ground and then mixed with grape seed oil.

An ink rubbing can take twelve hours or more to complete and involves tedious, skillful work. The artist not only must have a steady hand, but a knowledge of the properties of both rice paper and Chinese ink.

Zieman has managed to combine his wood sculpting talents with his interest in the Chinese rubbing craft. He produces wood carvings of Chinese figures and designs, much like the ones found in China, in his home workshop at 4416 N. Greenview Ave., Chicago. The wooden slabs are carved in bas-relief and then used for the rubbings.

"It is a marvelous art form that unfortunately not many people in this country are familiar with because you usually have to go to China to make one," Zieman said.

Zieman sells many of his ink rubbings for under $100 unframed.

"I learned the art from an eighty-year-old master in China thirty-five years ago and combined it with what I already knew how to do. My wood carvings are like the stone carvings there, but they allow me now to bring this art to the American people," he said.

Zieman is convinced that Chinese ink rubbing and other rubbing techniques will become more popular "because they offer people a do-it-yourself, unique kind of art."§

Some suggestions on where to go to rub

Some of the best bas-relief surface to rub are just around the corner. The Chicago area has all sorts of cemeteries, old buildings with commemorative plaques and manhole covers.

The most important thing to remember before you rub any surface is to ask permission from the caretaker or owner.

Some of the oldest cemeteries in Chicago are:

• Graceland, 4001 N. Clark St., entrance at Irving Park Road and Clark Street. It includes the tombstone and plaque marked graves of John H. Kinzie, one of Chicago's first settlers; Bob Fitzsimmons, the heavyweight boxing champion of the world; George Pullman, founder of the Pullman Sleeping Car Co.; Robert Todd Lincoln, the only child of Abraham Lincoln to survive to adulthood; Dexter Graves, who brought the first colony of thirteen families to Chicago in 1831 and former Illinois governor John Peter Altgeld.

The 117-year-old cemetery also includes the tombstone or plaque-marked graves of one-time Chicago Mayor Julian Rumsey; Chief Justice Melville Weston Fuller; boxer Jack Johnson; Norman Buel Judd, a Civil War congressman and Lincoln's convention manager; Cyrus Hall McCormick, inventor of the reaper; detective Allan Pinkerton; architect Louis Henri Sullivan; Chicago mayors Carter Harrison Sr. and Jr. and a host of Union Army generals and officers.

• Rosehill, 5800 N. Ravenswood Ave., main entrance at Ravenswood Avenue. It includes the tombstones and commemorate plaques for George B. Armstrong and George S. Bangs who were instrumental in establishing the U.S. railway mail service, John Wentworth, the Civil War mayor of Chicago; Richard Sears; Montgomery Ward; John Shedd and a number of Civil War veterans.

• Bohemian Nation, 5255 N. Pulaski Rd., entrance on Pulaski Road north of Foster Avenue. It contains the grave of Anton Cermak, the second Chicago mayor to be assassinated.

• Oakwoods, 1035 E. 67th St., entrance on Cottage Grove Avenue contains the graves of Adrian Constantine "Cap" Anson, a baseball player; football player Walter H. Eckersall; baseball commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis; and Civil War senator Lyman Trumbull.

The cemetery also contains a memorial erected to those men who died in both World War II and the Korean War. Eight panels on the memorial show major scenes from the battles that are suitable for rubbing.

• Woodlawn, 7600 Cermak Rd., Forest Park, entrance on Cermak Road. There are many graves here of showmen who performed in carnival or circus acts whose gravemarkers can easily be rubbed.

• The Old Chicago Cemetery was located where Lincoln Park is today. The bodies were removed and reburied in other cemeteries to make way for the park. The only two tombs that remain in the park are the mausoleum of Ira Couch, who built an early Chicago Hotel, and the grave of David Kennison, the last survivor of the Boston Tea Party. The Kennison grave is marked by a boulder near Clark Street at about 1900 north. There is a plaque there that is suitable for rubbing.

Bas-relief plaques scattered throughout Chicago that can be rubbed include the following:

• A bronze tablet on a wall at the corner of 18th Street and Prairie Avenue that marks the site of the Fort Dearborn Massacre. The monument that once stood there has been moved to the Chicago Historical Society building.

• A plaque on the wall of the Container Corp. building, 360 N. Michigan Ave., also commemorates the Fort Dearborn Massacre.

• A plaque on the Garland Building at Wabash Avenue and Washington Street commemorates the former site of the Second Presbyterian Church of Christ which was destroyed by fire.

• The Haymarket Monument at Randolph Street and the Kennedy Expressway also contains plaques.

• A bronze plaque on a building on the southwest corner of Wacker Drive and Clark Street commemorates the site where the Chicago Democrat, the city's first newspaper, was published.

• The Lion House in Lincoln Park Zoo contains a wall plaque dedicated to Cyrus B. DeVry, the first, long-time keeper of the zoo.

• The Stephen Douglas memorial at 35th Street and the Outer Drive commemorates the man who lost to Abraham Lincoln in the 1860 presidential election.

• The Michigan Avenue bridge over the Chicago River sports two plaques that commemorate French explorers Louis Jolliet, Pere Jaques Marquette, Rene-Robert Cavelier, Sieur de LaSalle and Henry de Tonti and their Midwest explorations.

• There is a plaque marking the location of Chicago's first Board of Trade at Clark Street and Wacker Drive.

• The Austin Town Hall at Lake Street and Central Road contains plaques that commemorate the World War II dead and Lincoln's Gettysburg Address.

There are many pioneer cemeteries in the Chicago area some of which can be found hiding behind old churches. Some of the older cemeteries in the Northwest suburbs are:

• Wheeling Cemetery, on the south side of Dundee Road east of Wolf Road, Wheeling.

• Cady Cemetery, on the west side of Ela Road south of Dundee Road, Inverness.

• Staples (Sayles) Cemetery, on the west side of Long Grove Road, north of Rand Road, Palatine Township.

• Salem Church Cemetery, the northeast corner of Kirchoff and Plum Grove roads, Palatine Township.

• Old Plum Grove Cemetery, off of Old Plum Grove Road, west of Sunset Drive and Brookview Lane, Palatine Township.

• Elk Grove Cemetery, on Arlington Heights Road just north of the Northwest Tollway, Elk Grove Township.

• Immanuel Lutheran Cemetery, on Rand Road near Golf Road and the Soo Line railroad tracks, Des Plaines.

• Knopf Cemetery, Arlington Heights Road north of Checker Road. The cemetery is part of Long Grove but is surrounded by a Buffalo Grove subdivision.

Several of the old churches in the area have cemeteries adjacent to their buildings. The consent of a church official is needed before stones can be rubbed. — D.M.

The creation of a legend

Aubrey Beardsley's depiction of The Lady of the Lake telling Arthur of the Sword Excalibur in the illustrated edition of Sir Thomas Malory's "Le Morte D'Arthur." "Beardsley's Illustrations for Le Morte D'Arthur," The Dover Pictoral Archive Series.

by Diane Mermigas

GLASTONBURY, ENGLAND — The legends of King Arthur and his Round Table knights are rich in mystery and strange, exciting images. But how much of the age-old tales is fact and how much is the product of the overworked, over-enthusiastic imaginations of storytellers and historians, no one is sure.

True or not, much of what we know about Arthur and his realm fits comfortably into the stream of English history during the 5th and 6th centuries, a period commonly referred to as the "Dark Ages" — and with good reason.

There is little physical record or written evidence that remains of this era which followed the end of Roman rule in Britain and preceded the Saxon invasion.

The flimsy evidence that does exist of this time when Britain was immersed in regional turmoil points to the deeds of a warrior leader of the 5th Century named Arthur. Vague records indicate that he drove territorial groups like the Picts and Scots out of England, and struggled to maintain the order that had prevailed under Roman rule. He also supported the increasing influence of Christianity and its attempt to save the Isle from barbarism.

The legends were probably created about this Arthur, a warring territorial lord who was cited for his strength, strategy and success in battle.

It was a time when Britain was desperately in need of a unifying, celebrated national hero. After all, France had Charlemagne and Greece had Alexander the Great. For all time to come, Britain would have Arthur.

The tales that were spun about the man were mostly verbal, and each was altered time and again as it was passed on by word of mouth. When writers began recording Arthurian legends, each author added his own color and creativity to it. Today, there is no way to know how far from the truth the legends are or what the truth about Arthur really is. We only know he was powerful and intriguing enough to withstand the test of time.

Gildas, a Welsh monk, is the first to mention several battles that are traditionally associated with Arthur in his written work of about 550 A.D. called "The Gododdin" or "On the Destruction of Britain." He credits a great and noble warrior with the victorious battles, although he never mentions Arthur by name.

Nennius, another Welsh monk, gives the first and what is considered to be the only historical account of Arthur's military career in his "History of the Britons" of 829 A.D. He describes the site of each of Arthur's twelve victorious battles and the warrior's final, fatal clash at Camlann.

Both monks seem to draw heavily from Welsh poetry and verbal legend as sources for their histories and they shape Arthur in the likeness of Roman predecessors like Constantine or Ambrosius Aurelianus who fought the Saxons at least fifty years before Arthur was born.

The name of Arthur and the superhuman feats associated with the mythical king were mentioned in many early Scottish, Irish and Latin works. Most of them were religious records and histories since monks and officials of the church were among the few people of their time able to write.

The Annals of Wales, which is an anonymous listing of important dates in Welsh history contains two listings that are connected with Arthur.

The chronological table mentions that between 516 and 518 A.D., Arthur carried the cross of Christ on his shoulders for three days and nights during the Battle of Badon where the Britons were victorious. The table also mentions that in 537 or 539 A.D., Arthur and his bastard son, Modred fought at the Battle of Camlann, killing each other.

None of the literature closest to Arthur's time offers a clear time-table of events in Britain between the 4th and the 7th centuries. None of the written works establishes the existence of Arthur, King of the Britons, as we have come to know him.

But, the lack of clear proof of the hero's existence didn't stop historians and writers from weaving their own tales of intrigue and romance around the figure of Arthur.

Geoffrey of Monmouth, a Welsh monk of the 12th Century, romantically reconstructed Arthur's story in "The History of the Kings of Britain." Manuscripts like "The Black Book of Carmarthen" followed, establishing Arthur as more than a regional hero and referring to him as Britain's king.

The French poet Robert Wace created the round table element of the Arthurian legends in his "Roman de Brut" of 1155 which was later translated into English by a writer only known as Layamon who added a wealth of supernatural aspects to the story.

Chretien de Troyes, the great French romancer of the 12th Century, contributed the character of the brave and pure knight Lancelot to the tales of Arthur, and the ill-fated affair between the French Round Table knight and the king's consort, Guinevere.

The French, who were great storytellers of the world, did much to foster the legends of Arthur, especially with a 13th Century prose work called the "Vulgate Cycle" which unveiled the most marvelous and exciting tales of Arthur ever written.

However, it was Sir Thomas Malory, a 15th Century Yorkist knight turned criminal, who unified all of the many Arthurian tales into a single work entitled "Morte D'Arthur." He took a hero from oblivion and made him magestic. It is to Malory that the Arthurian legends owe their survival in the English-speaking world, and it was in Malory's own time that the Arthurian legends enjoyed a Renaissance and a popularity unequaled since.

Depending heavily on the French "Vulgate Cycle" as a major source of information, Malory devoted the final years of his life to bring the tales together in one work while sitting out a prison sentence for charges that ranged from rape to murder.

Malory's work is still considered the most prominent collection on the Arthurian legends today, and writers have since referred to him as an accepted source.

Edmund Spenser was inspired by Malory when he wrote "The Faerie Queen" in 1589, a poem designed for the fancies of Elizabeth I who believed she was a descendant of Arthur. It was fashionable throughout the Middle Ages for royalty to associate themselves through ancestry or some other means with the popularity and celebration of Arthur.

John Dryden was inspired in 1691 to compose the opera "King Arthur," Sir Walter Scott in 1804 to write "Sir Tristrem," and Alfred Lord Tennyson throughout the 19th Century to write such enduring prose as "The Lady of Shalott," "Sir Lancelot and Queen Guinevere" and "Idylls of Kings."

There has been music, art and prose inspired by the Arthurian legends culminating in modern times in novels like T. H. White's "Once and Future King" of 1958; movies like "Prince Valiant" and "Camelot;" and supernatural fiction like Mary Stewart's "The Crystal Cave" and "The Hollow Hills."

Arthur even warranted mention in Sir Winston Churchill's "A History of the English-Speaking Peoples."

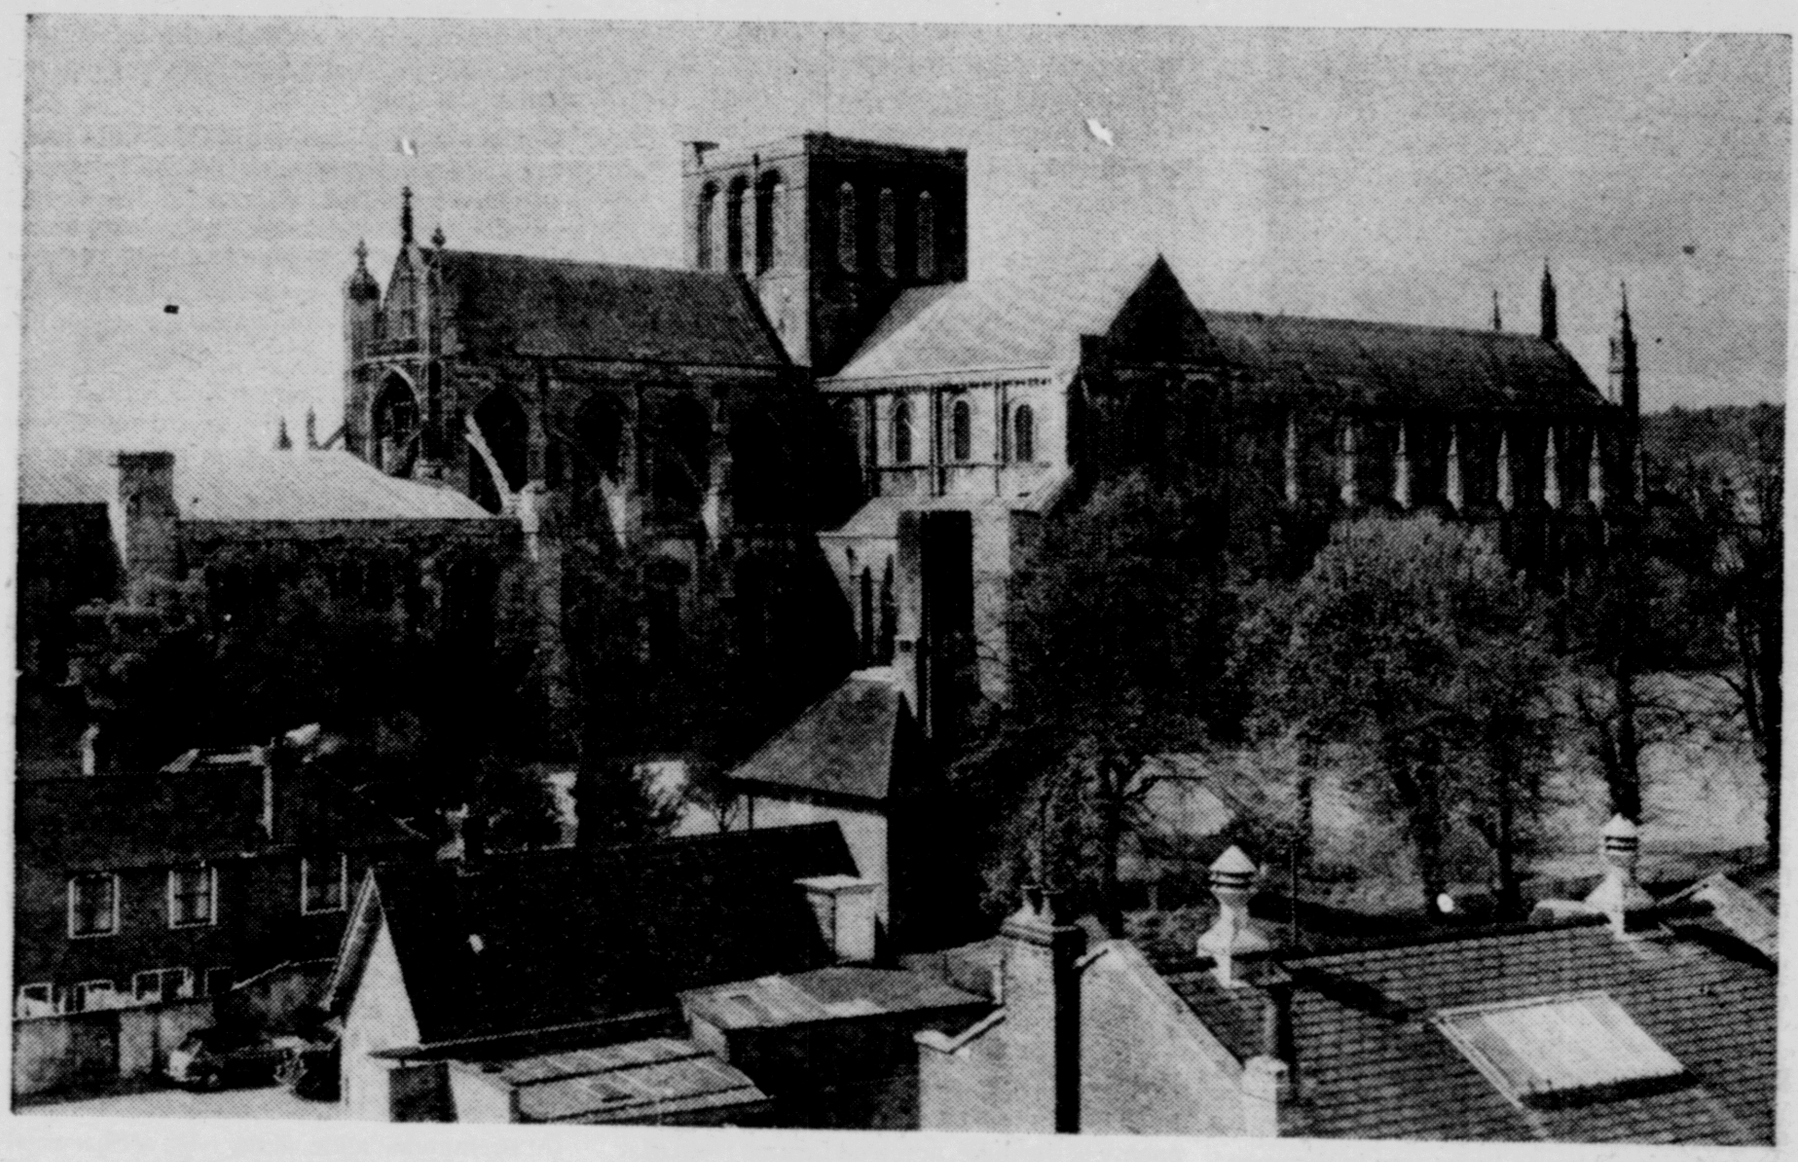
Today, the world is still very much in love with the romance, idealism and mystery of Arthur and his Round Table knights. Even the late President John F. Kennedy sought to pattern the philosophy of his administration after the admirable standards of Arthur's realm and his Presidency was, for a while, known as "Camelot on the Potomac."

But, the popular image of Arthur and his knights is unfortunately a false one. Movies and literature of late describe Arthur as being more civilized, chivalrous and technologically advanced than he could possibly have been living in the 5th and 6th centuries. The world has evidently opted for the picture of knights in shining armor who jousted on horseback, ladies who went a-Maying and castles that were beautifully fortified out of stone and metals because it's much more romantic.

Despite archeological efforts to uncover the truth about Arthur and the volumes of research being turned out to find the real answers, there are no solid facts for his existing the way we'd like to think he did. Arthur and his knights remain glorified in the individual interpretations and imaginations of artists throughout the world.

The hero's enduring popularity is attributed to the fact that people can believe whatever they want to about Arthur. The English of the 14th and 15th centuries reinvented Arthur to suit their own needs, and today he is again revived as a fantasy that gives contemporary man a pleasurable escape from a world that has moved so far from where Arthur once was.

For those who are daring enough, there is a vast amount of Arthurian legend yet alive in Britain today. Many of the sites mentioned in the volumes of Arthurian legend can be easily discovered and immeasureably enjoyed. All it takes is a little reading and guidance from one romantic who's already been there to uncover the mysteries of Arthur that lay sleeping in England today. §



The town of Winchester is knee deep in Arthurian legends and holds claim to a replica of King Arthur's Round Table.

Arthurian England

Are King Arthur and his knights fact or fiction? Trace his steps through southwest England and you be the judge.

by Diane Mermigas

From the castle ruins of his reputed birthplace to the abbey ruins of his legendary burial grounds, the southwest country of England is filled with sites long associated with King Arthur and his Round Table realm.

Some of the locations are connected to Arthur through myth, others through sparse evidence of one sort or another. The towns and sites that find new life through their association with the Arthurian legends have one thing in common. The people who live there, as their ancestors before them, believe there was an Arthur who was worthy of such undying celebration.

The sites traditionally associated with Arthur not difficult to find, and a motor trip ...ough the various locations in England's southwest country can easily be planned by anyone who is willing to devote a little time to reading and research.

Actually, one could travel almost anywhere in the British Isles and find some connection to the Arthurian legends. Britons seemed to have loved the hero and would create their own legends if none already existed involving their hometown.

But, there is strong evidence to support the fact that Arthur, if he did exist, lived in the southwest country of England.

Two of the best books to buy for planning a car trip through the English countryside are "Fodor's Great Britain 1977" and "The AA Guide to Hotels and Restaurants in Great Britain and Ireland." Both books offer detailed road maps and information about all of the towns and counties. They also offer information and ratings for guest houses where travelers can lodge along the way for 10 pounds or less a night, the cost of bed and breakfast.

Most trips to England begin at Heathrow Airport just outside of London, the seat of English government and history that is also faintly connected to the Arthurian legends.

Sir Thomas Malory says in his "Morte D'Arthur" that when Arthur was a youngster, he traveled with his foster father, Sir Ector, and foster brother, Sir Kay, to a New Year's Day tournament in London. Arthur was given the responsibility of carrying his foster father's sword, which he realized he had forgotten at home once they reached London.

In a panic to cover his mistake, Arthur went searching about the city for a sword and happened upon a jewel-handled sword rising out of a stone slab in St. Paul's Cathedral. He pulled the sword from the stone and rushed it off to Sir Ector. Once the people gathered for the tournament realized where Arthur had gotten the sword, they hailed him as England's king and the youth was crowned by Easter of that year.

An adventure through the southwest country begins on M3, a main highway out of London proper. From that you take Rte. 33 south to Winchester, Malory's location of Camelot, the most celebrated of Arthur's courts. Not many archeologists today believe that Winchester was the site of Camelot, although it is recognized as the place where Arthur and his court gathered each year to celebrate Easter.

A magnificent round table hangs in the great hall of Winchester Castle. Wood analysis of the table shows that it was constructed in the 14th Century, during a great revival of the Arthurian legends, and was repainted during the Tudor period which explains why a large Tudor rose marks the table's center.

Certainly the table could not have been used during the 5th and 6th centuries when Arthur is believed to have lived. But, it is breathtaking to behold, with the names of the twenty-four Round Table knights richly printed along the table's edges.

Malory, the most widely accepted Arthurian source, explains that the Round Table was conceived to prevent the knights from arguing over who would sit at the head of the table. Malory said the Round Table was given to Arthur as a gift from Queen Guinevere's father, King Lodegrance of Camylarde.

The Round Table, the most important element in the Arthurian legends, inspired an honorable order of knights comprised of the bravest and noblest men in England. It was a fellowship sworn to use might for right, defend glory of God and country, protect their ladies, and continue questing for good and the Holy Grail, the cup from which Christ drank at the Last Supper.

Getting back on to M3 going west, which turns into Rte. 303, you will encounter Amesbury, the place where Guinevere sought refuge after Arthur had died in battle and his kingdom crumbled. There, she lived out her days in a nunnery.

Further along on Rte. 303, and just the other side of a rising hill in Sailsbury Plain, is Stonehenge. It is the mysterious circular formation of magnificent stones that scientists tell us dates back to 2,500 B.C. and the time of the Druids. Stonehenge is believed to have functioned as a calendar and observatory that still is used to chart the movement of stars and planets.

Stonehenge is the center of a stonework network that spreads across the southwest English countryside, and many similar stoneworks can be found in nearby Amesbury and Banbury. There is great power and mystery that seems to emulate from Stonehenge.

The placement of the stones was quite deliberate, but the burning question for all who visit Stonehenge is how the stones got there. Malory has a simple enough explanation: Merlin, the wizard and foreseer who served as Arthur's teacher and counsel, transported the stones by sea from the west coast of Upper Wales to Sailsbury Plains. Oddly enough, the blue stones at Stonehenge can only be traced to those Welsh shores.

Malory goes on to say in his "Morte D'Arthur" that Uther, Arthur's real father, and Uther's brother, Aurelius, are buried at Stonehenge.

In any event, Arthur's ancestors were responsible not only for the construction of Stonehenge but for the supernatural goings on that still haunt the place today.

Somewhere south of Stonehenge, in a location archeologists really aren't sure about, is the place where Arthur fought his twelfth victorious but fatal battle of Camlann. The legends say that Arthur and his bastard son, Modred, killed each other by the light of a full moon in the mystic presence of Stonehenge.

Further west on Rte. 303, and turning north on Rte. 359 a short way, is South Cadbury, a sleepy little town that lies in the shadow of Cadbury Hill.

The steep hillfort at Cadbury of 18 acres is protected by massive terrace ramparts that are cut 40 feet into solid rock. Recent excavations revealed it is an Iron-age hillfort, fortified about 470 A.D., just about the same time that Arthur would have been coming into his prime. The popular legend and flimsy evidence identifies Cadbury Hill as the site of Arthur's Camelot.

Archeological digs there have unearthed traces of large and elaborate buildings, and bits of jewelry and pottery that date back to the 5th Century. The hill affords a magnificent view of the green English countryside that stretches to the horizon. On a clear day, you can see the hill and lone tower of Glastonbury Tor about 20 miles to the northwest, a place that is also connected with Arthur.

It may be disheartening to some tourists, but there are no big castles or suits of armor left at Cadbury Hill. It is a peaceful place where cows graze and where the townsfolk bring their children on walks through the densely forested sides of the hill to pick wild berries.

But, with a little bit of imagination, a true romantic can see that a great castle might have been there once.

The natives of Cadbury are convinced that this hill once was Arthur's court and even believe that, perhaps, he lies sleeping beneath the hill, waiting to return.

Continuing north on Rte. 359 through high fields that are divided by winding streams, you come to Rte. 361. Take that a short way west to Glastonbury.

Although it takes a real Arthurian freak to get excited over the hillfort at Cadbury, it doesn't take much imagination or belief to get swept up into the spell of the abbey ruins nestled in the midst of Glastonbury.

Like many of the historical sites in England, Glastonbury Abbey is maintained by the country's National Trust. A token admission must be paid before entering the grounds. But, that small admission, to pay for the maintenance, is the only commercialization of the site, and visitors are left to wander the abbey grounds to their heart's content.

Glastonbury Abbey is the legendary resting place of Arthur and his Queen Guinevere. Glastonbury was once one of the many islands that comprised the southwest country of England during a time when much of the territory was under water.

Glastonbury then was referred to as the Isle of Avalon or the island of apples and is known to be the location of the first Christian church to be built in England. Early literature establishes Glastonbury as a place where the supernatural and Christian forces met, and is still a place of mystery today, the perfect place for Arthur's reputed grave.

When Arthur was struck down by Modred during the battle of Camlann, legend says that three queens came to take the dying Arthur by barge to Glastonbury where Arthur's half-sister, Morgan le Fay, lived. She was an enchantress who treacherously plotted against her brother. Yet, she was the only person with the powers to heal the dying warrior's wounds.

There are no legends that explain what happened to Arthur once he reached Glastonbury. Legend only tells us that Lancelot brought the dead Guinevere there to be buried next to her husband years later.

The lapse of legend and history is picked up in 1191 when monks at the abbey reportedly discovered the graves of the couple in ancient burial grounds just south of the abbey's Lady Chapel. The bodies of a man and woman were found in hollowed oak log coffins that were customary burial containers of Arthur's age. A lead cross, found lying with the skeletons, was engraved in Latin to read, "Here lies Arthur, the famous king, in the Isle of Avalon."

However, like many aspects of the Arthurian legends, the identification of the grave as Arthur's is obscure and strange. Historical records of the 13th Century say the lead cross was found, then lost. The bodies of the couple were reinterred in a black marble tomb inside the main church of the abbey in 1278 in the presence of King Edward I and Queen Eleanor. The tomb survived until 1539 when many of the country's great abbeys and monasteries were destroyed during the reign of Henry VIII.

Critics have called the legend of Arthur's grave a masterful tale concocted by the monks who were in need of donations to continue the operation of their abbey. It was a story supported by Edward I who was in dire need of revived attention and admiration from his followers, and the association with the mythical Arthur would surely win him the affection of the people.

But, there are just as many people who believe that Glastonbury Abbey is the final resting place of Arthur. To soothe their remorse, a plain marker at Arthur's supposed grave explains the myth behind his burial there. The humble grave seems an irony for a legend that has survived the passing of so much time. It is covered only by wild grass and flowers. The ruins of the abbey's once majestic archways and walls still tower over the site.

Several miles from the abbey on the edge of Glastonbury is another hill known as Glastonbury Tor and there stands a lonely tower which is all that remains of St. Michael's Chapel, destroyed by fire in the late 14th Century. It is a steep climb to the top and a dangerous tumble to the bottom, but townsfolk gather there regularly at noon time to lunch and bask in the sun.

Excavations on the Tor have uncovered pottery and jewelry that date back to the time of Arthur, and stone work that dates back to before the time of Christ when the hill might have served as the site of pagan rites.

On Rte. 39 heading west out of Glastonbury, you will come to Dunster on the coast of the Bristol Channel, facing Wales on the farside. Dunster is the place where Arthur supposedly reigned as a junior colleague of Prince Cadwy. There is a well preserved Norman Castle there, built on the side of a Saxon fortress, which is open to the public. It is set atop a hill that is thick with trees and surrounded at its base by the medieval town of Dunster.

There are no visible remains of the Arthurian legends here, although a drive south out of Dunster on Rte. 396 through Exmoor National Park will give you a good idea of the enchanted forests that Arthur and his knights undoubtably journeyed through between courts and battles.

At the edge of the park turn west on Rte. 361 which will take you to the west coast. Then go south on Rte. 39 along the coast until you reach Tintagel, the reputed birthplace of Arthur and the most enchanting of Arthurian sites.

It is a haunting place where castle and monastery ruins dating back to 350 to 850 A.D. dominate the rocky cliffs that hang over the sea.

The Duke of Cornwall and his wife, Igraine, lived in Tintagel Castle. Uther Pendragon, an enemy of the duke, admired Igraine from afar. Uther devised a scheme with Merlin's help that sent the duke to fight a battle where he was killed. Uther came to Tintagel disguised as the duke and made love to the unsuspecting Igraine which led to Arthur's conception. Igraine married Uther after she learned the truth about her husband's death.

However, a condition of the marriage scheme was that the couple would turn their newborn son over to Merlin so that the wizard could prepare him to be the king of England one day. The infant Arthur was handed over to Merlin by Uther at the mouth of a cave where the sea slaps against the base of the rocky cliffs at Tintagel. The cave, known as Merlin's cave, can be explored today by those with adventurous inclinations.

The wonder of Tintagel, however, comes alive at night. The best place to stay is King Arthur's Castle Hotel which is nestled on a cliff opposite the Tintagel ruins. The hotel is complete with winding staircases and traditional English rooms with featherbeds and fireplaces. A room on the south side of the hotel will give you a clear view of the castle and monastery ruins highlighted in the darkness only by the moon.

As the sea crashes up against the cliff and the moonlight plays games on the ruins, it is easy to conjure up images of the magical goings-on that once took place there. You can see a magnificent castle, you can hear the clash of lances. The wind carries the sound of lovers laughing and horses hooves pounding against the stone.

Further south in the deep of Cornwall county there are scattered remnants of the Arthurian legends. Castle Dor, also on the west coast and near land's end, is the central site of the ill-fated romance of Tristan and Iseult. Tristan was known as the honorable knight of the Round Table and his tombstone stands upright at Menabilly.

Dozmary Pool, in central Cornwall, is said to be where Sir Bedivere tossed the Sword Excalibur back to the Lady of the Lake after King Arthur died.

Outside of the southwest country, and traveling into the northern ends of Great Britain, there are other Arthurian sites to be found. Merlin's Hill at Carmartyen in Wales is where the wizard was beguiled and entombed by Nimue, one of the damsels of the lake. Merlin is said to be entombed there still by a spell that cannot be broken.

Caerleon in Wales is one of the three principal sites where Arthur held court. Palaces of gilded roofs and hot baths once existed there, but now only a Roman amphitheatre remains that is known as King Arthur's Round Table.

The northern English town of Caergai is Arthur's boyhood home, where Merlin had him raised by Sir Ector. Arthur fought several of his battles along the banks of the nearby Glen and Humber rivers.

At Richmond Castle, at the edge of Sherwood Forest, a man called Potter Thompson chanced an opening below the castle walls. He crawled in through a large cave there and discovered King Arthur and his knights asleep at the Round Table. A sheathed sword lay on the table, but when Thompson reached for it, the knights awoke. He fled and could never find the entrance again.

Arthurian legends reach out past Hadrian's wall into Scotland where Carlisle Castle is recognized as one of Arthur's courts and the place where Guinevere was to have burned at the stake for her adulterous affair with Lancelot. But, legend tells us that Lancelot and his band of knights stormed the castle in time to save the Queen from death. He carried her back to his castle, Joyous Gard, believed to have been on the east coast at either Banburgh or Almwick.

The locations are as endless as the legends, and an adventure to uncover the secrets of Arthurian lore can be very enjoyable. You will see the heart of England, and you will know the simple pleasures of wandering through a countryside that time has barely altered since the days of knights in armor.

But, mostly, you will fall in love with the spell of Arthur that still blankets England today. You will understand his enduring charisma and why Malory called Arthur the king of enchantment. §

Ticket good for unlimited use in Argentina

A ticket for unlimited flights within Argentina for thirty days is being offered by Aerolineas Argentinas.

Costing $180, the ticket is good for travel to fifty cities in Argentina. The carriers' routes stretch from the northern provinces of Jujuy and Salta south to Tierra del Fuego and Ushuaia, the southernmost city in the world.

The unlimited flight ticket must be purchased before departure for Argentina. The only other condition is that a traveler cannot stop at a single city more than once except to make connections.

The thirty-day ticket is available from any travel agent or from Aerolineas Argentinas offices in Chicago.

'Head for the Hills' in Britain this year

There's a new organization called "Head for the Hills" that is offering 7 to 14 night walking tours of Britain with camping equipment and luggage traveling to sleeping points by car.

The tours, which go to such widespread spots as North Wales, the Lake District, and Dorest on the South coast, cost $52 for a week and $95 for two weeks.

The tours average less than 10 miles a day among some of the finest scenery in Britain. Tours arranged for this year are Glastonbury (Southwest England) September 17-24; the Shropshire Uplands April 30 to May 10; Radnor (Mid-Wales), May 14-21 and August 25 to September 1; Edeyrnion (in North Wales), June 4-11; Derbyshire (Central England), June 16-23 and August 6-13; the Yorkshire Dales June 26 to July 3 and July 6-13; Western Lakeland July 16-30; and Dorest September 4-14.

For details, write Head for the Hills, 21 Pembroke Ave., Hove, Sussex BN3 3DB, England.

Guide lists royal driving tours of Britain

Britain's Automobile Association has published a new guide — "Royal Britain" — to mark Queen Elizabeth's silver jubilee celebration this year.

The guide, available through the British Tourist Authority, leads visitors through the many palaces, castles, houses, towns and villages where British monarchs have spent time.

The AA said the thirty-eight royal tours listed in its guide each may be completed in one day's driving.

See royal palaces with 'Open to View' ticket

Eight palaces or castles with direct connections to Britain's Royalty are among the famous places which can be visited with Britain's "Open to View" ticket.

Just in time for the Silver Jubilee of Queen Elizabeth II, 1977's "Open to View" ticket is $10 (children's version is $5). It gives admission to Windsor Castle, Hampton Court Palace, Kensington Palace, Kew Palace, the Tower of London, Edinburgh Castle, the Banqueting Hall, and Hatfield House, where Elizabeth I learned she was to be Queen.

There are nearly four hundred places in all, including Stonehenge, Sir Winston Churchill's house, Chartwell, Woburn Abbey, Warwick Castle, Shakespeare's birthplace and Hadrian's Roman Wall in Northumberland.

The ticket is good for a month after the user signs it at the first stately home or castle visited. Sold with it is a booklet listing all the places open to ticket owners. To visit them all would cost several hundred dollars. The eleven in London would cost fifty cents to $1.55 a piece to visit.

Open to View tickets may be purchased from BritRail Travel International in the U.S., with offices at 333 n. Michigan Ave., Chicago 60601.

British school offers courses for families

A famous British school, on whose grounds the magician Merlin is buried, is offering courses in everything from horseback riding to fly fishing for families with children this summer.

The Marlborough College Summer School is intended to allow the kids and parents to take off on their interests during the day but allow them to get together in the rest of the day.

The College, a famous British boys' school, near Marlborough, Wiltshire, England, is 20 miles from Stonehenge, 30 miles from Bath and 40 miles from Oxford in lovely hilly country.

Courses include art, pottery, antiques, gourmet cooking, photography, French, philosophy, practical biology outdoors, archaeology (visits to dozens of local sites including Stonehenge), swimming, tennis and squash, yoga, karate and bridge.

There are also activities for children from age six to eight, nine to eleven, and twelve to fourteen.

Accommodations can be arranged in local hotels, family houses, or at the school. Prices range from $110 to $170 per week, including all meals. Tuition is additional, at $60 a week per course. There are three one-week courses starting July 18, July 25 and August 1. For information write Secretary of the Summer School, Marlborough College, Marlborough, Wiltshire SN8 IPA, England.

Swedish history at Bishop Hill

Bishop Hill, between Galesburg and Kewanee in Western Illinois, is one of the surprises to be found on the vast Illinois prairie.

The fast pace of the 20th Century seems to have evaded this tiny Swedish enclave which remains much as it was in 1846 when Erik Jansson and his followers founded it with the dream of attaining religious freedom and economic success.

The settlers struggled to build temporary communal structures to see them through their first Illinois winter. Many could not endure the hardship but those that survived eventually transformed the primitive settlement into a beautiful village they called "prairie utopia."

Brick structures, a far cry from the rustic log cabins seen in New Salem during the same period, surrounded a spacious village square. The colonists worked together to establish a rich agrarian society. The town prospered and its reputation grew, not only as a successful farming community, but also as a center recognized as a quality producer of fine furniture, linens, and farm products.

All was going well — Bishop Hill had its own school, hospital, post office, power mill and more than 1,000 residents eager to continue the town's prosperity and religious independence. Fate intervened, however, in 1850 when an intruder murdered the group's leader, Erik Jansson. For several years the closely knit colonists clung to the visage that was Bishop Hill but dissension grew as townspeople argued over social and economic doctrine. No viable leader emerged and the settlement dissolved.

Though Bishop Hill remains isolated even in the 20th Century, beneath its quiet exterior is a community determined to rebuild the historic edifices and revive the traditions on which the colony was founded.

The first restoration was the Steeple Building, a three-story Greek Revival structure, topped with a wooden steeple with a one-handed clock. The Bishop Hill Heritage association is still continuing the restoration of the building which now houses the Henry County Historical Society's collection and period rooms. The Association was also instrumental in the effort to restore the village blacksmith shop, Colony store and post office.

Bishop Hill was declared a state memorial and the State of Illinois set out to continue the preservation of this legacy. The Colony Church, a white frame structure and the first permanent building constructed by the Janssonists, once was the town's religious center and living quarters for early settlers. Today more than a dozen small rooms on the ground floor hold period artifacts and furniture.

Bishop Hill's attractions are open to visitors daily year round from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. There are no admission charges except at the Bishop Hill Museum where a small donation is asked. Bishop Hill is about a 3½ hour drive from the Northwest suburbs and can be reached by taking I-80 west, south on Ill. Rte. 78, and west on Rte. 17.

Ginsburgh, are you really a looney?

The following is a slightly fictionalized but essentially accurate transcript of a conversation between Herald reporter Scott Fosdick and Morton Grove author Irwin Ginsburgh. Simon and Schuster recently published Ginsburgh's "First Man, Then, Adam!" wherein the author tries to reconcile Science with the Book of Genesis by suggesting that Adam and Eve were superior beings from another solar system. - Ed.

by Scott Fosdick

IRWIN GINSBURGH! You who believes that Adam and Eve were astronauts from the Pleiades who crash-landed on Earth in a spaceship called the Garden of Eden . . .

IRWIN GINSBURGH! You who believes the Tree of Knowledge was in reality the spaceship's central computer . . .

IRWIN GINSBURGH! You who believes the book of Genesis is an explanation of the modern Big Bang theory of creation . . .

Irwin Ginsburgh, you are hereby charged with being a nut, a looney and a crackpot. How do you plead?

In 1951 I received my PhD in nuclear physics from Rutgers University. I am a senior research associate with the Amoco Oil Company in Naperville, studying solar energy and energy conservation. I hold more than thirty patents and four industrial awards. I've lived in Morton Grove with my wife and family for eighteen years, during which time I've spent thirteen years on local school boards, serving as president for most of that time. I am a respected member of my synagogue, the Northwest Suburban Jewish Congregation. I am a scientist and a religious man . . .

Alright, enough is enough. So you lead a model life. But honestly . . . Adam and Eve . . . spaceships . . . big bang . . . How did a guy like you come up with such a wacko theory?

The fundamental problem was a very personal one for me. I am a scientist, but I received a religious education. Science tells a very good story of creation. But the Bible's version requires a great deal of faith. If they're both right, they both should agree.

So I asked myself, under what conditions can science and Genesis be talking about the same set of events?

And you came up with Big Bang.

Yes. Archeologists agree that from Abraham on, the Bible is factual. But most people think the beginning of Genesis is just allegorical. Why should a book change its character at the halfway point?

"I am a scientist and a religious man."

The Bible says God created the heavens and the earth in six days. But He didn't create the sun until the fourth day, so the length of an earth day wasn't set until then. No statement was made to equate the length of an earth day with a day of creation.

Your description of the Big Bang theory, and how it coincides with the early passages of Genesis, is too involved to go into here. But explain why you came up with the idea of Adam and Eve being astronauts.

It has provided me with answers where I never had any answers before.

What are the questions?

Where were wives obtained for Adam's sons? Why did Adam and his descendents live more than 900 years? Why did the life span of Adam's descendents fall dramatically after Noah? Why was circumcision included in God's covenant with Abraham?

All these questions are easily answered if you make one major assumption: The Garden of Eden was a spaceship that crash-landed on Earth carrying two superior space people, Adam and Eve. Once they began inter-breeding with earth people, their life-span dwindled. There has been a degeneration of Superpeople.

So we are all descended from aborigines and astronauts?

Yes, and we owe civilization to the space people. Tracing back the generations in the Bible, we find that Adam was born roughly 6,000 years ago. Archeologists tell us that civilization and the written word sprang up almost overnight 6,000 years ago.

If Adam and Eve hadn't crashed on Earth, would we ever have become civilized?

It would have taken a great deal longer.

You haven't explained how your theory accounts for circumcision.

Much of the Bible is a list of Noah's descendents. It's a sort of record. They apparently were hoping for a rescue mission from outer space. After several generations it was hard to keep track. So God made a convenant with Abraham demanding circumcision of all male offspring.

At times it sounds like you're arguing for some sort of genetic purification, to create, or re-create, a master race with all the old powers of Adam. On page 85 of your book you ask, "Can we try to undo the cross breeding to improve man and search for original space man characteristics?" As Adam's descendents were all Jews, the "chosen people," isn't your theory basically rascist?

I'm not talking about master race. I'm talking about all mankind learning to better itself.

How?

Through genetic engineering, perhaps. If you could affect things in the genes, what things should you try to affect? Trying to isolate the characteristics of the space people might help.

I've tried hard to keep racism out of my theory. Look in Chronicles. It shows the Arabs are also descended from Abraham, through another wife.

As a religious man, do you think your theory adds to or detracts from an appreciation of the Bible?

The whole Bible really addresses itself to two major questions: How do we live with each other, and how do we live with God? It's about time we began to deal with these questions.

Those people who can believe the Bible on faith have no problem. But like me, many people have trouble believing Genesis. My theory shows how truly accurate Genesis is, and frees people to deal with the rest of the Bible.

But your theory raises so many more questions about miracles in the rest of the Bible.

Yes, the whole picture has been muddied, but the Genesis piece has become clearer.

Was Jesus an astronaut too?

At the present time I don't quite know what to say about the New Testament. For instance, take the Star of Bethlehem hovering over the stable. If you think in terms of a rocket ship that is making a night landing, and is firing its retro-rockets to slow down, that fits the Star of Bethlehem very closely. I can't say any more than that right now.

Getting back to Genesis, how do you explain God's warning not to touch the Tree of Knowledge?

As I said, the Tree of Knowledge was really the spaceship's central computer. So what God was really telling Adam and Eve was, "Do not adjust the controls of the computer." When they did, the space craft was

An apolitical Buckley pens a sailing yarn

AIRBORNE by William F. Buckley Jr. (Macmillan, $12.95)

Reviewed by Kurt Baer

William F. Buckley Jr. the articulate voice of American conservatism, has written a sparkling new book called "Airborne" in which he has managed to capture both the sweat and the rapture of a 4,400-mile trans-Atlantic sailing voyage.

"Airborne" is as apolitical a writing as anyone could expect from the highly-political Buckley. The book is a collection of episodes in Buckley's month-long sail from Miami to Spain aboard his 60-foot yacht, Cyrano. In the company of his 21-year-old son, Christopher, and five friends, Buckley the yachtsman, father and journalist is revealed.

Buckley's staccato style and gold-plated vocabulary connect excerpts from three shipboard journals, including an especially candid log kept by Christopher, whose photographs are used to illustrate the adventure. The result is an informative book on the art of sailing, but more importantly, a look into the hearts of the sailors.

Planning for the ocean crossing, the frustrating failure of navigational equipment aboard Cyrano, the pleasures of sailing under fair skies and the terror of hurricane force winds and 30-foot seas are common ingredients in any sailing saga. It is Buckley's wit, honesty and sense of style that make "Airborne" something more.

One chapter of special interest to sailors (and limited use to anyone else) describes in rare, understandable terms the technique of navigating by sun and stars. In another section, Buckley provides instructions on how to "heave to," a storm sailing maneuver in which the boat's sails are set so as to bring the boat to a virtual standstill in the midst of a howling gale.

Not all of "Airborne" is devoted to the trans-Atlantic adventure. Buckley has fleshed out the book with anecdotes from his sailing career that began when he was a boy of 13. Throughout there is the inescapable feeling that Buckley's life is, and always has been a life of privilege. Against a family background of wealth and New York social standing, a succession of sailing yachts seems as natural to Buckley as his Yale education or house in Switzerland.

One wonders whether Buckley's celebrated silver tongue is not somehow the consequence of overlicking the silver spoon.

But none of this takes away the fun of reading "Airborne." Through the art of words, pictures and imagination, the reader can sign on Cyrano, absorb the anxiety of running aground off Bermuda and suffer the morning hangover after a night's revelry in the Azores.

Buckley's arch rival, liberal economist John Kenneth Galbraith, suggests that Buckley should abandon politics and concentrate on writing. "He cannot afford to have serious people think he is a failed politician when he is a master of a higher craft," Galbraith says.

It is the joy of "Airborne" that we don't have to judge Buckley for his politics. It is enough that he has brought a family story to life in a way that holds our attention and, while we're not looking, tells us something about the legendary magic of man, ships and the sea.

A mother seeks revenge for the death of her son

EAST WIND, RAIN by N. Richard Nash (Atheneum, $9.95)

Reviewed by Linda Punch

It began as a typical evening at the club for Johanna Winter — free flowing liquor social chatter and innocent flirtations with old friends. By night's end, however, she would be embroiled in a personal quest to seek vengeance against the man who mutilated her son.

N. Richard Nash's "East Wind, Rain" tells the story of Johanna's search for her son's attacker. It takes place in Pearl Harbor in the weeks leading to Dec. 7, 1941. The diplomatic intrigues and military strategies of that period serve as the framework for the personal vendetta.

The story centers on three characters — Johanna Winter, the 45-year-old widow of a U.S. naval officer; Tad Clarke, Johanna's son-in-law and a Naval intelligence officer; and Tokan, a Japanese importer and possible secret agent.

As the novel opens, Johanna is a middle-aged woman casting about for a direction in life. Her daughter is married to Clarke, a man she barely tolerates, and her son is beginning a career with Naval intelligence. Although she writes a column for a local newspaper and participates in the social life at the Naval club, she feels her life lacks meaning.

Clarke, in his own way, also is searching for a new direction in life. He spends his days collecting information about Japanese military movements only to have his superiors summarily dismiss his findings. He has an unexplained feeling of imminent danger but is unable to convince his commanding officer of the Japanese threat to the islands.

Johanna's and Clarke's searches come together after the mutilation and subsequent suicide of her son Ben. The young man's death is clouded with intrigue. What first appears to be an attack by Japanese secret agents is later found to be an act of retribution by Tokan for Ben's involvement with his young wife. When Naval and police authorities fail to take action against the importer, Johanna and Clarke begin their own secret war.

Nash, who wrote the play "The Rainmaker", creates complex characters for Johanna, Clarke and Tokan. The background locations are also rich in detail and often become a fourth character.

Nash contrasts the Naval community's cocktail hour chatter over the impending war with the brutal murders and the silent warfare in the island's Oriental Town. The Hawaiian jungle also becomes an anatagonist when Johanna and Clarke begin their long pursuit of Tokan.

"East Wind, Rain," has the makings for a feature-length movie or television miniseries, including violent deaths and a passionate, if brief, love affair between Johanna and Clarke. It's fast-reading and despite its 371 pages most people will probably finish it in one sitting.

One man plots a Third Revolution against society

LANCELOT by Walker Percy (Farrar, Straus and Giroux, $8.95).

Reviewed by Dick Dahl

If "Lancelot" were only a fictive nightmare, as it appears on one level of perception, the story would be merely chilling. But Walker Percy has made his novel about the long descent and sudden retaliation of one Southern man more than that: a grim statement with a degree of dark truth time may sanction. "Lancelot" may be the forebearer of a real nightmare.

Lancelot Lamar tells us his story from the cell of a mental hospital: that he once ran back a punt 110 yards against Alabama; that he once was wealthy and happy, owned a Louisiana mansion, played the proper social activist role in the '60s as a liberal lawyer.

Lancelot's downfall, it becomes clear, is women. Or perhaps more accurately, the emancipation of women. His first wife was a Georgian and a virgin. "What I wanted was to dance with her on a summer night, hold her lightly and look into her eyes," he says. When she died of leukemia, he could only think, "How curious to wake up one morning alone again." His second wife, a very wealthy headstrong Texan named Margot, was different. Lancelot tells us she was the leader, the aggressor, the restorer of the Belle Isle mansion, the initiator of wild sexual adventures. But then it changed. Margot became an actress with a somewhat itinerant film-making troupe. They grew apart. And one day, through inspection of a blood-type report on an application to summer camp for their daughter, Lancelot discovers he is not the true father.

The discovery swings Lancelot into cold, quiet action ending in the destruction he seeks. From this point of recall, Lancelot says repeatedly, "I will not tolerate this age." His son and daughter by his first marriage are involved in what he views as sexual deviancy; his wife is untrue. His obligatory liberal spirit has died. He has nothing left. He crosses the line.

"Washington, the country, is down the drain," he says. "Everyone knows it. The people have lost it to the politicians, bureaucrats, drunk Congressmen, lying Presidents, White House preachers, CIA, FBI, Mafia, Pentagon, pornographers, muggers, buggers, bribers, bribe takers, rich crooked cowboy, sclerotic Southerners, rich crooked Yankees, dirty books, dirty movies, dirty plays, dirty talk shows, dirty soap operas, fags, lesbians, abortionists, Jesus shouters, anti-Jesus shouters, dying cities, dying schools . . ."

But he has an answer: the Third Revolution, to be born in the hills of Virginia when he is released from the mental hospital. The first two revolutions, he tells us, are the Revolutionary War and the Civil War. The Third Revolution, he says, has "nothing to do with politics."

"It is simply this: a conviction and a freedom. The conviction: I will not tolerate this age. The freedom: the freedom to act on my conviction. And I will act. No one else has both conviction and the freedom. Many agree with me, have the conviction, but will not act. Some act, assassinate, bomb, burn, etc., but they are the crazies. Crazy acts by crazy people. But what if one, sober, reasonable, and honorable man should act, and act with perfect sobriety, reason and honor? Then you have the beginning of a new age. We shall start a new order of things."

"Lancelot" emerges as the powerful symbol of a moral backlash Percy seems to be saying is imminent. Time will be Percy's judge.

The how and why behind country music

SING YOUR HEART OUT, COUNTRY BOY by Dorothy Horstman (Pocket Books $2.50).

Reviewed by Joan Rennau

Country music as an American art form has seldom been taken seriously. It has suffered from its humble beginnings, away from the center of power and influence, and from its sometimes embarrassing adherence to simple virtues which many find naive.

Today things are changing. Country music has the ability to make money with its highly commercial "Nashville Sound" and the public taste is turning towards traditional values and understandable lyrics. It is emerging with new popularity.

Only recently has country music produced superstars like Johnny Cash, Roy Clark and Dolly Parton, whose names have become household words. It is commercial music with a simple, direct message, its lyrics easily remembered and its melodies easily sung and played.

Author Dorothy Horstman spent several years reviewing original lyrics of thousands of songs and interviewing songwriters, artists, publishers and producers to select a few hundred songs representative of the growth of country music.

The result of her efforts is "Sing Your Heart Out, Country Boy," a compilation of some of the best country music with passages by the songwriters, or in some cases relatives, publishers and friends, explaining how and why the song was wirtten.

The selections of songs was based on lyrics, popularity, representative content, balance and impact. Included are theme songs, songs of home, lost and unrequited love, honky-tonk, cowboy songs, religious and story songs.

In many ways, the author's interviews have emerged as the most interesting aspect of the book.

Songs of home, poverty, hard work, separation from family, from a way of life are a repeated theme of Southern musical expression.

"I was born a coal miner's daughter/ In a cabin on a hill in Butcher Holler/ We were born poor, but we had love/ That's the one thing that daddy made sure of/ He shoveled coal to make a poor man's dollar."

Loretta Lynn tells this story of her early life in "Cold Miner's Daughter." How her daddy raised eight children with love. He worked nights in the mines and hoed corn during the day to make sure they had shoes to wear in the winter. She saw her mother's hands bleed from scrubbing clothes on a washboard every day.

"This is the true story of my early life," said Loretta Lynn. "The old house is still standing, and I go back to see it every now and then."

Infidelity is nothing new, but it was not discussed by country music composers until the 1950s. Floyd Tillman wrote what is probably the classic cheating song, "Slipping Around."

Tillman describes what inspired this song: "About three o'clock in the morning, after playing a job a few hundred miles out of Houston, we stopped at an all-night cafe on the way home. There was a telephone nearby, and a lady was talking on it. I couldn't help but overhear the conversation. She said, 'Now honey, you call me, and if a man answers, hang up. I thought, 'Poor girl, she's just like me . . . slipping around.' "

Tom T. Hall relates a visit with his father in "Homecoming." In the early years of Leon Payne's career, he hitchhicked from one place to another looking for work. While stranded on his way to Alba, Texas to visit his sick mother he wrote "Lost Highways."

John Hartford reveals that the inspiration for "Gentle On My Mind" came from watching the movie "Dr. Zhivago." Dolly Parton's memories of Severville, Tenn. are relived in "The Good Old Days (When Times Were Bad)."

With devotion to detail Dorothy Horstman has provided some insight into country music and its creators. Her book is a welcome addition to the country music lover's library.

One woman's struggle with life and love

HOW TO SAVE YOUR OWN LIFE by Erica Jong (Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $8.95).

Reviewed by Joan Hanauer

Once upon a time when a reviewer called a novel a "woman's book" he probably meant it was a three-handkerchief tearjerker, a happy-ending romance with all the reality of a Technicolor sunset, or a gothic that featured on its cover a woman in a night-gown running away from a castle.

Such stereotypes fell in the early days of the feminist revolution. Nowadays women's books are those in which a confused modern woman is trying to sort out her life, decide which of the old verities to trust and which should be thrown out with the bubble bath water.

"Women's books" also can contain every bit as much explicitly erotic material as men's and perhaps more. It appears likely that the success of such books may owe as much to male chauvinist readership as emancipated women buyers.

Erica Jong, who wrote the best selling "Fear of Flying," which was a woman's book of the new genre, now has a sequel — "How To Save Your Own Life."

In it she picks up the life of Isadora Wing three years after the readers left her in "Fear or Flying."

She is still struggling with life and love, and Miss Jong details how her marriage falls apart, as Isadora struggles with well-founded jealousy and, in its way, equally well-founded guilt.

Isadora goes on to success as a novelist, but she still is learning to fly. For better or worse, she does much of her flight training in various beds, which adds spice, if not depth, to the book.

She has realized in this book, partly because of the suicide of a poet-friend, that really the basic choice is between life and death. Either choice is possible; only indecision is unacceptable.

"How To Save Your Own Life" is not everyone's book. Chances are those who liked "Fear of Flying" will enjoy its successor. But it is not for those who are turned off by all the details of a modern woman's sexual adventures. This book has sex and, perhaps, love, but look elsewhere for old-fashioned romance.

An intriguing tale of a movie star and a psychopath

THE FAN by Bob Randall (Random House $7.95).

Reviewed by Holly Hanson

A friend who writes letters frequently without expecting replies clearly is a friend to be cherished. Unless that friend is psychotic.

In Bob Randall's novel "The Fan," glamorous but aging movie star Sally Ross is the recipient of stacks of letters, some friendly and others not so, which make up the novel's format.

We see her life for a six-month period as she rehearses for a Broadway show and becomes the central figure in a threatened murder.

If you can get past the initial disbelief that a small group of persons could exchange so many interesting letters in only six months, "The Fan" is fun to read and consistently intriguing because of the style of revealing information through correspondence.

Surprisingly, the characters' personalities come through quite clearly in their letters. Randall does a good job of switching writing styles for each character's letters and consistently maintaining their styles through the novel.

The character who undergoes the most disturbing change is Douglas Breen, a young man obsessed with Sally's beauty and charm. He begins the novel as an over-eager fan clamoring for a picture of Sally, and ends it on a much more sinister note.

Through Douglas' letters to Sally, and others she exchanges with her ex-husband, agents, friends and relatives, we are introduced to a murderous plot combining a sadistic knifing, menacing figures who hide in subways and some slightly perverted sex.

The novel is not quite as impossible to figure out as the jacket blurb would like us to think it is; what is described as a "completely unexpected ending" is only slightly surprising.

It would be unfair to give away the ending (the novel is, after all, a mystery), but a parallel exists between the conclusion and one of Alfred Hitchcock's first suspense films.

A section of that movie is devoted to a young boy, who unknowingly has taken a package containing a bomb aboard a crowded bus. Only the audience knows the bomb is set to go off in five minutes.

For five agonizing minutes, the audience must wait for the bomb. Finally, when seven minutes have passed, the bomb explodes, killing everyone on the bus.

Hitchcock maintains he should not have let the bomb explode.

"The boy was involved in a situation that got him too much sympathy from the audience," he has said, "so that when the bomb exploded and he was killed, the public was resentful."

Randall has crafted a mystery novel that does much the same thing: it builds up our sympathy for Sally, and then lets the bomb explode.

forced to land. The reason I called it a crash landing is because they had to leave it.

Your book doesn't explain where Eve came from. Is Adam's rib just another metaphor?

The original animal was probably hermaphroditic, like Siamese twins joined at the rib. Adam and Eve were cut apart so they could breed with men.

Plato talks about a hermaphroditic animal joined at the ribs.

I've got a better idea. What if Eve were "cloned" from Adam's rib? Science is now able to reproduce simple organisms from a few original cells. God might have scraped some cells from Adam's rib, and fashioned a new, almost identical being.

It's possible . . .

— And it makes much more sense, too, if you look at Genesis. Chapter two, verses 21 and 22: "So the Lord God caused a deep sleep to fall upon the man, and while he slept took one of his ribs and closed up its place with flesh; and the rib which the Lord God had taken from the man he made into a woman and brought her to the man."

Doesn't that sound like an operation to you, Dr. Ginsburgh?

Yes, but my theory requires an operation, too. However, I'm surprised and pleased at your suggestion. It shows you take my theory seriously.

Son now I accuse you, who believes in cosmic surgery, of being a nut, a looney and a crackpot! How do you plead?

Dr. Ginsburgh, you leave me no alternative: Guilty.

I HAVE A SISTER, MY SISTER IS DEAF by Jeanne Whitehouse Peterson (Harper & Row, $4.95, ages 5-8)

Reviewed by Dorothy Oliver

Jeanne Whitehouse Peterson grew up in Spokane, Washington with a little sister who lived in a silent world. Her sister is deaf.

"People who are deaf, or who grew up in families with deaf parents or brothers and sisters, are important to me. I want to understand their very special culture, their world," she says.

Her understanding is apparent in "I Have A Sister, My Sister Is Deaf," a touching, sensitive book written through the eyes of a hearing child as she reflects on her sister's handicap. It is tender, almost poetic as it reveals what it is like to be deaf:

"My sister can play the piano. She likes to feel the deep rumbling chords. But she will never be able to sing. She cannot hear the tune.

"My sister can dance with a partner or march in a line. She likes to leap, to tumble, to roll, to climb to the top of the monkey bars. She watches me as we climb. I watch her, too. She cannot hear me shout 'Look out!' But she can see me swinging her way. She laughs and swings backward, trying to catch my legs..."

There's no pity in this book, no sorrowful passages about the plight of the deaf. Instead it is as candid as a young, matter-of-fact child talking in adult-like tones about something that simply "is." "Now my sister has started going to my school, although our mother still helps her speak and lip-read at home. The teacher and children do not understand every word she says, like sister or water or thumb. Today the children in her room told me, 'Your sister said blue!' Well, I heard her say that a long time ago. But they have not lived with my sister for five years the way I have..."

The book is written for children between 5 and 8, an age when these curious little people question anything that is different, particularly physical differences. In "My Sister Is Deaf..." they will find a life that is most certainly different but not frightening. They will find that deafness even has some advantages, such as not being awakened by a rolling thunderstorm and being able to feel sounds as they vibrate through the air.

And they will find answers to some of the unasked questions they may have about deafness: "My friends ask me about my little sister. They ask 'Does it hurt to be deaf?' 'No,' I say, her ears don't hurt, but her feelings do when people do not understand.'"

Philadelphia artist Deborah Ray illustrated the book and matched Peterson's sensitivity with soft, expressive drawings of two very loving sisters.

"My Sister Is Deaf..." is a valuable book for children who know someone who is deaf and those who don't. It deals with a topic too important to be ignored in children's literature.

Olga knows

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A little press and push could lead to career advancement, Ari. You know instinctively where the pressure must be applied. Do it. Before week is over, loved one worms way into your heart. You glow.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Happy Birthday Taurus! You are practical, patient, generous, sensual and (ruled by the planet Venus) the sophisticated lover par excellence. You have an excellent business sense — the ability to make money and to hang on to it. Capricorn, Pisces play key roles this year and November will be important month. The worm turns.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Wires of communication tangle, personal plans snarl and romantic involvement reaches vanishing point where all perspectives appear to join. In short, Gem, just another routine week.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Read message to Gem. Deal concerning property value may be considered. Concentrate on cold, hard facts. Change, variety, member of opposit sex — all very significant. Week ends on key of F, for fly. Is it an airplane? Is it a kite? Is it a balloon? No, it's Moonbaby!

LEO (July 23-August 22): Money matters highlighted. Beware of "deal" which seems too good to be true. It is. Usually Leo, you're not an easy one to fool, but this time a certain charmer may have combination to your money belt. Week clicks to noisy fini.

VIRGO (August 23-September 22): The Law of Virgo states: As one problem is solved, another one immediately takes its place. Have a pocketful of ready solutions this week, Virgo, for "Nature abhores a vacuum." Week ends rather weakly. Sorry about that.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22): Capricorn enters picture. You two travel well together as long as you manage to avoid emotional quicksands. Cap is strong, and you, Libra, are just. When strength and justice join forces there is precious little that can deter progress toward good.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21): After a rather tacky beginning energy returns and (strictly off the record) you establish new record. Your restless heart finds peace.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21): You have a resisting segment in your personality, Saj, which supplies you with both strength and vitality. Draw on this strength to help you make important personal decision. You know the one. Week ends on an upper.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19): Read Libra. Challenge marches into your life like a little toy soldier and you are tested. You take giant step toward personal goal. Oh-oh, did you say "May I?" If not, it's back to square one. Sorry.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18): Week starts on note of confusion, but by third day hidden truth zaps you right in the chops. Taurus storms into picture. Week ends on note of B, for bag, baffle and bonhommie.

PISCES (February 19-March 20): Change abounds so remain flexible. If you say "But I've always done it this way!" you miss marvelous chance for growth. Line separating persistence from pigheadedness is almost imperceptible.

On chess

BEGINNER'S CORNER — Hint and explanation: White's king pawn, king bishop and king, itself, are vulnerable to attack.

When World Champion Emanuel Lasker and Dr. Siegbert Tarrasch were making their preparations for a title match in 1908 an unfortunately ugly atmosphere prevailed.

Tarrasch, a wealthy physician who claimed to play for "art's sake," took public issue with Lasker's "money-grubbing" orientation. (Thus Tarrasch characteried Lasker's financial dependence on his chess earnings.)

Lasker, on the other hand, singled out Tarrasch's egotism as his target:

"Dr. Tarrasch's strength or weakness — if you like — is his personal amour propre. Without it he would have been a very mediocre chess player; gifted (with self-love) to an abnormal degree, he has become a giant."

When the two finally met before the match, Tarrasch, after a formal bow, said:

"To you, Dr. Lasker, I have only three words, 'check and mate.' " At that he bowedl again and left.

Lasker won the match overwhelmingly by a score of 8-3.

This story and many others are told with great elan by N. Y. Times music critic Harold Schonberg in his book "Grandmasters of Chess."

Tony Miles, England's recent and first grandmaster, achieved a poor 5½-6½ score in the January Wijk Aan Zee tournament. Ewfim Geller (U.S.S.R.) and Gesa Sosonko (Netherlands) were the winners. Jan Timman (Netherlands) finished third.

Stamp notes

On April 22, the Canada Post Office will release six low-value definitive stamps depicting Canadian wildflowers.

Designed by Heather Cooper, a Toronto artist, the adhesives will be issued in the following denominations: 1-cent, featuring the bottle gentian; 2-cent, the western columbine; 3-cent, the Canada lily; 4-cent, hepatica; 5-cent, shooting star and 10-cent, sparrow's egg lady slipper.

Each design will be printed 100 stamps to the pane, in steel engraving and lithography, by the Canadian Bank Note Company. Marginal inscriptions, including the designer's name, the printer, the plate number and the Latin name of the wildflower, will appear in the four corners of each pane.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations should send their requests to "Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ontario, Canada K1A OB5" including the proper remittance, which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed plus a 15-cent service charge per cover for covers with less than 50-cents in postage affixed. Each cover must carry at least 10-cents in postage to meet the Canadian first class postal rate. Your remittance must be by international bank draft payable to the "Receiver General for Canada." Pencil in lightly in the upper right hand corner of your cover which design and the number of stamps you wish affixed.

On May 9, the Irish Post Office will release two adhesives commemorating the centenary of the founding of the National Library and the National Museum. The stamps will be issued in denominations of 8p and 10p respectively.

Requests for first day cancellations should go to the "Philatelic Section, General Post Office, Dublin, 1, Ireland."
